"Hurricane" Carter to Speak at Annual King Commemoration

Rubin "Hurricane" Carter, a former middleweight boxing champion who was wrongly imprisoned for murder, will serve as keynote speaker for the annual UNCW Martin Luther King, Jr. commemoration. This presentation, sponsored by the Office of Minority Affairs, will be at 7 p.m. Jan. 20 in Kenan Auditorium. While admission is free, tickets are required and will be available at the auditorium box office.

Carter began his professional boxing career in 1961. Five years later while preparing for a world championship bout, he was arrested, convicted and sentenced to three life terms for a triple murder in New Jersey. In 1974, upon the publication of his autobiography The 16th Round:

From Number 1 to Number 45472 and the recantations of the state's two key witnesses, Carter's case attracted international attention. A second trial also ended with Carter's conviction; however, a third trial released him from prison in 1985. In February 1988, the 22-year-old indictment was officially dismissed.

Carter's story is the subject of the major motion picture Hurricane, starring Denzel Washington. The movie, directed by Norman Jewison, was filmed on location in Carter's former haunts in Paterson, N.J., in Rahway State Prison and in Toronto, where he is a member of the Association in Defense of the Wrongfully Convicted.

As an advocate working to free others wrongly convicted of crimes, Carter has testified before the U.S. Congress on the need to preserve federal review of state court convictions. He is a member of the Board of Directors for Human Rights in Atlanta, Ga., and the Alliance for Prison Justice in Boston, Mass. In addition, he has lectured at numerous universities including the law schools at Harvard and Yale universities.

Nonfiction Writer Terry Tempest Williams to Read Jan. 14

An articulate defender of her native Utah's wilderness, author Terry Tempest Williams will read from her works at 8 p.m. Jan. 14 in Kenan Auditorium with a reception and booksigning to follow. This event, sponsored by The King's Road Writers Series, is free and open to the public.

the Colorado Plateau and the Great Basin. These ideas are then sorted out through the prism of my culture — Mormon. Those tenets of family and community that I see at the heart of that culture are then articulated through story."

During January, Williams will conduct a nonfiction writing workshop in the Creative Writing Department's MFA Program.

"I was very pleased that Terry wants to take her workshop students on an environmental field trip with faculty and students in the marine science program, possibly aboard one of the boats operated by the Center for Marine Science Research," said Phil Furia, creative writing. "This would be a wonderful way for two of UNCW's top programs, marine science and creative writing, to do something together."

Influenced by "her biases of gender, geography and culture," Williams said she writes "as a woman whose ideas have been shaped by Williams, the Shirley Sutton Thomas Visiting Professor of English at the University of Utah, received a Lannan Literary Fellowship in creative nonfiction along with a Guggenheim Fellowship in 1997. She also received the National Wildlife Federation's National Conservation Award for Special Achievement. In 1995, as a representative of the Utah Museum of Natural History, Williams protested the Utah Public Lands Management Act before the Senate Subcommittee on Forest and Public Lands Management.

Developed to offer distinguished literary events to the Wilmington community, The King's Road Writers Series is made possible through funding from The King's Road, which offers cards, stationery and gifts in Barclay Commons.

Starting Jan. 9 and continuing for the spring semester, 6 p.m. Sunday masses will be held at the Newman Catholic Campus Center, 4802 College Acres Drive.

Ed Lab Spring Tutoring

The Education Lab will offer tutoring for children grades K-9 in reading/language arts, math and special needs from Jan. 24 through April 14. UNCW Watson School of Education students will be matched one-on-one with a child for the tutoring sessions. Children will attend one or two one-hour sessions weekly between 3 and 6 p.m. Monday through Thursday in King Hall, Room 203. Registration will be through Jan. 17. Fees are: 20 hours elementary reading/language arts, $150; 25 hours elementary reading/math tutoring, $187.50; 10 hours elementary math tutoring, $75; 10 hours middle school math, $60; 20 hours special needs tutoring, $150. For more information, call ext. 3633.

Wagoner Memorial Fund

Faculty and staff interested in contributing to the memorial fund established for William H. Wagoner may send checks, payable to UNCW, to advancement services, Alderman Hall, Room 104. Wagoner, UNCW chancellor emeritus, died Nov. 19. At the request of the Wagoner family, gifts to this fund will provide general student support, a main concern of Wagoner's during his 22 years of service as president of Wilmington College and chancellor of the University of North Carolina at Wilmington.

Faculty/Staff Art Show

Randall Library will host the exhibit "Artists in Your Midst: Showcasing UNCW Staff and Faculty Art" Feb. 7-29. Entrants can submit up to four items for the exhibit including drawings, watercolors, oils, photographs and ceramics. For more information, contact Beth Roberts at ext. 3270 or Sherman Hayes at ext. 3271.

Resident Assistants

The Office of Housing and Residence Life is accepting applications for undergraduate or graduate students to serve as resident assistants for the 2000-2001 academic year. Resident assistants are responsible for one floor or area of a campus residence hall and receive a scholarship for room and board and a small monthly stipend. Students must have a 2.35 GPA and leadership skills. Faculty and staff should direct applicants to contact housing and residence life in Schwartz Hall. The deadline to apply is Jan. 21.

Let's Talk Lineup

Guests for UNCW-TV's Let's Talk! UNCW & You include Joe Simon, Trask Coliseum ticket manager, and Jim McNab, director of International Programs. The weekly program, hosted by Betty Ann Sanders, airs at 7 p.m. Friday and Monday and noon Wednesday on The Learning Network seen locally on Time Warner Cable Channel 5.

NSE Seeking Participants

The Office of Housing and Residence Life is seeking candidates to participate in the National Student Exchange Program, which provides an opportunity to study in one of 148 universities nationwide as well as Puerto Rico, Guam and the Virgin Islands. Students pay the same tuition and fees as if they were attending UNCW. Exchanges can be for a single semester or the academic year. Faculty and staff should refer interested students to housing and residence life for an application. The deadline is Feb. 1. To be eligible, students must maintain full-time status and a 2.5 GPA. To arrange a classroom presentation, call ext. 3241 or e-mail housing.

Research award recipients and their research topics are: Todd Berliner, English, 1970s films; Don Bushman, English, the collected papers of George Herbert Mead; Yixen Chen, history, attempts to organize the peasant population in China; Clayton Femer, computer science, parallel computing; Don Furst, art and theatre, the etching of photopolymer copper plates; Hal Langfur, history, frontier settlers, slaves, and Indians in Minas Gerais, Brazil; John Karllof, mathematics and statistics, the application of mathematical programming/operations research to radioactive waste facility policy; Xin Lu, mathematics and statistics, numerical solutions of reaction diffusion equations; Patrick McKay, psychology, cognitive ability testing; Michael Messina, chemistry, the chemical fate of pollutants in the environment; Alison Murray, foreign languages and literatures, the effects of film on social change in France; Michael Perko, HPER, coach awareness of the use/non-use of dietary supplements by adolescent athletes in the public schools; Jammie Price, sociology, anthropology and criminal justice, emergency care for children in North Carolina; Karan Smith, mathematics and statistics, effective teaching of discrete mathematics in the public schools; Lynne Snowden, sociology, anthropology and criminal justice, the effects of the 1996 Immigration Law's benefit provisions on southeastern North Carolina's migrant farm workers affected by Hurricane Floyd; Virginia Stewart, history, consumer goods in late colonial America; and Barbara Waxman, English, bilingualism and biculturalism as revealed in autobiography.

Recipients of summer initiatives for curriculum development are: David Berman, computer science, redesign of CSC 121; Bill Bolduc, communication studies, advanced video production courses, including underwater field experience; David Evans, sociology, anthropology and criminal justice, new course in environmental crime; Candace Gauthier, philosophy and religion, new course in media ethics; Joanne Halls, earth sciences, preparation for GIS training workshops for faculty and staff across the university; Rebecca Jones, chemistry, new lab manual for CMVI 103; Stephen Meinhold, political science, undergraduate and graduate courses in administrative law; John Myers, art and theatre, creation of a digital image database for art history courses; Terry Theodore, art and theatre, new course in film history; and David Weber, communication studies, design of case materials for inclusion in organizational communication courses.

FOCUS ON FACULTY AND STAFF

Submissions for this section are published in order received. Due to the volume of submissions, there can be a two- to three-week delay in publication. Your patience is appreciated.

Jimmy Reeves, chemistry, received $65,510 from the Department of Education for the project "Anytime, Anywhere Chemistry Experience."

Paul Shotsberger, mathematics and statistics, had the article "On the Importance of Being Pre-seasonal: Mathematics Education Reform as an Artifact of Generational Personalities" accepted for publication in the Journal of Mathematical Behavior. A pre-publication version of the paper can be viewed on-line at <http://www.uncwil.edu/people/shotsberger/generations.htm>.

David P. White, chemistry, received $25,000 from PRF/ACS for the project "Understanding Chiral Recognition Between Organometallic Transition Metal Complexes and Prochiral Unsaturated Species."

Mariela Shirley, psychology, gave three presentations at the annual meeting of the Association for Advancement of Behavior Therapy in Toronto, Ontario. UNCW graduate and undergraduate students and colleagues at the Centre for Addiction and Mental Health in Toronto and Charleston, S.C., were collaborators on these presentations. The presentations were "Psychiatric Symptoms, Substance Use and Pain: A Comparison of Fibromyalgia and Rheumatoid Arthritis Patients," by students Cynthia Hiltz and Darcy McMullin, Gary Fink and Shirley; "Antecedents of Alcohol and Drug Use: Gender and Psychological Distress" by Shirley, Sherrilyn Sklar, Helen Annis and student Lesley Goff; and "The Role of Psychiatric Severity in Substance Use and Relapse: Research in Progress" by students Amy Williams, Vicki Hallman, Kelli McAmis, Mary Holden, Jody Butler, Valerie Draughon, Meghan Campbell, Star Frei and Shirley.

Philip Gerard, creative writing, was the inaugural author for the Esther Frank Memorial Visiting Writer Program at Arizona State University. Frank, who died of pancreatic cancer a year ago, was a student of Gerard's at ASU. Frank's family established the memorial and invited Gerard to be the program's first guest.

John Bennett, HPER, is president of the North Carolina Alliance for Athletics, Health, Physical Education, Recreation and Dance. In addition, the group named him its College/University Physical Education Teacher of the Year.

Doug Kesling, NURC, was elected to the board of directors of the American Academy of Underwater Sciences for a two-year term. He was appointed to chair the membership and development committee.

OFFICIAL NOTICES

BOT Meetings

The quarterly committee meetings of the UNCW Board of Trustees will be held 9:30 a.m. Jan. 13 at the following locations: business affairs, University Union, Room 201; educational, personnel, policies and programs, Randall Library, Director's Conference Room; and external affairs, Randall Library, Special Collections. The Long Range Planning Committee will meet at noon in Wagoner Hall, Madeline Suite. The full board meeting will be at 2:30 p.m. Jan. 13 in Wagoner Hall, Madeline Suite.

Withholding Reminder

North Carolina requires the withholding of North Carolina income tax at the rate of 4 percent from personal services compensation to a nonresident individual or a nonresident entity (C or S corporation, partnership, or limited liability company (LLC)) for services performed in North Carolina. Withholding is required if the personal services provider is paid or is expected to be paid more than $1,500 during the calendar year. North Carolina income tax is not required to be withheld from compensation paid to a nonresident entity if the corporation or LLC has obtained a certificate of authority from the North Carolina Secretary of State. If the entity is a partnership, no tax is required to be withheld if the partnership has a permanent place of business in North Carolina.

Earned Income Credit

Employees who are eligible for the earned income credit (EIC) and would like to receive advance EIC payments must complete a new W-5 form for year 2000. For advance EIC payments to be effective with January paychecks, the W-5 must be submitted to payroll by 5 p.m. Jan. 14. To obtain a form contact the payroll office at ext. 3163.

Summer Orientation

Summer orientation will be held: May 16 for summer I, II and fall transfer students; June 4-5, 7-8, 11-12 14-15, 21-22 and Aug. 13-14 for freshmen and parents; June 19 for summer II and fall transfer students and Aug. 11 for transfer students. Direct questions to orientation at ext. 3089.

Air Travel

On Nov. 1, Allen Travel and In Travel, the university's contracted travel agencies, started charging a $10 handling fee for each airline transaction. This fee, higher in most cases, has become an industry standard for travel agencies. The university covered this charge for departments through Dec. 31.

Effective Jan. 1, each department is responsible for the handling charge when purchasing tickets through these agencies. The $10 charge will be quoted as part of the ticket cost. Also, individuals will have the option of purchasing airline tickets from sources other than the contracted agencies. For travelers who select this method, reimbursement will be made upon completion of travel and included as part of other travel expenses.

Direct questions regarding contractual commitments to Mary Forsythe, purchasing, at ext. 3154. For questions related to processing travel, contact Betty Mills at ext. 3149.

Staff Training

A Balanced Life Through Meditation and Mindfulness, noon to 1 p.m. Thursdays Jan. 13 through April 27.

Creating Web Pages Using Microsoft FrontPage, 9:30 to 11:30 a.m. Jan. 26.

Managing Your Schedule Using OnTime, 9:30 a.m. to 11:30 a.m. Jan. 12 and 2 to 4 p.m. Jan. 24.

Paint the Barn and Tune the Piano, 2 to 4 p.m. Jan. 25.

Refer to the Staff Training and Development Booklet for registration information or call ext. 3274. To register for computer workshops, call ext. 4357.

Welcome

Please welcome the following new employees: Ivan Castillo, university police; Sandra Drew, postal services; Bill Ferencak, Judith Nuttall, Lamont Montgomery and Rhondetta Thomas, physical plant; Joanne Ferguson, accounting; Peter MacLaren and Patricia Thompson, ITS; Lori Sumpter, Office of the Dean of Students.

In Memorial

Ann Lockledge

Dr. Ann Lockledge, a professor in the Watson School of Education Department of Curricular Studies, had a heart attack and died in her sleep Dec. 26.

Lockledge came to UNCW in 1987 and played a critical leadership role in the development of the elementary and middle school social studies program for the School of Education. A leader in state, national and international professional organizations, Lockledge was devoted to social studies and middle school education. She made valuable contributions to a number of important educational initiatives such as developing World Wide Web-based courses, collaborating with school system educators in teaching social studies and providing assistance to school system educators seeking National Board Certification.

A private memorial service was held in Detroit. In lieu of flowers, the family has requested that donations be made to the American Heart Association. Lockledge will be deeply missed by the university and school system educators.

Tibetan Monks to Perform Ancient Music and Sacred Dances

The mystical and ritual pageantry of Tibetan tradition comes to life as the lamas of the Drepung Loseling Monastery perform "Sacred Music and Sacred Dance for World Healing" at 8 p.m. Jan. 29 in Kenan Auditorium. This performance will feature elaborate costumes, masked dances, traditional instruments, unique multiphonic singing and traditional temple music. The concert is part of the UNCW Arts in Action Performing Arts Series presented by the Activities and Leadership Center.

The 1999-2000 Sacred Music Sacred Dance tour is dedicated to promoting world peace and healing and to sharing Tibet's ancient sacred arts with Western audiences. The tours, sponsored by Richard Gere Productions Inc. and The Loseling Institute, are endorsed by the Dalai Lama as a means of raising international awareness of the endangered Tibetan civilization.

Tibetan sacred music is most known in the West for its use of the multiphonic vocal technique. Renowned for this unique singing style, the Drepung Loseling monks simultaneously intone three notes of a chord by reshaping the muscles of the vocal chords to accord with the natural overtones of the voice. The performance incorporates traditional instruments such as 10-foot-long duchen trumpets, drums, bells, cymbals and gyaling horns. Rich brocade costumes and masked dances add to the exotic splendor.

The Drepung Monastery was established near Lhasa, Tibet, in 1416. It had four departments, of which Loseling, or "The Hermitage of the Radiant Mind," was the largest, housing more than three quarters of Drepung's 10,000 to 15,000 monks. Following the Chinese invasions of Tibet in 1959 and the forced closure and destruction of its 6,500 monasteries, some 250 monks from Loseling managed to escape the holocaust and rebuild their institution in southern India. The monastery now houses about 2,500 monks.

Tibetan monks have made several appearances in American productions to raise awareness for alleged human rights violations in Tibet. The music of the multiphonic singers of Drepung Loseling Monastery is the heart of the soundtrack of the motion picture Seven Years in Tibet, and the monks performed with composer Philip Glass at the premiere presentation of his Oscar-nominated score for Martin Scorsese's Kundun. Two of the group's five CDs have achieved top 10 status on U.S. music charts.

Tickets are $4 for UNCW students and children 12 and younger, $6 for UNCW faculty/staff and $12 for all others and can be purchased at the University Union, Information Desk or Kenan Auditorium box office.

UNCW Sponsors Second Annual Cape Fear International Film Festival

Films representing France, Italy, Germany and Spain will be shown during the second annual Cape Fear International Film Festival Jan. 27-30 at Thalian Hall.

The festival, sponsored by the UNCW Film Studies Program, Office of International Programs and Departments of Communication Studies and Foreign Languages and Literatures, will provide an opportunity to "expose Wilmington to a greater variety of films," said William Bolduc, professor of communication studies. The films were selected to represent languages taught at the university.

The films, The Best Man (Italian), The Inheritors (German), Marius and Jeannette (French) and Tango (Spanish), have English subtitles and will each air twice during the festival. Admission is free for UNCW students with ID and $5 for all others. For more information, contact David Weber at ext. 3396.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

The Cowboy Way

Richard W. Slatta, professor of history at NC State University, will lecture on "Comparative Frontier History in the Saddle" at 8 p.m. Jan. 19 in Cameron Hall Auditorium. This free public slide presentation, which is sponsored by the History Department, will center on cowboys and frontier life in North and Latin America.

Slatta is an award-winning author of four books on comparative history including Comparing Cowboys and Frontiers and Banditos: The Varieties of Latin American Banditry.

Following the lecture, there will be a reception with refreshments served.

Biological Sciences Seminar

Daniel Baden, CMSR, will present "What Is the Respiratory Irritant in the Air During Florida Red Tides?" at 2 p.m. Jan. 14 in Dobo Hall, Room 103.

Note of Appreciation

Mary Crookes, university events coordinator, and Patsy Lerrick, special events director, would like to thank university staff who volunteered to serve as commencement assistants Dec. 18. Assistants played a vital role in making commencement a memorable event for graduates and their families.

Film Series Seeks Moderators

The Leadership Film Series is seeking faculty or staff interested in moderating brief discussions about the leadership aspects of the films Life is Beautiful at 7:30 p.m. Feb. 18 and Elizabeth at 7 p.m. March 21. For more information, call Julie Owen at ext. 3797.

Applications Accepted for Student Media

The Student Media Board is accepting applications for student media managers for the 2000-2001 academic year. Candidates should have marketing ideas, leadership skills and a dedication to responsible, high-quality programming. Experience to the respective medium is helpful. Positions are available at the Seahawk newspaper, WLOZ radio station and Atlantis, the literary-art journal. Faculty and staff should encourage interested students to complete applications by Jan. 26. Applications and job descriptions are available at the Office of the Dean of Students, University Union, Room 209; the Seahawk, University Union, Room 205; WLOZ, University Union, Room 212; and the academic offices of the Departments of Art and Theatre, English and Communication Studies. The Education Lab will offer tutoring for children grades K-9, in reading/language arts, math and special needs from Jan. 24 through April 14. For more information, call ext. 3633.

FOCUS ON FACULTY AND STAFF

Submissions for this section are published in order received. Due to the volume of submissions, there can be a two- to three-week delay in publication. Your patience is appreciated.

Perri Bomar, nursing, received $92,252 from the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services to fund the Rural and Urban Family Nurse Practitioner Program.

Andy Shepard, NURC, is participating in the four-month strategic planning process for 2002 at the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration in Washington, D.C. He will aid in the development of new initiatives to explore and study marine resources and the creation of a national database of undersea research products and accomplishments.

David Gill, specialty studies, had the article "To the Lighthouse: The Trouble with Full-Steam Ahead Education Reform" published in American School Board Journal.

Joseph Pawlik, biological sciences, had the paper "Antimicrobial Activity of Caribbean Sponge Extracts" published in Aquatic Microbial Ecology. The first author on the paper, Rochelle Newbold, was a UNCW undergraduate student in Pawlik's lab. She is at Duke University pursuing a graduate degree.

D. Ann Pabst, William McLellan and Laela Sayigh, biological sciences and CMSR, attended the 13th biennial Conference on the Biology of Marine Mammals in Maui, Hawaii. Pabst delivered the opening plenary address, and Sayigh and graduate student Mandy Hill presented invited symposium talks. McLellan and graduate students Jonna Hamilton, Erin Nill and Vicki Stegall presented talks on their research. Graduate students Debbie Koster, Erin Meagher and Suzanne Zvalaren (Chemistry) presented posters. UNCW faculty and students were authors on more than 15 presentations at the meetings.

Michael Durako, biological sciences and CMSR, was interviewed for a series of radio programs dealing with recent changes in Florida Bay and the effects of last year's hurricanes on the Florida Bay ecosystem. The programs were broadcast on Florida public radio stations during the week of Dec. 27. Interview scripts and streaming RealAudio are available on the Florida Environment radio program website at <http://www.floridaenvironment.com>.

Alessandro Bocconcini, CMSR, received $6,088 from Cornell University for the project "Advanced Analytical Sonic Boom Underwater Propagation Analysis."

BOG Names Jordan Vice Chancellor for Business Affairs

The UNC Board of Governors at its meeting in Wilmington Friday named Timothy A. Jordan vice chancellor for business affairs at UNC Wilmington, effective July 1.

Jordan

Jordan, currently associate vice chancellor for business affairs, will succeed R. O. Walton, Jr. who is retiring June 30.

"Tim has had significant responsibility for the fact that

UNC Wilmington hasn't had an audit exception in 13 years, quite an enviable and unprecedented record," said Chancellor James R. Leutze. "I have great confidence in Tim based on his knowledge of university personnel and internal workings and his great devotion to UNCW.

"Even though we will miss Bob Walton when he retires, Tim's hiring will minimize disruption and provide a smooth transition. I'm also pleased that in this case we were able to recommend an internal promotion to the Board of Governors," he said.

Leutze went on to note the "magnificent job Bob has done" in developing the campus, managing the growth and construction of buildings and the growth in the budget. "Anyone who looks at our buildings and grounds is impressed," he said, "and add to that our exceptional audit trail. Bob has done a tremendous job. He will be sorely missed."

A member of the last graduating class of Wilmington College in 1969 with a bachelor's degree in accounting, Jordan was hired at UNCW by the late James A. Price, Jr. as the first professional accountant ever employed at the university. Subsequently, he went to East Carolina University where he earned the master of business administration, then taught two years at Coastal Carolina Community College in Jacksonville. He was rehired at UNCW in August 1973 as director of accounting.

The university's budget in 1973 was $3 million; today it is $130 million. Jordan's first accounting staff numbered seven. Today, he supervises a staff of 55 including accounting, the budget office and financial systems. Jordan considers his greatest achievement was establishing the university's accounting structure that eventually influenced accounting structures at other state universities.

"I am also really proud of the creative approach we've taken to budgeting," Jordan said. "We have always tried to give individual budget managers as much flexibility as possible while remaining within state guidelines."

A native of Kelly, N.C., he is married to Beth Russ Jordan, and they have two daughters, Susan Elizabeth and Laura Ellen.

UNCW Celebrates Black History Month

Mohammed

Lectures featuring an Islamic leader and a New York Times reporter as well as two musical performances are part of UNCW's Black History Month celebration.

Warith Deen Mohammed, son of the late Elijah Mohammed and leader of the Muslim American Society, will speak at 7 p.m. Feb. 1 in Kenan Auditorium. Mohammed has lectured at UNC Chapel Hill and Yale University and has advised President Bill Clinton on Islamic affairs. This free lecture is sponsored by the Department of Philosophy and Religion and the Tauheed Islamic Center. Tickets must be reserved at the auditorium box office.

The a cappella group Persuasions will perform at 8 p.m. Feb. 3 in Kenan Auditorium. The group, which formed in Brooklyn, N.Y., in 1962, influenced artists such as Boyz II Men and Bobby McFerrin. Known for performing R&B, soul, gospel and classic rock and roll songs, the Persuasions have recorded more than 10 albums and provided back-up vocals for Bette Midler, Paul Simon and Stevie Wonder. General admission is $10. Faculty, staff and students will be admitted free with valid ID. This concert is sponsored by the Office of Minority Affairs.

Brent Staples, who writes on education, politics and culture for The New York Times, will discuss his memoir Parallel Time: Growing Up in Black and White at 7 p.m. Feb. 7 in the Warwick Center Ballroom. Staples' lecture will focus on his experiences growing up in a mostly black factory town and attending a predominantly white university. He earned a bachelor's degree in behavioral science from Widener University in Chester, Pa., and a master's degree and Ph.D. in psychology from the University of Chicago. This free lecture is sponsored by the Division of Student Affairs and the Leadership Center.

Gala 2000: A Celebration of African-American Music will be held at 8 p.m. Feb. 11 in Kenan Auditorium. Featured performers include Melva Houston, Marva Mapson-Robison, George Miles, Jr. and Patricia Duren Waddell. Steven Errante, music, will conduct. Performances will include spirituals, R&B, jazz, classical and gospel selections. Reserved tickets are $25 which includes a post-concert reception or $15 for the concert only and are on sale at the auditorium box office. This concert is sponsored by Links Inc., Wilmington Symphony Orchestra, the Music Department and the Office of Minority Affairs.

Brenner Awarded NEA Fellowship

Brenner

Wendy Brenner, assistant professor in the Creative Writing Department, received a Creative Writing Fellowship in Prose from the National Endowment for the Arts. Brenner is one of only 35 recipients of this national award which entitles her to a $20,000 prize.

"This award is a vote of support from fellow writers in my field," said Brenner. "I am excited to receive national recognition for my work." She said the fellowship will allow her to devote more time to writing, and she hopes to complete her second collection of short stories, Soon It Will Work Everywhere, this summer.

Brenner's first collection of short stories, Large Animals in Everyday Life, won the Flannery O'Connor Award from the University of Georgia Press in 1996.

Since 1967 the NEA has awarded more than $35 million to more than 2,300 authors. Past NEA fellowship recipients include William Kennedy author of Ironweed and Alice Walker who wrote The Color Purple. The NEA received 908 applications from writers in all 50 states, the District of Columbia, Puerto Rico as well as Americans living abroad. Brenner, along with the other 34 fellowship winners in fiction and creative nonfiction, were selected by a nationwide panel of writers and others involved in artistic and cultural endeavors.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Ethiopian Filmmaker to Lecture

Haile Gerima will lecture on his film Sankofa at 7 p.m. Jan. 28 in Cameron Hall Auditorium.

Written, directed and produced by the Ethiopian-born filmmaker, Sankofa, which is about Maafa, the African Holocaust, is an Akan word which means "return to the past to go forward."

The movie centers on the experiences of a young model who re-lives her past in a unique way. After opening the 43rd International Film Festival in Berlin in 1993, Sankofa won top honors at a film competition in Milan, Italy.

Gerima was born in Gondor, Ethiopia, in 1946 and came to the United States in 1967. He earned his Master of Fine Arts from UCLA in 1976. A tenured professor of film at Howard University, Gerima has received the Rockefeller Award and a Guggenheim Fellowship.

General admission is $5 in advance and $7 at the door. Faculty, staff and students will be admitted free with valid ID.

UNCW Opens 24-Hour Computer Lab

UNCW students who need computer access whether at midnight or 5 a.m. can take advantage of the university's 24-hour computer lab in Randall Library.

The lab, administered by the Division for Information Technology Systems, has more than 50 work stations, as well as approximately 20 wireless IBM laptop computers.

According to Robert Tyndall, vice chancellor for information and technology systems, the lab is a way to improve students' access to technology and emphasizes the chancellor's, as well as the university's, commitment to provide students with the technical skills which may be necessary for their course of study and in preparation for their career goals.

Physics Colloquiums

Larry H. Toburen, director of graduate studies in physics at East Carolina University, will present "Physics Research at East Carolina University" at 2 p.m. Jan. 28, and Henry Greenside, professor of physics, Duke University, will lecture on "Spatiotemporal Chaos" at 2 p.m. Feb. 4. Both lectures will be held in DeLoach Hall, Room 212. Refreshments will be served at 1:45 p.m.

Bookstore Valentine's Day Special

The university bookstore is offering the following special for Valentine's Day: one Mylar Valentine balloon, two latex balloons and two ounces of Jelly Bellys for $2.14.

Auburn Professor to Lecture

Charles C. Lindner, professor in the Discrete and Statistical Sciences Department at Auburn University, will present "Everything You Wanted to Know About Hamming Codes" at 3 p.m. Feb. 9 and "What is Public Key Cryptography?" at 3:30 p.m. Feb. 10. Both lectures will be in Bear Hall, Room 106. An expert in combinatorial designs, Lindner has written more than 150 journal articles. The lectures are sponsored by the Departments of Mathematics and Statistics and Computer Science.

Career Services Extends Hours

Career services will be open from 5 to 7 p.m. Mondays through April 24. Staff will be on duty for career and employment questions. In addition, the career resource library and computer exploration stations will be available. Individual appointments are available during the week with drop-in services available on Monday evenings.

UNCW Featured in Coastwatch

The National Undersea Research Center at UNCW and four professors were featured in the 1999 holiday edition of Coastwatch, a publication of the North Carolina Sea Grant College Program.

NURC/UNCW was featured for its partnership with the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration to collect artifacts from the Monitor, a Civil War vessel which sank 16 miles off Cape Hatteras.

Lawrence Cahoon, Mike Mallin and Martin Posey, biological sciences and CMS, were featured in the article "Downriver Scientists Assess Post-Floyd Water Quality." Article illustrations included photographs of Alessandro Bocconcini, CMS, and graduate student Jason Hales.

William Cleary was featured in the article "Dynamic Inlets: The Changing Shape of North Carolina's Coastline." The article includes photographs from his book Shifting Shoresides: A Pictorial Atlas of North Carolina Inlets co-authored by graduate student Tara Marden.

Blood Drive

As part of homecoming week festivities, the Association for Campus Entertainment will sponsor the "Gift from the Heart" blood drive competition. The American Red Cross will accept donations from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Feb. 1 in the Warwick Center Ballroom. For more information, call ext. 7601 or 3842.

Chemistry Symposium

The fourth annual UNCW Symposium on Chemistry and Biochemistry will be held Jan. 28 and 29 in Dobo Hall. The two-day event includes lectures by 11 chemists and biochemists as well as poster presentations. Speakers include Dudley Herron, distinguished visiting professor of chemistry at UNCW, and Paul Kelter, the Marie Foscue Rourk Professor of Chemistry at UNC Greensboro. For more information, call Ned Martin at ext. 3453.

Get into Swing

George Gee and his Make-Believe Ballroom Orchestra and swing dance extravaganza will perform at 8 p.m. Feb. 2 at Thalian Hall. The concert is presented by Thalian Hall in partnership with the UNCW Arts in Action Performing Arts Series.

Gee's Manhattan swing band, big band vocalists and team of championship swing dancers offer renditions of big band era classics while keeping in step with today's youthful re-infatuation with swing dancing.

Tickets range from $14 to $22 and can be purchased by calling the Thalian Hall box office at 324-3664. UNCW students, faculty and staff and Arts in Action season ticket holders receive a 10 percent discount.

Seahawk Social

The UNCW Alumni Association, which is celebrating its 30th anniversary this year, will host a "Chicken Pick'n Night" pre-game social from 5:30 to 7 p.m. Jan. 29 in the University Union, Hawk's Nest, prior to the men's basketball game against American.

"Faculty and staff are encouraged to attend," said Patricia Smith, executive director UNCW alumni relations. "It's a great opportunity to see former students and their families."

For cost and reservations, call ext. 2682.

Library Drop-in Clinics

Randall Library will hold drop-in clinics from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Fridays through the end of the semester. Librarians will be available to answer questions, assist with research problems and help search the Internet and library databases and catalogs. For more information, call Donna Gunter at ext. 3688.

FOCUS ON FACULTY AND STAFF

Perri Bomar, nursing, received $92,252 from the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services to fund the Rural and Urban Family Nurse Practitioner Program.

Andy Shepard, NURC, is participating in the four-month strategic planning process for 2002 at the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration in Washington, D.C. He will aid in the development of new initiatives to explore and study marine resources and the creation of a national database of undersea research products and accomplishments.

David Gill, specialty studies, had the article "To the Lighthouse: The Trouble with Full-Steam Ahead Education Reform" published in American School Board Journal.

Joseph Pawlik, biological sciences, had the paper "Antimicrobial Activity of Caribbean Sponge Extracts" published in Aquatic Microbial Ecology. The first author on the paper, Rochelle Newbold, was a UNCW undergraduate student in Pawlik's lab. She is at Duke University pursuing a graduate degree.

D. Ann Pabst, William McLellan and Laela Sayigh, biological sciences and CMS, attended the 13th biennial Conference on the Biology of Marine Mammals in Maui, Hawaii. Pabst delivered the opening plenary address. Sayigh and graduate student Mandy Hill presented invited symposium talks. McLellan and graduate students Jonna Hamilton, Erin Nill and Vicki Stegall presented talks on their research. Graduate students Debbie Koster, Erin Meagher and Suzanne Zvalanen (chemistry) presented posters. UNCW faculty and students were authors on more than 15 presentations at the meetings.

Michael Durako, biological sciences and CMS, was interviewed for a series of radio programs dealing with recent changes in Florida Bay and the effects of last year's hurricanes on the Florida Bay ecosystem. The programs were broadcast on Florida public radio stations during the week of Dec. 27. Interview scripts and streaming RealAudio are available on the Florida Environment radio program website at <http://www.floridaenvironment.com>.

Joseph Pawlik, biological sciences, had the paper "Chemical Defense of the Caribbean Reef Sponge Axinella corrugata Against Predatory Fishes" published in the Journal of Chemical Ecology. The paper's co-authors were Dean Wilson, Monica Puyana and William Fenical from Scripps Institution of Oceanography, University of California-San Diego.

STAFF PROFILE: KATE TEMONEY

Enhancing the Experience for Non-trad and Commuter Students

By Phillip Brown

For non-traditional students, those who didn't enroll within a year of high school graduation, pursuing a college education can be a challenge, said Kate Temoney, coordinator of the Seahawk Perch.

"Many of these students are either married, divorced, retired, serving in the armed forces or caring for a dependent child or adult," said Temoney. The Seahawk Perch opened in 1998 as the Commuter and Non-traditional Student Services Center, and Temoney was hired in August to provide on-going programming and develop an array of other services for non-traditional and commuter students.

"Commuter and non-traditional students live off campus and travel each day for classes and special events," said Temoney. "While the majority live within close proximity to campus, some students travel an hour or more to attend UNCW. Often, they miss out on many aspects of the traditional college experience."

Located in the University Union, Room 101, the "perch" includes a lounge and referrals for child care, off-campus housing and transportation needs. Established by the Office of the Dean of Students, the center provides a place where non-traditional and commuter students can connect to the campus. Temoney said her goal for the Seahawk Perch is to be responsive to the needs of these students.

"The university realizes that non-traditional students face different circumstances than students who live on campus," said Temoney. "The Seahawk Perch is a valuable resource to help enhance students' collegiate experience. In addition, faculty and staff can take advantage of our services, especially staff members taking classes."

Since its grand reopening in August, more than 1,200 students have attended Seahawk Perch events including a non-traditional student mixer, computer training and sessions on bicycle and car maintenance. In addition, the center sponsors a monthly commuter coffee break and invites representatives of a university office or department for an informal question-and-answer session with students.

"The coffee breaks are especially popular with non-traditional students," said Temoney. "Many non-traditional students have told us they were intimidated by navigating through the university system. Being able to interact with various university offices and departments has helped them become more comfortable in the process. This is an important step in helping improve their educational experience."

Future programs and events include an honorary society for non-traditional students, ride boards and The Children's Story Adventures Reading Program, said Temoney. The reading program will be held from 3:30 to 4:15 p.m. Monday and Tuesday during the spring semester in Randall Library's juvenile literature section. Kimberley Barker, outreach/reference librarian, assisted in planning the program, said Temoney.

"Faculty, staff and student volunteers will read stories for children of employees and students," said Temoney. "There will be two sessions for children ages three to five and six to 10." She said the program, which starts next week, was planned to promote a child-friendly campus and provide a learning opportunity for kids.

Temoney is also active with off-campus organizations. She meets with area apartment complex managers, serves on the executive board of the Wilmington Apartment Association and coordinates the Community Development Assistant (CDA), a pilot program sponsored by the Student Affairs Division.

"Housing is often at the forefront of students' concerns," Temoney said. "By being aware of the concerns and issues students face, such as difficulty finding roommates or dealing with rental management, the Seahawk Perch can provide suggestions to seek resolution to these problems. The CDA program will involve students who live in surrounding apartment complexes. They will work as liaisons with fellow student tenants providing support and programs designed to create a stronger connection to the university."

Temoney said faculty and staff should also consider the following issues confronting non-traditional students: difficulty in returning to campus and fears concerning safety while traveling. These students are often insecure about returning to school after long absences and may feel out of place among traditional-aged college students, said Temoney. They often require flexibility in scheduling to accommodate children or spouses.

Temoney said faculty and staff should refer students who might find Seahawk Perch programs beneficial. "A student who needs support or just a place to call his or her home away from home can take advantage of the center."

Prior to joining UNCW, Temoney worked at Duke University as the on-site coordinator for the Talent Identification Program, which administers summer educational programs for qualified students in grades seven through 11. As on-site coordinator at Davidson College, Temoney managed a staff of 40 and programming for 165 children. She holds a bachelor of arts degree in religion and psychology from Wake Forest University and a master's degree in higher education administration from the College of William and Mary, where she has been accepted into its doctoral program in higher education administration.

Faculty/Staff Art Show

Randall Library will host the exhibit "Artists in Your Midst: Showcasing UNCW Staff and Faculty Art" from Feb. 7-29. Entrants can submit up to four items for the exhibit including drawings, watercolors, oils, photographs and ceramics. The deadline for submissions is Jan. 28. For more information, contact Beth Roberts at ext. 3270 or Sherman Hayes at ext. 3271.

FACULTY PROFILE:

Huber Teaches the Awe and Wonder of Science

By Phillip Brown

Richard Huber believes that to teach science is to instill a passion for discovery and inquiry. It's also an awesome responsibility, said Huber, one of three recipients of distinguished teaching professorships awarded at fall 1999 convocation.

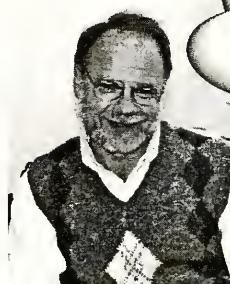

"There is a misconception about how to teach science at the elementary and middle school levels," the associate professor of curricular studies in the Watson School of Education said. "We need to help kids learn to ask questions. It is that search for answers which fosters the desire to learn more about science. For example, it is not enough for students to know the names of clouds. They must be curious about clouds and be encouraged to wonder aloud about clouds. Why are some clouds like cotton, while others are dark and flat on one side? If clouds weigh thousands of tons each, how do they stay up in the air?"

It is this sense of "wonder and awe" about nature, the environment and the world in which we live that Huber wants future teachers in his elementary and middle school science methods classes to learn to communicate.

"To know that the students I teach here at UNCW will go on to teach hundreds and thousands of students during their careers is staggering," said Huber. "With the world's population doubling every 40 years and the world's resources being depleted at an alarming rate, it becomes critical that we have a well-educated and thoughtful citizenry with a deep understanding of science and environmental issues. Science teachers are vital in imparting the wisdom and skills to address these difficult and complex issues."

Huber joined UNCW in 1989. A graduate of Wartburg College in Waverly, Iowa, he earned bachelor's degrees in biology and chemistry. His master's and doctoral degrees in science education are from the University of Iowa.

While Huber is unsure about why he was singled out for recognition, he speculated that it is because his students "appreciate and value what I share with them. I'm passionate about my love for science, particularly the environment. I'm committed to teaching my students how to get kids involved in learning."

A key to Huber's success has been his 18 years of experience in the public school system. "There is no substitute for knowing what it is you are teaching."

Huber said many of his students enter his classroom with reluctance. "Some students have struggled with science in the past and have not met with success. My goal is to change that attitude and teach hands-on science techniques they can use with young people and achieve positive results."

That desire to create a hands-on learning experience which actively involves children was behind Huber's development of the Students as Scientists Project.

Funded by Glaxo Corporation, the three-year summer program instructs participating middle school teachers how to conduct water quality testing and post information on the Internet. During the school year, teachers, using kits provided by the grant, have students collect and analyze water samples. Data from each region across the state is submitted to Huber who posts the results on the Students as Scientists Web site.

"The project was designed to create a community of scholars," said Huber.

"We wanted students to approach the assignments as real scientists — collecting original data and sharing and discussing that data with colleagues."

Students as Scientists and similar experiments repudiate the belief that science is memorization of terms from a textbook, which is an unfortunate impression many kids have experienced, said Huber. Instead these activities illustrate that science is an active, engaging process.

While stressing to his students the need to teach the discovery aspect of science, Huber said he does not want to de-emphasize the importance of science content.

"I want to reiterate that there is no substitute for knowing the subject which you teach," said Huber. "Outstanding science teachers are life-long learners. They surround themselves with books and things such as telescopes, butterfly nets and charts. These teachers are at museums, aquariums, state parks and beaches questioning, probing and learning. It is my hope that I can reintroduce students to the joy and satisfaction of exploring and investigating their natural world so that they too can be happiest sharing science with others."

UNCW Athletic Hall of Fame to Induct Four New Members

Three standouts from the school's tradition-rich baseball program and one of the early pioneers of Seahawk basketball will be inducted in the third class of the UNC Wilmington Athletic Hall of Fame at a luncheon ceremony Feb. 26 in the Warwick Center Ballroom.

Joel Gibson, Bill Haywood, Jay Neary and David Sandlin will join 11 other individuals enshrined in the school's hall. Tickets for the luncheon are $10 and are available at the UNCW Athletic Ticket Office and Seahawk Club Office in Trask Coliseum.

"We are certainly pleased to honor these outstanding contributors to the program," said Peg Bradley-Doppes, UNCW's athletic director.

"They enjoyed terrific careers at this institution and are wonderful representatives of the program in their respective communities."

Gibson, a native of Gastonia, attended Frank L. Ashley High School before moving on to Wilmington College, where he put together two excellent seasons as a right-handed pitcher for the Seahawks. In 1958, he posted an unblemished 6-0 record, with six complete games, and followed that up by going 7-4 in 1959. He transferred to N.C. State where he tossed a no-hitter in his first appearance and went 14-6 for the Wolfpack, earning team MVP and All-Atlantic Coast Conference honors both seasons.

Gibson, who lives in Wilmington, became the first Seahawk to sign a professional contract and have a baseball card, according to his coach, William J. "Bill" Brooks.

Haywood, who enrolled at Wilmington College at age 23 after serving in the U.S. Marine Corps, was a starting pitcher for Wilmington College's 1961 national championship team and 1962 national runner-up squad. He posted a combined record of 17-3 during two seasons and transferred to UNC Chapel Hill, where he closed out his collegiate career by starting both seasons for the Tar Heels, going 10-0 in 1964 and winning team MVP honors on an ACC championship squad.

After signing a contract with the Washington Senators at age 27, Haywood reached the major leagues four years later. Following a brief playing career, he served as head baseball coach at Western Carolina University from 1969-81 and then as manager with Chattanooga of the Southern League in 1983. Seventeen of Haywood's players at WCU signed continued on Page 3

Alumni to Celebrate Homecoming 2000

UNCW Alumni Association continues its 30th anniversary celebration on Feb. 5 with Homecoming 2000. Alumni and guests are invited to participate in the following events:

- 5-K Homecoming Run - 9 a.m. Early bird registration is $12; registration is $14 on race day. Call ext. 3261 for more information or log on the World Wide Web at <http://www.uncwil.edu/stuaff/camprec/spevents/index.htm>.
- Welcome Home Brunch - 10:30 a.m. Wise Alumni House, 1713 Market Street. There is no charge, but reservations are requested and should be made by Feb. 3.
- Campus Tour - 11:45 a.m. Participants will meet in Trask Coliseum lobby for a 45-minute tour of the UNCW campus.
- Pregame Social - Alumni and friends will gather at 4 p.m. in the Hawk's Nest for "Catfish Night" to eat and drink and share the Seahawk Spirit. Special recognition will be given to alumni from Pi Kappa Phi and Phi Mu. Door prizes will be awarded, and a 50/50 raffle will be held. General admission is $10 a person and reservations should be made by Feb. 3.
- UNCW Seahawks vs. Old Dominion Monarchs - The Seahawks take on the Monarchs at 6 p.m. in Trask Coliseum. Tickets are $10 for adults and can be obtained by calling ext. 3233.
- 30th Anniversary Homecoming Dance - The homecoming celebration climaxes at 9 p.m. when alumni and friends gather at the new Wilmington Hilton Cape Fear Ballroom for the dance featuring the Band of Oz. Heavy hors d'oeuvres and a cash bar will be available. Door prizes will be awarded. Tickets are $15 and should be obtained in advance at Wise Alumni House by calling ext. 2682.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Center Name Change

The UNCW Board of Trustees approved changing the name of the UNCW Center for Marine Science Research to UNCW Center for Marine Science. Its address is One Marvin K. Moss Lane, Wilmington, N.C. 28409. Until maps can be updated to reflect this previously unnamed road, the address should include "at 5001 Masonboro Loop Road."

Center Open House

The Center for Marine Science will hold an open house for faculty and staff March 24. On March 26, the community will be invited to tour the facility. Details will be published in a future issue of the Campus Communique.

Style Change

To standardize the use of the words SEAWEB and SEALINE, the correct presentation in all print and World Wide Web publications is to use them as one word and all capitals.

Friends of UNCW Seeks Grant Proposals

Friends of UNCW will accept grant proposals through Feb. 25 for departmental projects which do not require substantial funding.

Founded in 1963 to assist in the accreditation of Wilmington College, Friends of UNCW supports and promotes educational, scientific and charitable projects on behalf of the university. For a proposal form, contact Gennie Beatty at ext. 3751.

Wilderness First Aid

The Discover Outdoor Center will host an advanced wilderness first aid certification course March 9-12. Instructors will be from the Stonehearth Outdoor Learning Opportunities, a nationally recognized trainer of outdoor educators, park rangers, recreation leaders and camp counselors. The cost is $175 for faculty, staff and students, $200 for all others. For more information, call ext. 4052.

Black History Month Events

"A Tribute to an Alpha: Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr." will be displayed from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. through Feb. 28 in the Upperman African-American Cultural Center.

"Greek Life: Fact or Fiction," a discussion about fraternity and sorority life on campus, will be held at 7 p.m. Feb. 15 in the Upperman Center.

"Affirmative Action: Friend or Foe," a discussion and video about an affirmative action program designed at Alabama State University, will be presented at noon Feb. 16 in the Upperman Center.

"Singin' Through the Struggle," songs and spirituals depicting the African-American experience, will be performed from noon to 1:15 p.m. University Union, Hawk's Nest Union Station.

"Look Where He Brought Me From: The African-American Woman From Past to Present," a discussion of six major time periods, will be held from 7 to 9 p.m. Feb. 22 in the Upperman Center.

All events are free and open to the public.

Computer Science Seminars

The Computer Science Department will sponsor the following research talks:

- "Literate Programming with WebBOX," by Shereef Abu Al-Mati from the Kuwait Institute for Scientific Research at 3:30 p.m. Feb. 4 in Bear Hall, Room 165.

- "Habitat, Communication and Cooperative Strategies" by Kyle Wagner, University of Indiana-Bloomington, at 3 p.m. Feb. 7 in Bear Hall, Room 160.

- "Specification-based Testing of Concurrent Programs" by Richard H. Carver, George Mason University, at 11 a.m. Feb. 10 in Bear Hall, Room 281.

Biological Sciences Seminar

Michael McCartney, biological sciences, will present "A Caribbean Coral Reef Fish Species Flock" at 2 p.m. Feb. 4 in Dobo Hall, Room 103.

Film Studies Update

Sue Richardson, assistant professor of English, is academic program coordinator of film studies. She will assist with the development and administration of the academic program and serve as the initial point of contact for the program. In addition, film studies has added the Wilmington Regional Film Commission and Joe Dunton and Company as intern sites.

Physics, Biology and the Brain

Peter Beckmann, professor of physics at Bryn Mawr College and chemistry and biochemistry at the University of Delaware, will present "Physics, Biology, Your Brain and Everything Else" at 8 p.m. Feb. 10 in King Hall Auditorium.

An expert on the study of structure and motion in solids at the atomic and molecular level, Beckmann received his bachelor's, master's and doctoral degrees from the University of British Columbia. He joined the Physics Department at Bryn Mawr College in 1977. In 1996, he also became a research professor at the University of Delaware in Newark.

Beckmann will also lecture on "Physics: The Art of Storytelling" at 2 p.m. Feb. 11 in DeLoach Hall, Room 212.

Both lectures, which are free and open to the public, are sponsored by the Department of Physics and Physical Oceanography.

Weight Watchers

An "At Work Weight Watchers Series" will be held from noon to 1 p.m. Wednesdays in the Warwick Center, Room 104 starting Feb. 9. The cost is $164 for the 16-week program. For more information, call wellness services at ext. 4137.

Art Exhibit

Artwork contributed for Atlantis will be displayed through Feb. 25 on the second floor of Randall Library. A reception honoring artists who submitted entries will be at 7 p.m. Feb. 9 at the exhibit.

ofessional contracts and two reached big leagues.

Haywood continued his ascent on the pro level when he was named assistant director of player development and coordinator of player instruction for the Seattle Mariners.

He took over as director of player development from 1985-87.

Today, Haywood is head baseball coach at Georgia Southwestern State University in Americus, Ga. He was named the Georgia-Alabama-Carolina Conference Coach of the Year last season and was selected by the Atlanta Scout Club as NAIA Baseball Coach-of-the-Year. Overall, Haywood has won 8 games as a head coach on the collegiate level.

Neary, meanwhile, was one of the hawk program's top shooting guards in its early basketball days. He started his career at UNC Chapel Hill and the Tar Heel freshman squad in 1969 before transferring to UNC Wilmington. In three seasons, he scored 613 points and was drafted by the ABA's New York Knicks in his junior year and by the St. Louis Hawks after the senior season.

The agile big man, who ranks second on UNCW's all-time scoring list behind Brian Rowsom, played six years in the Eastern Basketball League, winning four championships and making the circuit's All-Star team three times.

Neary then entered the corporate world where he started off as a broker with a wholesale brokerage house and became vice president of that firm for 10 years. Neary moved to Toronto, Canada, and became chief operating officer of a brokerage house in the Canadian government market.

Neary, who completed his master's degree in education from Texas Tech, is currently completing his terminal degree at Oklahoma State. He is center director of the Tulsa (Okla.) YWCA and assists Jerry Finbinner and the Oral Roberts women's basketball team.

Sandlin was a versatile pitcher and outfielder for the Seahawks from 1970-73 and was one of the NAIA District 29's most talented players during that four-year span. He was named first-team All-District 29 all four years and led the Seahawks to a combined 114-38 record in four seasons.

Among the school's all-time career leaders in several categories, Sandlin ranks fifth in batting average (.334), eighth in doubles (31), seventh in runs batted in (109), 11th in hits (171) and 11th in total bases (240). As a position player, he led the team in batting and hits for three years and paced the club in RBI's all four seasons.

On the mound, Sandlin was just as dominating. He ranks fifth in career victories and second in career strikeouts and put together a remarkable season in 1970. He carved out a 6-0 record that season and did not allow an earned run in 49 innings, leading the nation in that category.

Sandlin was drafted in the 21st round by the St. Louis Cardinals and was the All-Star Game MVP in the Gulf Coast Rookie League.

Sandlin is vice president of financial services with Wachovia Corporation in Greensboro.

FOCUS ON FACULTY AND STAFF

Submissions for this section are published in order received. Due to the volume of submissions, there can be a two- to three-week delay in publication. Your patience is appreciated.

Daniel Baden, CMS, received $62,343 from the University of Maryland for the project "Identification of Toxins Produced by Pfiesteria piscicida and Other Di-noflagellates."

Alessandro Bocconcini, CMS, received $6,088 from Cornell University for the project "Advanced Analytical Sonic Boom Underwater Propagation Analysis."

Ami Wilbur, biological sciences, received $35,035 from the Florida Marine Research Institute for the project "Development and Application of Genetic Tags as Tools for the Assessment of Bay Scallop Enhancement."

Larry Cahoon, biological sciences, received $10,000 from UNC SeaGrant to fund shiptime costs to sample the Cape Fear River estuary and river plume in response to Hurricane Floyd flooding.

Karen Shafer, SMEC, received $19,448 from the N.C. School of Science and Mathematics for the project "K-8 Content-based Internet Instructional Activities."

Virginia Adams, nursing, received $6,400 from Coastal AHEC for AHEC site development.

Susan Lovelace, CMS, received $49,500 from the N.C. Department of Environment and Natural Resources Division of Coastal Management for presentation of three coastal decision-maker workshops, coordination of the national Estuary-Net Project, revision of reserve bird lists and purchase of a boat for the NCNERR educational office in Beaufort.

Richard Laws, earth science, received $10,699 from JOI/USSSP for the project "Upper Miocene to Quaternary Diatom Biostratigraphy and Paleoceanography of Site 1149, ODP Leg 185."

Karen Shafer, SMEC, and Jack Hall, environmental studies, received $1,250 from the Mathematics and Science Education Network for the 1999-2000 Earth Science Workshop.

Robert Y. George, biological sciences, had the paper "Biological Impact of the Gulf Stream on Coastal Marine Ecosystems: Are There Seasonal and Climatological Signatures" published in the Bulletin of the Association of the Southeastern Biologists. This paper is one several in the proceedings of the Coastal Ecology Symposium edited by Michael Durako, biological sciences, and George.

Degree Audit Training Sessions

Computer training sessions on the ON-COURSE degree audit and advising system will be held at 3:30 p.m. Feb. 24 and 8:30 a.m. and 1:30 and 3 p.m. Feb. 25 in Hoggard Hall, Room 226. These are introductory sessions on the SIS and ON-COURSE system designed for any interested faculty member. To register, call Becky Fancher at ext. 3036 or e-mail fancherr.

UNCW Benefits 2000

Benefits! What benefits? Do you want to know more about the benefits of working at UNCW? Find out at the UNCW Benefits 2000 Fair from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. April 19 in the Warwick Center Ballroom. Sponsored by human resources, the event will provide information and advice regarding the array of state and private benefits available to employees through the university. For more information, contact James Taylor at ext. 3160.

Chancellor's Achievement Awards Reception

The Chancellor's Achievement Awards reception will be held from 2 to 3 p.m. Feb. 4 in the Warwick Center Ballroom. The campus community is invited to attend this reception which honors students who received all "A's" while carrying a minimum of 15 credit hours for the fall 1999 semester.

This Week on UNCW-TV

Program highlights on UNCW-TV this week include a rebroadcast of the December 1999 commencement address at noon Feb. 7 and the lecture "Wilmington's Role in the Revolutionary War," a lecture by Chancellor James R. Leutze at 3 p.m. Feb. 8. For a complete UNCW-TV program guide visit the World Wide Web address <http://www.uncwil.edu/uniadv/relations/uncwtv.html>.

21054 Career Develop. Counselor Feb. 25
20165 Applications Liaison Feb. 4

Call the Jobline at ext. 3791 or visit HR's World Wide Web site for additional information or to download the state application.

Young and Restless

"The Young and the Restless: Young People Discuss Their International Careers" will be presented at 7 p.m. Feb. 16 in the Warwick Center Ballroom. The five panelists will discuss their careers, which range from social work and the Peace Corps to international banking at locations in France, Spain, the Caribbean and Central America. The presentation is part of the Critical International Perspective Series sponsored by the Office of International Programs with help from the Department of Foreign Languages and Literatures.

Creating Wealth

The Division for Public Service and Extended Education is sponsoring the seminar "Creating Wealth Through Debt-Free Living" from 9 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. Feb. 19. John S. Moore, certified financial independence consultant and seminar leader, will teach the course which costs $39 plus materials. For more information or to register, call ext. 3195. Registration deadline is Feb. 12.

Postal News

Faculty and staff who receive mail through the university should advise the sender to include the department name along with the university address. In addition, employees should notify postal services of departmental transfers.

Tax forms are available in the post office lobby.

GLOBE Franchise

The UNCW Science and Mathematics Education Center is a franchise site for the Global Learning and Observations to Benefit the Environment (GLOBE), an hands-on international science and education program. GLOBE links students, teachers and scientific research communities to learn more about the environment through student data collection. Graduate student Christine Dutton and Bill Kawczynski and Karen Shafer, SMEC, received GLOBE training at the College of William and Mary.

Poetry Reading

Poet Christopher Davis will read from his work at 8 p.m. Feb. 4 in Morton Hall, Bryan Auditorium.

Davis is the author of two poetry collections, The Tyrant of the Past and the Slave of the Future, winner of the 1998 Associated Writing Programs award, and The Patriot, released in 1998 by the University of Georgia Press. An associate professor of creative writing at UNC Charlotte, Davis earned his MFA from the University of Iowa.

Prior to Davis' reading, graduate students Yvette Neisser and Brad Land will read from their works at 7 p.m.

This is recyclable.

CAMPUS COMMUNIQUE

THE OFFICIAL BULLETIN OF UNCW

University Advancement

Vol. XXIX, No. 29 February 10, 2000

Phillip Brown, editor

History Professor Chronicles Women's Liberation Movement

Bra-burning, NOW and Betty Friedman. All are synonymous with the Women's Liberation Movement. But do the American people really know how important the movement was to the everyday opportunities and freedoms that women have today? In a new book, The Women's Liberation Movement in America, Kathleen C. Berkeley, chair of the UNCW History Department, traces the events and pioneers of this movement. The book was published by Greenwood Press as part of the Historic Events of the 20th Century Series.

Berkeley is among a handful of scholars to supplement the complicated story of the Women's Liberation Movement with a chronology of the movement's important events, people and documents.

"Kathleen Berkeley took on one of the most difficult assignments modern American historians have tackled, to provide a concise, coherent and convincing account of the modern women's rights movement(s)," said Randall Miller, series editor and history professor at St. Joseph's University.

This book is not just for feminists or liberated women; it is for everyone because it serves as a record of events that occurred and are continuing to occur in America.

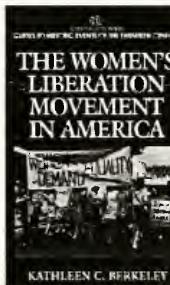

"It seems so far away this (movement, that happened in the '60s and '70s) and yet so much of who women are and why women are where they are comes out of the Women's Movement," said Berkeley.

Before the movement, women were denied equal access to colleges, universities and professional schools such as law and medicine, were unable to compete equally in sports at the high school and collegiate level and had no legal standing to sue for discrimination (including sexual harassment) in the workplace, Berkeley noted. Before the movement, rape was a difficult crime to prosecute.

Instead of viewing rape as a crime of sexual violence, women were blamed for instigating the rape by engaging in such "risky behavior" as dressing provocatively, said Berkeley, who hopes her book will open the eyes of college students so they will see the importance of the Women's Liberation Movement.

The book includes a chronology of events that starts with the Seneca Falls, N.Y., Women's Rights Convention in 1848 and includes the formation of the National Organization for Women (NOW) in 1966 and the acquittal of President Clinton on charges brought out by his affair with intern Monica Lewinsky. The book's six chapters outlines different aspects of the movement, the backlash against the movement and where the movement stands. In addition, there are biographies of influential women including Shirley Chisholm (born Anita St. Hill), Mary Daly, Betty Friedan, Phyllis Schlafly and Gloria Steinem.

Berkeley came to UNCW in 1981 following 10 years at UCLA where she earned bachelor's, master's and doctoral degrees. She has written numerous articles including the History of Education Society's prize-winning selection "The Ladies Want to Bring About Reform in the Public Schools: Public Education and Women's Rights in the Post-Civil War South." Berkeley is working on a biography of Charlotte Hawkins Brown, an African-American educator and race leader from North Carolina.

Noted Artist Donates Works to UNCW

UNCW received more than 80 paintings and drawings from the estate of noted artist Jack Berkman. An exhibition which includes a sampling of his work is on display in Kenan Hall's Claude Howell Gallery.

Berkman, who died last year, studied at the Corcoran School of Art, George Washington University and the University of New Mexico and started exhibiting his artwork in 1932. He won numerous awards and recognitions for his work including two Tiffany Fellowships.

Berkman taught at Guilford College prior to moving to Wilmington in 1974. He also taught or lectured at the University of New Mexico and the Workshop Center of the Arts in Washington, D.C. While living in Wilmington, Berkman painted subjects such as courtroom scenes, rock bands and people he observed in the city's historic downtown district.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Event Canceled

"Singin' Through the Struggle" scheduled for noon Feb. 18 in University Union, Hawk's Nest Union Station has been canceled.

Artists in Your Midst

The exhibit "Artists in Your Midst: Showcasing UNCW Staff and Faculty Art" will be displayed through Feb. 29 at the Randall Library Art Wall on the first floor. Exhibitors include: Louis Adcock, chemistry; Jan Beyma, public service and extended education; Susan Brehm, Student Health Services; Lou Buttino, communication studies; Dale Cohen and Bill Overman, psychology; George Goudarzi, architecture and construction; Sherman Hayes, Randall Library; Gail Henderson, Watson School of Education; Liz Hosier, ITSD; Marcus Johnson, environmental sciences; Fritz Kapraun and David Roye, biological sciences; Dale Lockwood, human resources; Kathleen Nobles, N.C. Sea Grant; Paul Shotsberger, mathematics and statistics; and Maike Walbrecht, international programs.

The library will host a "Meet the Artists" reception from 3 to 5 p.m. Feb. 17 at the display. For more information, call Beth Roberts at ext. 3270.

Music Night in the Hawk's Nest

From 9:15 to 11 p.m. Feb. 15 in the Hawk's Nest, music lovers will hear a variety of styles ranging from classical to rock to folk by artists such as the Beatles, Brahms, Gene Clark, the Police and more. For information, contact Don Habibi, philosophy and religion, at habibi. This event is sponsored by the Student Government Association.

Grille Extends Hours

The Seahawk Grille, located in the Warwick Center, is now open from 11:30 a.m. to 2 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Shakespeare Performance

Praised by critics for "blowing the cobwebs out of Elizabethan drama," Shenandoah Shakespeare Express will perform Much Ado About Nothing at 8 p.m. Feb. 19 in Kenan Auditorium. The production is part of the Arts in Action Performing Arts Series, presented by the Activities and Leadership Center.

Tickets are $4 for UNCW students and children 12 and younger; $6, faculty/staff; and $12 for all others and can be purchased at the University Union, Information Desk or Kenan Auditorium box office.

UNCW Ballroom Dance Club

The UNCW Lumina Ballroom Dance Club meets from 3 to 5 p.m. Sundays during the academic semester in the Warwick Center Ballroom. Davis Canady of Social Graces Dance Studio gives instruction in swing, shag, Latin dance or traditional ballroom moves. Membership is not restricted to UNCW students, and beginners are welcome. Memberships are $10 per semester with current UNCW ID card. Non-UNCW memberships are $20 per semester. The first class is free.

At the Hawk's Nest

The following menu will be featured at the faculty/staff dining room Friday:

Spinach salad with hot bacon dressing, marinated flank steak with au jus, chef's choice vegetarian selection, garlic potatoes au gratin, broccoli with lemon, squash casserole, fresh fruit with lemon yogurt dressing, assorted desserts, rolls and beverages.

Buffet menus are $4.50 for all you care to eat and are available from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. in the Hawk's Nest Glassroom.

Bookstore Valentine's Day Special

The university bookstore is offering the following special for Valentine's Day: one Mylar Valentine balloon, two latex balloons and two ounces of Jelly Bellys for $2.14.

Biological Sciences Seminar

Carol Stepien from the Department of Biology at Case Western Reserve University will present "Population Genetics, Phylogeographic Patterns and the Larval Retention Hypothesis: Clues from DNA of Kelp Forest and Continental Slope Fishes" at 2 p.m. Feb. 11 in Dobo Hall, Room 103.

Literary Discussion

The Feminist Colloquium and the Center for Teaching Excellence will hold a joint meeting at noon Feb. 23 in the Social and Behavioral Science Bldg., Room 210 to discuss a selection from Shattering the Myths: Women in Academe by Judith Glazer-Raymo. The reading is on reserve or email ellerbyj. Dessert will be served.

Poetry Workshop

The North Carolina Poetry Society, in conjunction with the Creative Writing Department, will hold a workshop for poets ages 14 to 18 from noon to 4 p.m. March 18. Classes will be led by poets in the MFA program. Registration is $10 and the deadline is March 1. For more information, contact Lavonne Adams at ext. 3436.

Reception for Hewlett/ Graham Connector

The Office of Housing and Residence Life will host a reception from 4:30 to 6:30 p.m. Feb. 15 in the lobby of the Graham Hewlett Connector Building. The reception and tour are part of the grand opening of this addition which features a new entry way into the residence halls, a conference room, faculty and staff offices, a 24-hour computer laboratory and a living room area for residents.

Physics Lecture

Peter Beckmann, professor of physics at Bryn Mawr College and chemistry and biochemistry at the University of Delaware, will present "Physics, Biology, Your Brain and Everything Else" at 8 p.m. Feb. 10 in King Hall Auditorium.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

ITSD Awards Inaugural Innovation Grants

The Information Technology Systems Division, presented monetary awards worth $186,368 to faculty and staff to support development of innovative and meaningful uses of information technology during a Thursday ceremony at Wise Alumni House.

Technology innovations worldwide are proving a benefit to local, state, national as well as international audiences, according to Robert Tyndall, vice chancellor for ITSD. Award recipients were: Tammy Blizzard and Karly Jennings, advancement, who received $15,000 for "Lifetime Email Accounts for UNCW Alumni"; Ned Martin, chemistry, who received $10,245 for the project "Incorporation of a New Algorithm into Existing Commercial Software for Predicting NMR Spectra"; Vince Howe, Thomas Janicki, C. Phillip Brown, editor

Dr. Jerry Jarrell to Deliver Keynote Address

Hurricane Preparedness Conference to Offer Lessons Learned

Hurricane Floyd's fury flooded Eastern North Carolina destroying lives and property. Five months later residents remain displaced from homes and businesses. Spearheading efforts to help the Cape Fear region and the state deal with the onslaught and aftermath of future storms, UNC Wilmington will host a conference focusing on "Hurricane Preparedness 2000: Lessons Learned."

Congressman Mike McIntyre, who represents North Carolina's 7th District, will serve as the opening speaker for the conference, which will be held from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Feb. 23 in the Warwick Center Ballroom. Dr. Jerry Jarrell, former director of the National Hurricane Center, will deliver the luncheon keynote address. Attendees will hear discussions on hurricane tracking, disaster services, predictions, preparation and planning for future hurricanes and strategies to minimize loss.

Much Ado About Nothing Performance

Praised by critics for "blowing the cobwebs out of Elizabethan drama," Shenandoah Shakespeare Express will perform Much Ado About Nothing at 8 p.m. Feb. 19 in Kenan Auditorium. The production is part of the Arts in Action Performing Arts Series, presented by the Activities and Leadership Center.

Tickets are $4 for UNCW students and children 12 and younger; $6, faculty/staff; and $12 for all others and can be purchased at the University Union information desk or Kenan Auditorium box office.

Panelists invited for the 10:30 a.m. morning session on forecasting, meteorology and public awareness include George Elliott, chief meteorologist for WECT-TV6; Tom Matheson from the National Weather Service; Mark Sudduth '95, a UNCW alumnus who specializes in mapping hurricanes; and Mark Boyer, public information officer for New Hanover County. Steve Meinhold, assistant professor in the Department of Political Science, will moderate.

The afternoon session includes two panels directed at state and local hurricane preparedness scheduled for 1 and 2:15 p.m., respectively. State panelists expected are David McCoy, secretary of the N.C. Department of Transportation; David Kelly, secretary of the N.C. Department of Crime Control and Public Safety; and Billy Ray Hall, director of the N.C. Rural and Economic Development Center and director of the Governor's Hurricane Floyd Redevelopment Center. Chancellor James R. Leutze will moderate.

Local panelists invited are Dan Summers, director of the New Hanover County Emergency Management Office; Doug Bowers, division engineer with the N.C. Department of Transportation; and Bill Caster, chair of the New Hanover County Board of Commissioners. Allen O'Neal, New Hanover County manager, will moderate.

There is no registration fee to attend the conference which includes lunch, but reservations are required due to limited seating. To reserve a space, call ext. 7183 by Monday. Please leave name and phone number.

Visual Portrayals of Black Femininity

Princeton Professor Claudia Tate to Lecture

Claudia Tate, professor of English at Princeton University, will present "Who's That Lady? Visual Representations of Black Femininity" at 8 p.m. Feb. 28 in Cameron Hall Auditorium. This free lecture, sponsored by the English Department's Katherine K. Buckner Distinguished Presentation Series, will kick off the university's March observance of Women's History Month.

Tate, who earned her doctoral degree from Harvard University, is an expert in American and African-American literature, gender and cultural studies and psychoanalytical criticism. She is the author of Domestic Allegories of Political Desire: The Black Heroine's Text at the Turn of the Century and Psychoanalysis and Black Novels: Desire and the Protocols of Race. A postdoctoral fellow at the National Humanities Center based in Research Triangle Park, Tate is working on a project about popular visual representations of black femininity. She is also the editor of Black Women Writers at Work.

Mallin Featured in American Scientist

Center for Marine Science researcher Mike Mallin had his article "Impacts of Industrial Animal Production on Rivers and Estuaries" featured as the cover article for the January/February issue of American Scientist. The article dealt with how animal waste lagoons and sprayfields near aquatic environments may significantly degrade water quality and endanger health.

Biological Sciences Seminar

Thomas E. Lankford, Jr., postdoctoral research associate at the Marine Sciences Research Center at the State University of New York at Stony Brook, will lecture on "Evolution of Somatic Growth Rate in Fishes: What Are the Trade-offs?" at 2 p.m. Feb. 18 in Dobo Hall, Room 103.

Film Screening

Black Orpheus, an Academy Award-winner for best foreign film, will be shown at 8 p.m. Feb. 17 in the University Union, Hawk's Nest. Hal Langfur, history, will introduce the film.

Genocide Scholar to Lecture

Vahagn N. Dadrian, director of genocide research at the Zoryan Institute in Cambridge, Mass., will lecture on "Genocide as a Problem of the 20th Century" at 3 p.m. Feb. 28 in the King Hall Auditorium. Dadrian is the author of The History of the Armenian Genocide. He has also written on the Jewish Holocaust and the victimization of the American Indians. He taught sociology at the State University of New York from 1970 to 1991. This free lecture is sponsored by the College of Arts and Sciences.

Choral Concert

The Music Department will present a choral concert at 4 p.m. Feb. 20 at St. Paul's Episcopal Church. Joe Hickman will conduct the performance featuring soloist Nancy King and visiting baritone Emery Stephens.

Gangsters, Private Eyes and Low Lifes

Todd Berliner, English, will present "Gangsters, Private Eyes, Low Lifes - '40s Film Noir" at 8 p.m. Feb. 22 in Morton Hall, Bryan Auditorium. This free presentation, which will include discussion and film clips, is part of the series "You Must Remember This . . . A Celebration of '40s Popular Culture" sponsored by Randall Library and the USS North Carolina Battleship Memorial.

Physics Lecture

Alexander Komives from the University of Notre Dame will lecture on "Isospin Mixing in the Beta Decay of Ar32" at 2 p.m. Feb. 18 in DeLoach Hall, Room 212. Refreshments will be served at 1:45 p.m.

Native American Pow Wow

Native American dancers and drum groups will demonstrate traditional dance and music from pow wows at noon Feb. 18 at the University Commons.

The UNCW Percussion Ensemble will perform at 8 p.m. Feb. 24 in Kenan Auditorium. The program will feature a variety of musical styles including West African drumming, samba, cha-cha and songo. For more information on this free concert, call ext. 3390.

School of Nursing Receives IV Simulator

The School of Nursing received a CathSim Intravenous Training System through a $8,700 grant from the Cape Fear Memorial Foundation. The computer-based system, manufactured by HT Medical Systems, will teach students the cognitive and motor skills associated with IV catheterization without actual patient contact.

Jaca Baynes, grant author and director of the nursing school's simulation laboratory, said this training system "allows students the opportunity to try an invasive skill in the most realistic way before actually performing it on a patient."

The CathSim features a computer program with an attached accutouch interface. Using the system, nursing students will select a patient type and simulate patient preparation from applying the tourniquet to cleansing the insertion site. When it's time for the needle insertion, the student will use the attached accutouch that will allow the student to "feel" the needle passing through the skin into the vein. The simulated patient will say "ouch, that hurts" if the insertion would have hurt an actual patient.

Fulbright Chairs

Competition for the Fulbright Distinguished Chairs Program is underway. Candidates must be U.S. citizens who have a prominent record of scholarly accomplishment. The deadline to apply is May 1. For more information, contact Gary Faulkner at ext. 3795 or Karen Adams at 202/686-6245.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Submissions for this section are published in order received. Due to the volume of submissions, there can be a two- to three-week delay in publication. Your patience is appreciated.

Hal Langfur, history, presented the paper "Indigenous Insurgency: The Unsettling of the Frontier Minas Gerais, Brazil, 1760-1808" at the affiliated meeting of the Conference on Latin American History and the American Historical Association held in Chicago.

Mike Mallin, CMS, gave the invited presentation "Ecological Damage and Fish Kills Resulting from Hurricanes in the Cape Fear River and Estuary" at the annual meeting of the North Carolina Chapter of the American Fisheries Society in New Hill, N.C. His coauthors were Matt McIver, Scott Ensign and Doug Parsons, CMS.

Marlene Rosenkoetter, gerontology, and John Garris, production and decision sciences, were featured in the November/December issue of Focus, the official publication of the United States Office of Personnel Management. Federal Employee Health and Assistance Programs for their research and recommendations on retirement adjustment. The publication is distributed to federal personnel managers and employees throughout the U.S. and its territories.

Latin Sportdance

As part of Intercultural Week, the Department of Health, Physical Education and Recreation will sponsor a dance workshop featuring Latin dances that will be performed at the 2000 Olympics. The workshop is at 7 p.m. Feb. 17 in Hanover Gym. For more information, call ext. 7009.

Ryoanji Duo to Perform

As part of the Music Department's 2000 Artist Recital Series, the Ryoanji Duo, featuring saxophonist Frank Bongiorno and classical guitarist Robert Nathanson, will perform at 8 p.m. Feb. 20 in Kenan Auditorium. General admission is $10, $5 for faculty, staff, senior citizens and children under 12 and free for UNCW students. Tickets are available at the auditorium box office.

Susan Scheuring, nursing, sponsored the research poster presentation "The Impact of a School-Based Asthma Education Program on Children's Asthma Management Skills and School Attendance: A Preliminary Report" by UNCW graduate nursing students Lela Hopson and DeLayne Godwin at the American Public Health Association's annual meeting in Chicago.

William McLellan, biological sciences and CMS, co-authored the paper "Mortality of Sea Lions Along the Central California Coast Linked to a Toxic Diatom Bloom" which was published as a letter to Nature, vol. 403. This publication presents the results of an unusual mortality event investigated along the California coast in the summer of 1998.

David Gill, specialty studies, delivered the multi-media presentation "Dust Bowl Ballads: Steinbeck, Hesse and Guthrie" at the 89th annual convention of the National Council of Teachers of English in Denver.

Remonda B. Kleinberg, political science, presented the invited paper "Problems and Prospects for Democracy in Latin America: Political Institutions and Political Economy" at the first William Wilson Brown, Jr. Conference on Latin American Studies at UNC Chapel Hill.

Rosemary Ferguson, wellness services, is editorial associate for The Health Educator, Journal of ETA Sigma Gamma.

Intercultural Festival

The seventh annual Intercultural Festival will be held from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. Feb. 19 in the University Union, Hawk's Nest. This free event will feature food, dancing, music and exhibits that showcase the diversity at the university and in the greater Wilmington community.

Correction

Sridhar Narayan and Gene Tagliarini, who received an inaugural grant from the Information and Technology Systems Division, teach in the Computer Science Department.

Faculty Authors

The bookstore is interested in stocking works by faculty authors. For more information, call Angela Welling at ext. 3191.

Stephen Meinhold, political science, gave the invited presentations "Universities as Project Impact Partners" and "Tracking Project Impact Success" at the Federal Emergency Management Agency Project Impact summit in Washington, D.C.

Ann Pabst, biological sciences and CMS, and graduate students Erin Nill and Vicki Stegall presented research at the annual meeting of the Society for Integrative and Comparative Biology in Atlanta.

Paul Shotsberger, mathematics and statistics, had the article "The Human Touch: Synchronous Communication in Web-Based Learning" published in the Jan.-Feb. issue of Educational Technology. The article makes the case that "same time, different place" communication, such as chatting, should be an integral component in the design of World Wide Web-based learning.

Tom Macie, art and theatre, had an article examining the Argentine national theatre design exhibit at the 1999 Prague Quadriennal published in the fall 1999 issue of Theatre Design and Technology.

Martin Posey, biological sciences, was an invited attendee at a joint workshop of the North Carolina Marine Fisheries Commission and the fishery advisory committees. The workshop goal is to increase public input into fisheries management decisions and to promote communication between the commission and its various advisory committees.

Alumni Career Checkup

Career services will sponsor a career checkup for alumni from 8:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. May 20 in the University Union, Room 106. This in-depth workshop will allow alumni to re-evaluate career goals and will include career and personality assessments and help with resume and cover letter development and job interviewing skills. Registration is $75 with a May 12 deadline. For more information, call at ext. 3174.

Work-study Allocations

The Financial Aid and Veterans' Service Office (FAVSO) will give priority to currently employed federal work-study students for the next fiscal year's awards. Departments do not need to submit information to FAVSO, students who have applied for financial aid for the 2000-2001 academic year will automatically receive priority. Students should apply as soon as possible. FAVSO will send federal work-study allocations to department heads for summer 2000 and the 2000-2001 academic year. Direct questions to Mark Williams or Emily Tohtz at ext. 3177.

TIAA Contributions

January contributions for the TIAA Optional Retirement Program were received Feb. 1. Due to an error at TIAA, January contributions were not shown as posted to employees' accounts. Once the problem is resolved, TIAA will backdate January contributions to Feb. 1.

Ready to Retire

The North Carolina Retirement System Division will conduct a pre-retirement conference from 9:30 a.m. to noon March 10 in the Warwick Center, Ballroom 1. Employees who are 60 or older, or who are otherwise eligible to retire, will receive complete information on eligibility for retirement, selection of optional payment arrangements, designation of beneficiaries, eligibility requirements for Social Security benefits, hospital/medical coverage and other issues. Let's Talk Host Named Top CASE Volunteer

Betty Ann Horstman Sanders, a resident of Wilmington since 1983, received the CASE District III Bill Franklin Volunteer of the Year Award in Atlanta Feb. 23. The national award recognizes Sanders for her varied and outstanding volunteer contributions to the University of North Carolina at Wilmington.

Her most remarkable contribution has been through the hour-long television show, Let's Talk! UNCW & You, conceived by her and launched by the university's Division for Public Service and Extended Education in May 1999. The variety and human interest show now airs three times a week in New Hanover and Pender counties on Time Warner and Falcon Cable.

UNCW Chancellor James R. Leutze called Sanders "the kind of volunteer university chancellors and presidents usually only dream about. She is making a valuable contribution to Southeastern North Carolina by bringing the community and the university together in a positive way through television."

Since moving to Wilmington, Sanders has maintained an active involvement in the community by serving on the boards of the Lower Cape Fear Hospice and historic St. Thomas Preservation Hall, a former Roman Catholic church. In 1993, UNCW invited her to join its Foundation Board of Directors. Following two three-year terms, Sanders rotated off in July 1999. During her board tenure, she chaired the Advancement Committee and served as board vice chair and chair.

The volunteer of the year award is sponsored by the Council for the Advancement and Support of Education, an international association of educational institutions representing advancement professionals in the fields of alumni relations, communications, and fund raising. District III is comprised of 548 member institutions in nine Southern states. The Bill Franklin Volunteer of the Year Award recognizes the vital role of volunteers in institutional advancement.

UNC-TV Donates Globe Watch Footage

More than 1,200 tapes covering 14 years of Globe Watch, an international affairs series hosted by Chancellor James R. Leutze, have been donated to UNCW by the UNC Center for Public Television. Globe Watch, which first aired in 1983, was an award-winning television series that offered an historical perspective and analysis of global issues. The series was designed for public television and in-school audiences.

Of the 1,260 tapes donated, some contain raw footage shot during interviews with international government leaders on location around the world, including former British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher. Some are the beta and VHS tapes that were used for airing. The tapes will be housed in Special Collections in Randall Library and will be available to the general public as well as scholars.

Armenian Genocide Scholar to Lecture

Focusing on two major cases of centrally organized mass murder in this century, the Armenian genocide and the Jewish holocaust, Vahagn N. Dadrian of the Zoryan Institute, based in Cambridge, Mass., and Toronto, Canada, will present "Genocide as a Problem of the 20th Century" at 3 p.m. Feb. 28 in King Hall Auditorium.

Dadrian's talk will detail the critical role of how power was used in the Jewish holocaust and the Armenian genocide - conflicts that developed between a powerful perpetrator group and a vulnerable victim group.

One of the foremost scholars of the Armenian genocide, Dadrian devoted more than 20 years of research which resulted in the 1995 publication of his book, The History of Armenian Genocide. In the 1970s, Dadrian helped create the field of comparative study of genocide, while a professor of sociology at the State University of New York.

In 1995, he was the first Armenian scholar invited to the British Parliament, where he delivered a lecture commemorating the 80th anniversary of the Armenian genocide. The Academy of Sciences of the Republic of Armenia presented Dadrian with an honorary doctorate degree in 1995 for his contribution to the study of the Armenian genocide. In addition, he was awarded the Khorenatsi Medal, the Republic's highest cultural award. This free lecture is sponsored by the College of Arts and Sciences.

Members of the committee are: Annie Aldrich, telecommunications; Lisa Allred, payroll; Glenda Bowen, Watson School of Education; Phillip Brown, advancement; Judy Connelly, bookstore; Susie Goodrum, institutional research; Faith Joyce, physical plant; Colleen Kolb, Cameron School of Business; Lori Leitch, biological sciences; Mike Lloyd, printing services; Steve Mastro, CMS; Charles Mills, physical plant; Lucille Mills, Randall Library; Karen Thompson, career services. Staff are encouraged to share comments and suggestions with committee members.

Who's That Lady?

Claudia Tate, professor of English at Princeton University, will present "Who's That Lady? Visual Representations of Black Femininity" at 8 p.m. Feb. 28 in Cameron Hall Auditorium. This free lecture, sponsored by the English Department's Katherine K. Buckner Distinguished Presentation Series, will kick off the university's March observance of Women's History Month.

Tate, who earned her doctoral degree from Harvard University, is an expert in American and African-American literature, gender and cultural studies and psychoanalytical criticism.

SEANC Breakfast

The State Employees Association of North Carolina District 62 is sponsoring a legislative breakfast from 9 to 11 a.m. Feb. 26 in Wagoner Hall, Madeline Suite. This event is an opportunity to meet and discuss issues with legislators. While breakfast is free, reservations are requested by 5 p.m. today; call Gloria Sasser at ext. 4137 or Eli Smith, district chair, at 251-5777.

Seminar on Indonesia

Faculty and staff are invited to the bi-annual seminar on Indonesia sponsored by the Southern Atlantic States Association for Asian and African Studies March 31 through April 1 at UNC Chapel Hill. For more information, contact Paula Kamenish by e-mail at kamenish@uncwil.edu or visit the SASASAAS World Wide Web site at <http://www.uncwil.edu/sasasaas/>.

Physics Lectures

Michael R. Falvo from the Department of Physics and Astronomy at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill will speak on "Gear-like Rolling Motion at the Nanometer Scale" at 2 p.m. Feb. 25.

Jeremy Moxom from the Oak Ridge National Laboratory will present "The ORNL/MU Positron Scattering Project: Positron Interactions with Atoms and Molecules" at 2 p.m. Feb. 29.

Both lectures will be held in DeLoach Hall, Room 212. Refreshments will be served at 1:45 p.m.

Biological Sciences Seminar

David Padgett, biological sciences, will present "Isoachlya: A New Genus of Water Molds?" at 2 p.m. Feb. 25 in Dobo Hall, Room 103.

Tennis Anyone?

Campus recreation is sponsoring "USA 1-2-3 Beginning Tennis Instruction" from 5:30 to 7 p.m. Mondays March 13 through April 10. Qualified professionals will provide free instruction. Equipment will be provided. To register, call ext. 3261.

Grad Lab Opening

The campus community is invited to a brief ceremony at 10 a.m. Feb. 29 for the official opening of the renovated and expanded graduate computer lab on the second floor in Randall Library.

Business Affairs Redesigns Web Site

The Division for Business Affairs has redesigned its World Wide Web site which is at <http://www.uncwil.edu/busaff>. Committee members who assisted with the site were Jane Bailey, budget; Dan Dunnagan, printing services; Stan Harts, safety; Cindy Hucks, accounting; Virginia Pyrtle and Carol Strickland, systems and procedures; and Nancy Bahouth Spirakis, auxiliary services. Sharon Boyd was committee chair. This Web site is an evolving project. Feedback or comments can be e-mailed to boyds@uncwil.edu.

Friends of UNCW Seeks Grant Proposals

Friends of UNCW will accept grant proposals through Feb. 25 for departmental projects which do not require substantial funding.

Founded in 1963 to assist in the accreditation of Wilmington College, Friends of UNCW supports and promotes educational, scientific and charitable projects on behalf of the university. For a proposal form, contact Gennie Beatty at ext. 3751.

Literacy Week

As part of Literary Awareness Week, the Leadership Center is cosponsoring a community-wide book drive through Friday. New or used books can be dropped off at Randall Library, University Union and the Warwick Center. Cosponsors are WWAY-TV3 and Barnes and Noble. Donated books will be distributed to area schools.

Clock Tower Deadline Approaching

Donations for personalized bricks supporting the senior class Millennium Clock Tower are still being accepted. Interested faculty, staff, departments or organizations should call ext. 2659, 251-8382 or e-mail UNCWClock@aol.com.

FOCUS ON FACULTY AND STAFF

John Church, communication studies, is a guest every other Thursday for "Talk of the Town" which airs on WAAV radio.

Darrell Irwin, sociology, anthropology and criminal justice, was quoted in the article "Safe Sex, No Drugs and Rock and Roll" which was published in the February issue of Seventeen.

Don Bushman, English, had the essay "The WPA as Pragmatist: Recasting 'Service' as 'Human Science'" published in the journal WPA: Writing Program Administration. The essay examines writing instruction and writing program administration through the lens of pragmatist philosophy, emphasizing concern with "reflection" and "action."

Lee Schweninger, English, had the essay "Brown's CLOTEL and the Historicity of the Anecdote" published in MELUS: Multi-Ethnic Literature of the United States. Research for the article was supported by a Cahill grant for travel and a UNCW Summer Initiative award.

EVENTS . . . IN BRIEF

Music: UNCW Percussion Ensemble, 8 p.m. Feb. 24 in Kenan Auditorium. For information, call ext. 3390.

Show: 50th annual Tidewater Camellia Show, noon to 5 p.m. Feb. 26 at the Scottish Rite Temple.

Music: Chamber recital featuring violinist Curtis Macomber and pianist Barry David Salwen, 3 p.m. Feb. 27 in Kenan Auditorium. For ticket information, call ext. 3500.

Exhibit: "Artists in Your Midst: Showcasing UNCW Staff and Faculty Art," through Feb. 29 Randall Library Art Wall.

Class: Wilderness first aid certification, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. March 9-12. Cost is $175 for faculty, staff and students. Registration deadline March 3. For information, call ext. 4052.

Workshop: For poets ages 14 to 18, noon to 4 p.m. March 18. Registration is $10 and the deadline is March 1. For information, contact Lavonne Adams at ext. 3436.

William McLellan, biological sciences and CMS, was an invited team member of the mid-Atlantic Take Reduction Team focused on harbor porpoise mortality in fisheries. The plan generated from this team has helped reduce harbor porpoise mortality from an average of 2,400 per year in the middle of the decade to 285 in 1999.

Russell Herman, mathematics and statistics, participated in the annual joint mathematics meetings of the American Mathematical Society (AMS) in Washington, D.C., where he presented the papers "The Perturbed Toda Lattice" and "The Modified Iterative Method for Relaxation Schemes of Solving Nonlinear Boundary Value Problems." The latter paper was jointly presented with A. J. Jerri of Clarkson University. In addition, Herman chaired the AMS session on partial differential equations. Herman also attended the two-day course "AMS Short Course on Quantum Computation: The Grand Mathematical Challenge for the 21st Century and the Millennium." Later this semester he will present the seminar "From Cryptography to Teleportation: Quantum Information and Computation" which will be based on this course and sponsored jointly by the Society for Physics Students and the Mathematics and Computer Science Club.

Wade O. Watanabe, CMS, was an invited participant to the Biotechnology in Aquaculture: A North Carolina-Israel Scientific Collaboration for the Development of New, High-quality and Environment-friendly Products conference held at the National Mariculture Center in Eilat, Israel.

Jack Baker and Randy Hanson, accountancy and business law, had the article "Larger Firms Press Ahead: Lawyers and CPAs: How the Landscape Is Changing" published in The Journal of Accountancy. It was co-authored by James Smith, a former UNCW faculty member who teaches at the University of Nevada-Las Vegas.

Frederick Bingham, physics and physical oceanography, attended the Ocean Sciences 2000 Meeting in San Antonio, Texas, where he presented the seminar "The Origin of Waters along 137E" and co-presented the posters "Surface and Near Surface Structure Between the Gulf Stream and the Continental Shelf" and "Do Western Boundary Currents Significantly Affect Recruitment to Downstream Shelf Habitats? A Comparison of Larval Fish Catches in Gulf Stream and Shelf Waters in Onslow Bay, North Carolina, USA." Co-authors for the second poster were Robert Gamble and David Lindquist, biological sciences.

Brooks Dodson, English, had his review of Romantic and Victorian Long Poems: A Guide, by Adam Roberts, published in Choice.

Patricia Comeaux, communication studies, had the paper "Collaborative Learning in an Internet Graduate Course: A Case Study Analysis" accepted for publication in an international journal, The WebNet Journal: Internet Technologies, Applications and Issues. In addition, she presented the paper "Using Collaborative Inquiry and Interactive Technologies in an Environmental Science Project for Middle School Teachers" at a national conference for information technology and teacher education in San Diego.

Steven Errante, Bob Russell and Petrea Warneck, music, collaborated with faculty from UNC Greensboro, Wake Forest, Appalachian State and NC State in performances of George Crumb's "Ancient Voices of Children," held in Winston-Salem and Wilmington. The Pulitzer Prize-winning composer Crumb attended the Wilmington performance.

Daniel Baden, CMS, received $36,818 from the Environmental Protection Agency for the project "Combinatorial Synthesis for Pfiesteria Toxins."

Bill Cooper, chemistry, received $14,720 from HVEA Deutschland GmbH for the project "Collaboration and Studies at the Electron Beam Research Facility."

Pricing Information

A price list of commonly purchased items is available on the purchasing services World Wide Web site at <http://www.uncwil.edu/purchasing>. The link "Purchasing Budget Information Sheet" includes prices offered for cost estimating reasons. The "State Term Contracts" link offers detailed ordering information. For more information, call Frieda Antrican at ext. 3850.

Alumni Career Checkup

Career services will sponsor a career checkup for alumni from 8:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. May 20 in University Union, Room 106. This in-depth workshop will allow alumni to re-evaluate career goals and will include career and personality assessments and help with resume and cover letter development and job interviewing skills. Registration is $75 with a May 12 deadline. For more information, contact career services at ext. 3174.

Work-study Allocations

The Financial Aid and Veterans Service Office (FAVSO) will give priority to currently employed federal work-study students for the next year's awards. Departments do not need to submit information to FAVSO, students who have applied for financial aid for the 2000-2001 academic year will automatically receive priority provided they have already applied for financial aid and remain eligible. FAVSO will send federal work-study allocations to department heads for summer 2000 and the 2000-2001 academic year. Direct questions to Mark Williams or Emily Tohtz at ext. 3177.

Welcome

Please welcome the following new employees: Nicole Bennett, student health services; Florine Davis and Yvonne Sidberry, physical plant; and Alejandra Sotelo, university police.

Ready to Retire

The North Carolina Retirement System Division will conduct a pre-retirement conference from 9:30 a.m. to noon March 10 in the Warwick Center, Ballroom 1. Employees who are 60 or older or who are otherwise eligible to retire will receive information on eligibility for retirement, selection of optional payment arrangements, designation of beneficiaries, eligibility requirements for Social Security benefits, hospital/medical coverage and other issues. For more information, call Elizabeth Greene at ext. 3713.

UNCW Benefits 2000

Benefits! What benefits? Do you want to know more about the benefits of working at UNCW? Find out at the UNCW Benefits 2000 Fair from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. April 19 in the Warwick Center Ballroom. Sponsored by human resources, the event will provide information and advice regarding the array of state and private benefits available to employees through the university. For more information, contact James Taylor at ext. 3160.

Educational Web Site Companion to Neuse Documentary

A World Wide Web site to assist public school teachers with activities related to the Neuse River was unveiled last week. The site is a follow-up to the UNCW documentary Currents of Hope: Reclaiming the Neuse River which was narrated by Chancellor James R. Leutze and aired statewide on UNC Public Television.

"At UNCW, one of our foremost commitments is to lifelong learning, and there's no better way to support that than through the public school system throughout the state," said Leutze. "This is our third documentary in which we've involved the public schools through free distribution of the videos and activity guides. This is our first Web-based activity guide, and we're every excited about its use in the classroom."

Elaine Penn, project director, added that high degree of computer and Internet literacy among public school students made the Web-based activity guide a logical step.

"Not only can teachers use it for ideas, the students can easily navigate through the site and design their own projects."

The site, <http://www.uncwil.edu/neuserver>, was designed for UNCW by Michelle Conger and Kathy O'Rourke with assistance from Anne Taylor of the Department of Environment and Natural Resources. Funding for the Web site and documentary came from private donations as well as underwriting from Weyerhaeuser Company Foundation, Bank of America, CP&L and the Lower Neuse Basin Association.

Staff Training

A Balanced Life Through Meditation and Mindfulness, noon to 1 p.m. Thursdays through April 27.

Advanced Connections, 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Feb. 29.

CSB Professor Wins National Teaching Award

Seungoog Weun, assistant professor of management and marketing in UNCW's Cameron School of Business, is one of four recipients nationwide who will receive the "Outstanding Marketing Teachers Award" from the Academy of Marketing Science in May at the organizations' conference in Montreal.

To be considered for this award, Weun wrote and submitted his philosophy of teaching, a list of his previous honors and awards, and other supporting evidence of his teaching excellence including letters from two of his students and a summary of his instructor evaluations. Stephen Harper, interim chair and professor of marketing, also sent a letter of recommendation. A national panel of marketing professors selected the recipients.

"Dr. Weun's approach to teaching is multi-faceted. He has the energy of a newly-minted Ph.D. and the finesse of a veteran professor. His dedication to excellence is evident in everything he does in and outside the classroom," said Harper. "Dr. Weun is a credit to his profession and a credit to the discipline of marketing."

Weun received a bachelor's degree in economics from Hankuk University of Foreign Studies in Seoul, Korea; an M.B.A. from the University of Missouri-Columbia; and a Ph.D. in marketing from the University of Alabama. He was a visiting assistant professor of marketing at Western Carolina University for one year, and he has been teaching at UNCW since 1998.

Dedication and commitment to excellence in teaching is Weun's teaching philosophy. Weun feels that his award is a delightful surprise due to the fact that these awards usually go to senior faculty members, and he is a junior faculty. "I am very excited to have won such a prestigious, national award. I am surrounded by a nice teaching environment. My colleagues have been very supportive, and I owe them a lot of credit," said Weun. He is the first Asian faculty member to win this award.

Weun has received more than 20 awards for his work, including the Omer Deserves Best Paper Award at the Retail Strategy and Consumer Decision Research Conference in 1999, the Outstanding Dissertation Proposal Award from the Southern Marketing Association in 1996, and the University-Wide Doctoral Student Best Teaching Award from the University of Alabama in 1996. His articles have been published in numerous publications including the Journal of Managerial Issues and Psychological Reports.

UNCW Celebrates Women's History Month in March

UNCW will celebrate its 19th annual Women's History Month with a series of programs and events throughout March designed to raise awareness of issues affecting women's lives.

The events listed below, which are free and open to the public, are a joint effort among the College of Arts and Sciences, the Counseling Center, the English Department, the Human Resources Office, the Leadership Center, the Office of the Dean of Students, Student Development Services and the Women's Studies Program.

- "Making a Difference in Women's Lives: Founding the Non-Profit Organization for Success," a lecture by Nancy Lublin, 8 p.m. March 15 Morton Hall, Bryan Auditorium.

- A screening and discussion of the Oscar-winning film Elizabeth, 7 p.m. March 21 University Union, Room 103B.

- Myths That Maim, a video which explores gender identities and violence, 7 to 9 p.m. March 23 Cameron Hall Auditorium.

- Panel Discussion: Women in Politics, 7 p.m. March 27 Warwick Center, Center Stage Cafe. Panelists include Betty Medlin, mayor of Kure Beach; Debbie Keck, member of the New Hanover County Schools Board; and Laura Padgett and Sandra Spaulding-Hughes, members of Wilmington City Council.

For more information on these events, call ext. 3119.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Chancellor Appointed to N.C. Progress Board

Chancellor James R. Leutze was named to serve on the North Carolina Progress Board. The board, which was created in 1995 by the North Carolina General Assembly, is charged with setting broad directions for the state over the next three decades in eight key areas: keeping families healthy; providing a quality education for all; creating a high performance work force; building a prosperous economy; maintaining a sustainable environment; developing technology and infrastructure; keeping communities safe and vibrant; and encouraging active citizenship and accountable government.

Chemistry Lecture

Fred Lipschultz, associate research scientist, Bermuda Biological Station for Research, will present the seminar "New Production in the Sargasso Sea: History and Current Status" at 4 p.m. March 2 in Dobo Hall, Room 132.

Fly Fishing Seminar

A fly fishing seminar will be held from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. March 18 at the UNCW amphitheater. Instruction on fly fishing products, casting, fly tying and salt and freshwater fishing will be provided. Cost is $18 for adults, $12 for students. For information, contact Bobby Digh at 256-2060. To register, call ext. 3195.

Open House

The Department of Earth Sciences will hold an open house for its Spatial Analysis Laboratory from noon to 1 p.m. March 17 in DeLoach Hall, Room 125. Joanne Halls, lab director, will answer questions on geographic information systems, remote sensing and spatial analysis.

Biological Sciences Seminar

Bill Arnold from Florida Marine Research Institute, St. Petersburg, Fla., will present "Bivalve Enhancement and Restoration Strategies in Florida" at 2 p.m. March 3 in Dobo Hall, Room 103.

Charity Golf Challenge

The UNCW chapter of Alpha Phi will hold its fourth annual charity golf challenge March 25 at Beau Rivage Resort and Golf Club. Tee times are 8 a.m. and 1:30 p.m. The cost is $25 per person for four-member teams. Deadline to register is March 12. Proceeds benefit the Alpha Phi Foundation which supports women in need of cardiac care, breast cancer research and scholarships. For more information, contact Jessie Meylor at 794-2786.

Travel Proposals

Faculty proposals for summer and fall overseas travel are due in the Office of International Programs by March 20. Awards are limited to one per 12-month period. Indicate other funding sources with the requested amount. Contact department chairs for applications.

Physics Colloquium

Andrea Bertozzi from the Departments of Mathematics and Physics at Duke University will present "Undercompressive Shocks in Driven Film Flow" at 2 p.m. March 3 in DeLoach Hall, Room 212. Refreshments will be served at 1:45 p.m.

The Rise of Modern Art

Tony Janson, art and theatre, will present "From the Ashes of World War II: The Rise of a New Modern Art at 8 p.m. March 15 at the USS North Carolina Memorial Battleship Auditorium.

Blood Drive

The UNCW Volunteers and the American Red Cross will hold a blood drive from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. March 21 and 22 in the Warwick Center. UNCW Volunteers seek to increase the university's average participation from 100 to 300 donors. Faculty and staff who have benefitted from receiving donated blood and who would like to share their stories should contact Milembe Mkono at ext. 3925 or Becky Long at ext. 3043.

Distance Learning Lecture

Whether distance learning is an economical way to provide educational access or depersonalizes the teaching process is the focus of the lecture "Brave New World or Recipe for Disaster?" by Dennis J. Frailey at 7 p.m., Monday, March 13 in Morton Hall, Bryan Auditorium.

Frailey, a senior fellow at Raytheon Corporation and adjunct professor of computer science at Southern Methodist University, has more than 30 years of experience in using distance education. He holds a bachelor's degree in mathematics from Notre Dame University and master's and doctoral degrees in computer science from Purdue University. In addition to Raytheon Corporation, Frailey worked for Texas Instruments and Ford Motor Company.

Children's Story Adventures

The Commuter and Non-traditional Student Services Center, the Seahawk Perch, offers the Children's Story Reading Adventures Program from 3:30 to 4:15 p.m. Mondays and Tuesdays in the listening area on the second floor of Randall Library. Volunteers read award-winning children's literature. Faculty, staff or students can register children ages three to 10 to attend by calling ext. 7371 or e-mail temoneyk.

Math/Physics Talk

Joshua E. S. Socolar, director of undergraduate studies at Duke University Physics Department and Center for Nonlinear and Complex Systems, will present "Penrose Tiling and Quasicrystals" at 3 p.m. March 17 in DeLoach Hall, Room 212.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Furst Exhibition

Donald Furst, art and theatre, will have the solo exhibition "Quintet: Five Print Suites" displayed March 10 through June 4 at St. John's Museum of Art. A preview reception will be held from 7 to 9 p.m. March 9. Admission is $2 for St. John's Museum of Art members and $5 for the public.

Note of Appreciation

Ethel T. Gerald would like to "thank everyone for helping celebrate my retirement and for the gifts which I received." Gerald retired following 17 years of service to the university. She worked in Randall Library as part of the physical plant housekeeping staff.

Picasso Play Performance

A performance of Pablo Picasso's play Le Desir Attrape Pa La Queue (Desire Caught by the Tail) will be held at 8 p.m. March 11 and 12 at the Church of the Servant on Oriole Drive. The production is a result of an assignment by Anne Russell, who earned her MFA in creative writing. In doing research for a class, Russell discovered a 1950 copy of the play in a bookstore in Asheville. "Picasso's sketches for set designs captivated me," said Russell. "No one around here had heard of the play. I wanted to bring it to life here in Wilmington."

Literary-Art Journal Atlantis Seeks Underwriters

UNCW's student literary journal Atlantis is accepting underwriting donations for its millennium edition. For more information, contact Bill Dinome, student media coordinator, at ext. 7138. The application deadline is 10 a.m. March 14.

FOCUS ON FACULTY AND STAFF

Susan Lovelace, CMS, received $32,500 from the N.C. Department of Natural Resources/Division of Coastal Management to fund the position of estuarine educator.

Eleanor Covan, gerontology, received $2,000 from Taylor and Francis Publishers for clerical assistance as associate editor of the journal Health Care for Women International.

Craig Bailey, biological sciences, received $61,000 from the Bigelow Laboratory for Ocean Science/National Science Foundation for the project "A Re-examination of the Algal Class Xanthophyceae Based Upon 18S rRNA and rbc L Sequence Analysis."

Steve Ross, CMS, received $37,500 from the N.C. Department of Environment and Natural Resources/Division of Coastal Management for fiscal year 1999 funding of supplemental monitoring of the N.C. Natural Estuarine Research Reserve. In addition, he received $205,618 from NCDENR/CICEET for the project "Assessment and Monitoring of Estuarine Habitat Diversity."

Don Bushman, English, served as a judge for the Pender County Library Quiz Bowl.

Wade Watanabe, CMS, received $1,000 from the Southern Regional Aquaculture Center for the project "Species Profile for the Mutton Snapper (Lutjanus analis)."

Darwin Dennison and Mike Perko, HPER, received $11,500 from MediaSeek to develop a health knowledge base.

Leslie Langer, SBTDC, received $90,757 from the U.S. Small Business Administration for SBTDC federal funding during the 2000 program year. In addition, Langer received $53,002 from the Defense Logistics Agency Headquarters to continue a temporary position for a government procurement counselor at UNCW.

Andrew Shepard, CMS, received $35,235 from NOAA/NURP to work at NURP headquarters in Silver Springs, Md.

David Webster, biological sciences, received $4,000 from the North Carolina Wildlife Resources Commission for the project "Effects of Beach Renourishment and Tilling on Nesting and Nest Success in the Loggerhead Sea Turtle (Caretta caretta)."

Student Media Managers Search Reopened

The Student Media Board has reopened its search for next year's top management positions at UNCW's radio station WLOZ and the literary-art journal Atlantis. These paid positions are open to enrolled students in good academic standing and offer strong resume-building experience. Term of service is May 2000 through April 2001. Faculty and staff should direct interested students to contact Bill Dinome, student media coordinator, at ext. 7138. The application deadline is 10 a.m. March 14.

Ned Martin, chemistry, received $2,000 from the North Carolina Biotechnology Center to support the fourth annual UNCW Symposium on Chemistry and Biochemistry.

John Clifford, English, read the paper "The Ethics of Stories" at the annual meeting of the Modern Language Association in Chicago. He had the textbook Making Literature Matter published by Bedford/St. Martins. An extensive instructors' manual was written by Joyce Hollingsworth, English.

Ara Crawford, specialty studies, had the paper "Making Sense of Slope" published in the "Algebra For All" section of the Mathematics Teacher. William Scott, co-author, is the secondary mathematics consultant with the N.C. Department of Public Instruction.

Ron Whittaker, registrar, presented the sessions "Protecting Your Institution from Fraudulent Documents" and "New Developments for National Student Loan Clearinghouse Users" at the annual Southern Association of Collegiate Registrar's and Admissions Officers meeting in Memphis.

Seahawks Soaring into the Big Dance

The Seahawks earned their first-ever NCAA tournament bid with a 57-47 win over Richmond Monday night at the Richmond Coliseum. Brett Blizzard was named tournament MVP after leading the Seahawks with 15 points in the championship game of the Colonial Athletic Association.

Blizzard, the CAA Rookie of the Year and the first freshman to be named All-CAA First team, finished the tournament with 61 points in three games as the fourth seeded Seahawks (18-12) upset top seed George Mason in the semifinals and third seed Richmond (18-12) Monday night.

Witch Doctors in Biotechnology Lecture

Greed, ignorance and religious zeal threaten to destroy both the Amazon ecosystem and the only cultures that know how to preserve it, according to Mark J. Plotkin, research associate at the Department of Botany at the Smithsonian Institution and executive director of the non-profit Amazon Conservation Team.

Plotkin will lecture on "Witch Doctors in Biotechnology" at 7:30 p.m. March 23 in the Warwick Center Ballroom. This free public lecture is sponsored by the UNCW Honors Scholars Program. In his talk, Plotkin will discuss his work with tribal leaders in Central and South America, who he said hold the key to unlock one of the great mysteries of our day and age — demonstrating the value of the Amazon rain forest in concrete economic terms thus providing the rationale for preserving this ecosystem.

"After working for a decade with the Indians of the Amazon, I've learned that the botanical genius of these peoples is not limited to medicines but includes extraordinary agricultural knowledge," said Plotkin.

An expert in tropical rain forest ethnobotany, Plotkin has worked with shamans in Central and South America to learn about healing plants for the past 15 years. He is the author of Tales of a Shaman's Apprentice: An Ethnobotanist Searches for New Medicines in the Amazon Rain Forest. His next book, Medicine Quest: New Medicines from Mother Nature, is scheduled for release by Viking-Penguin this month. Plotkin earned a bachelor's degree from Harvard University, a master's degree from Yale University and a Ph.D. from Tufts University.

Plotkin's work has been featured in a PBS Nova documentary, in an Emmy Award-winning Fox-TV documentary, on the NBC Nightly News, on The Today Show and CBS's 48 Hours, as well as in the magazines Life, Newsweek and People. In 1994, he received the San Diego Zoo Gold Medal for Conservation, a top environmental award. Past winners include Jane Goodall, Sir David Attenborough and Prince Philip, the Duke of Edinburgh.

UNCW Student-Athletes Among the System's Elite

The University of North Carolina at Wilmington has again ranked among the UNC system's best at producing quality student-athletes, according to report by university officials.

In the annual graduation rates report released by the UNC Board of Governors, UNCW student-athletes posted a graduation rate of 71.4 percent for freshmen entering school in 1994. That put the Seahawks a close second behind UNC Chapel Hill, which recorded a 71.8 graduation rate.

In addition, the average grade point average for the program's 318 student-athletes last fall was 2.94 and 45 percent (146-of-318) compiled a GPA of 3.0 or better. Fifteen student-athletes made a perfect 4.0 in the fall semester.

"Our academic track record has been outstanding, and I'm very pleased with these latest findings," said Peg Bradley-Doppes, athletic director. "I think this proves that we are preparing our student-athletes well for their future."

Weather Channel Expert Steve Lyons to Talk on Hurricanes

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Supercomputing Chemist to Lecture

Lee Bartolotti, computational chemist at the North Carolina Supercomputing Center, will present "Density Functional Theory in Chemistry" at 1 p.m. March 16 in Dobo Hall, Room 132. Refreshments will be served.

Bartolotti will be available to meet with interested students or faculty to discuss this topic or facilities at the N.C. Supercomputing Center. To arrange an appointment, contact Ned Martin at ext. 3453 or e-mail martinn. Bartolotti's visit is sponsored by the Information Technology Systems Division.

UNCW Hosts Slavic Studies Conference

UNCW will host the 38th annual meeting of the Southern Conference March 16-18. Faculty, staff and students are invited to attend conference sessions which will be held at the Wilmington Hilton Riverside Hotel. For more information, contact Sue McCaffray at ext. 3317.

Big Band Lecture

Frank Bongiorno, music, will lecture on "The 1940s: The Rise and Fall of the Big Band Era" at 8 p.m. March 22 in Kenan Hall, Room 121. This free presentation is part of the series "You Must Remember This... A Celebration of '40s Popular Culture" sponsored by Randall Library and the USS North Carolina Battleship Memorial.

Professors Hold Book Signings

Kathleen Berkeley, history, will sign copies of her book The Women's Liberation Movement in America at 7:30 p.m. March 22, and Maurice Stanley, philosophy and religion, will discuss and sign copies of The Legend of Nance Dude at 7:30 p.m. March 24. Both events will be at Barnes and Nobles Booksellers.

Poetry Reading

Poet Carolyn Forché will read from her work at 8 p.m. March 15 in Cameron Hall Auditorium.

A diverse poet known for her humanitarian concern, Forché has written three volumes of poetry The Angel of History, Gathering the Tribes and The Country Between Us. In addition, she edited the anthology Against Forgetting: The Twentieth-Century Poetry of Witness, the collected works of 145 20th century poets who wrote about their experiences dealing with warfare, military occupation, imprisonment, torture, forced exile and house arrest.

A reception and book signing will follow this free event, which is sponsored by the Creative Writing Department and the King's Road Writers Series.

Benthic Ecology Meeting

UNCW is hosting more than 600 marine biologists from around the world for the 29th annual Benthic Ecology Meeting March 9-12. More than 125 posters will be on display in Dobo Hall detailing research on Pfiesteria, seagrass and salt marsh ecology, pollution and other related topics. In conjunction with the meeting, UNCW will host the Marine Chemical Ecology Symposium. The university also hosted the Blue Crab Symposium held March 7-9.

Living Southern

Charles Reagan Wilson, co-editor of the Encyclopedia of Southern Culture and professor of history and Southern studies in the Center for the Study of Southern Culture at the University of Mississippi, will discuss "Creativity and Southern Culture" at 5:30 p.m. March 31 in Cameron Hall Auditorium. Admission is free; however, because of limited seating and parking, tickets are required. The lecture is sponsored by the Division for Public Service and Extended Education, the Cape Fear Museum and the Wilmington Star-News. For more information, call ext. 3193.

Tryon Palace Trip

The Division for Public Service and Extended Education is sponsoring a one-day trip to Tryon Palace Historic Sites and Gardens in New Bern. The cost is $50 per person and includes a guided tour of the 27-room Georgian mansion, a walk-through of the gardens, lunch at the Chelsea Restaurant and round-trip transportation. The deadline to register is March 17. For more information, call ext. 3195.

Millennium Clock Tower Deadline Approaching

Donations for personalized bricks supporting the senior class Millennium Clock Tower are still being accepted. Interested faculty, staff, departments or organizations should call ext. 2659, 251-8382 or e-mail UNCWClock@aol.com.

Lost and Found

A silver ring was found near human resources. For more information, call ext. 3160.

Art Show

The eighth annual Juried Art Show for students pursuing an art major or minor is on display in Kenan Hall, Claude Howell Gallery. The exhibit, sponsored by the UNCW Art Club, will be displayed through March 23.

Swim Program

Faculty and staff can pre-register immediate family members for the Learn to Swim Program from 9 to 11 a.m. March 13-17 at the ticket office in Trask Coliseum. The $90 fee is due at sign up.

Fly Fishing Seminar

A fly fishing seminar will be held from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. March 18 at the UNCW amphitheater. Instruction on fly fishing products, casting, fly tying and salt and freshwater fishing will be provided. Cost is $18 for adults, $12 for students. For information, contact Bobby Digh at 256-2060. To register, call ext. 3195.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Aquarius and Project JASON Go to the Extremes

Aquarius, the world's only underwater laboratory/habitat that makes it possible for scientists to live and work beneath the sea, began its 2000 mission season as part of the educational JASON XI project.

From Feb. 28 through March 10, Robert Ballard and other scientists will explore "Going to Extremes," showing students what it is like to live and work in space and underwater. Former NOAA Chief Scientist Kathy Sullivan will participate. A former astronaut, in 1984 she was the first American woman to perform a space walk.

"The JASON project gives us an opportunity to share Aquarius' work exploring the condition of our coral reefs with students in classrooms across the country," said Steven Miller, director of the Southeastern U.S. and Gulf of Mexico National Undersea Research Center at UNCW, which operates Aquarius.

During daily one-hour broadcasts students participating in the project will assist scientists who will collect data about the condition of corals at Conch Reef, where Aquarius is located, about 50 feet below the water's surface. Five live broadcasts will occur each day during the two weeks of the JASON project.

"Students will be able to see how humans can explore extreme environments and what kinds of technologies were developed to help overcome the physical limitations, such as breathing underwater to explore the reef and also to conduct experiments and to live underwater in Aquarius," Miller said.

FOCUS ON FACULTY AND STAFF

Miller

Paul Miller, athletic director from 1991-99, was honored during half-time ceremonies at the men's basketball game Feb. 19. Peg Bradley-Doppes presented Miller with a framed proclamation letter outlining his contributions to the Seahawks athletic program, and Marvin Robison, president of the Seahawk Club, announced the creation of the Paul Miller Student Aid Association Endowed Scholarship in recognition the retired AD's support of the athletic program. Miller also received two life-time season tickets to UNCW athletic events from Jerry Wainwright, head men's basketball coach.

Randy Hanson, accountancy and business law, had the article "Bankruptcy Reform Legislation: Congress Moves Slowly" published in the February issue of Business Credit.

David Gill, specialty studies, had the manuscript "Division of Labor: Improving Writing Skills by Changing the High School English Curriculum" accepted for publication in High School Magazine and Schools in the Middle.

Mariela Shirley, psychology, was appointed to the Substance Abuse and Mental Health Administration's Center for Substance Abuse Treatment Work Groups on Cultural Relevance. These federal-level work groups assist in the product development, review, marketing and adoption of treatment materials that ensure cultural relevance.

Carmelo Tomas, biological sciences, chaired the session "Marine Ecology: Nutrients" at the ninth International Conference on Harmful Algal Blooms held in Hobart, Tasmania (Australia). He also participated in the presentation of the poster "A Report of Toxic Microalgae from Florida Waters" with colleagues K. A. Steidinger and J. H. Landsberg.

Richard Dillaman, biological sciences, Kenneth Gurganus and Paul Shotsberger, mathematics and statistics, and Karen Shafer, SMEC, gave invited presentations at the Conference on K-12 Outreach from University Science Departments held at NC State University. Presentations were: "Putting Microscopes into the Classroom: Implementing the Educational Outreach of the Microscopy Society of America" by Dillaman and Shafer, "Mathematical Modeling: Summer Ventures at UNC Wilmington" by Gurganus and "Transforming Mathematics Teaching Through Web-Based Professional Development" by Shotsberger.

Maurice Martinez, specialty studies, delivered the multimedia presentation "African Retentions in the Rituals of the Black Indians of New Orleans" at the opening exhibition of the Craft and Folk Art Museum in Los Angeles.

Grad Computer Lab

Neil Hadley, right, dean of the Graduate School and Research, and Sean Ahlum, president of the Graduate Student Association, check out one of 10 new computers in the Graduate Computer Lab on the second floor of Randall Library. The lab, which is maintained by the Information and Technology Systems Division, opened officially Feb. 29. Designated for graduate student use only, the lab has 10 Dell Pentium III 450 Mhz work stations, a flatbed and slide scanner and a laser printer.

Healthful Living

Students from PED 235, taught by John Bennett, HPER, will hold a demonstration promoting physical activity and healthful living at 11 a.m. March 16 in front of the campus marquee near the Riegel Road entrance.

Distance Learning Lecture

Whether distance learning is an economical way to provide educational access or depersonalizes the teaching process is the focus of the lecture "Brave New World or Recipe for Disaster?" by Dennis J. Frailey at 7 p.m. March 13 in Morton Hall, Bryan Auditorium.

Performance of Picasso Play

A performance of Pablo Picasso's play Le Desir Attrape Pa La Queue (Desire Caught by the Tail) will be held at 8 p.m. March 10 and 11 at the Church of the Servant on Oriole Drive.

OFFICIAL NOTICES

Reimbursement Deadline of Health and Dependent Care Spending Accounts

The deadline to submit all 1999 out-of-pocket expenses for health care and dependent care spending accounts to Aon Consulting is March 31. Any money not claimed by March 31 will be forfeited. Call ext. 3006 for claim forms.

CMS Bus Service

Shuttle service between the main campus and the Center for Marine Science at Myrtle Grove will begin March 13. Buses will pick up passengers near Dobo Hall at the corner of Crews Drive and Reynolds Drive and will leave campus hourly from 9 a.m. until 4 p.m. Shuttles will leave the Center for Marine Science and return to campus every half-hour beginning at 9:30 a.m. with the last trip to campus departing CMS at 4:30 p.m. This service will run Mondays through Fridays.

Cape Fear Women of Achievement Awards

The YWCA Cape Fear Women of Achievement awards recognize outstanding women from Brunswick, Columbus, New Hanover and Pender counties who have made creative and lasting contributions to the community. Recipients will be honored during an awards banquet May 11 in Wagoner Hall. Nomination forms are available in human resources, and the deadline is March 24.

CAMPUS COMMUNIQUE

THE OFFICIAL BULLETIN OF UNCW

University Advancement

Vol. XXIX, No. 34 March 16, 2000

Phillip Brown, editor

Center for Marine Science Grand Opening A Defining Moment

When the North Carolina General Assembly passed legislation in 1995 giving UNC Wilmington funding to build the $17.5 million Center for Marine Science, Chancellor James R. Leutze said in a news conference that this represented a "defining moment" for this university. After six years of planning, site preparation and construction, the new center on the Intracoastal Waterway at Myrtle Grove Sound is occupied and functioning. The university is ready to celebrate the fruition of that "defining moment."

Mark your calendars for a extraordinary day in the life of UNC Wilmington - a special faculty, staff and student open house at the Center for Marine Science from 2 to 5 p.m. March 24. No parking will be permitted at the facility, but shuttle buses will depart from campus near the University Union and the Warwick Center that afternoon. Watch for a special insert in Communiqué next week for details.

If Friday isn't convenient, plan to participate in the community open house celebration the university is holding from 1 to 5 p.m. March 26 at the Center for Marine Science. Parking Sunday will be at Myrtle Grove Middle School with shuttle buses leaving every 15 minutes from 12:30 to 5:30 p.m.

The new Center for Marine Science building will facilitate UNCW's involvement in tackling ocean issues of national importance, including the role of oceans in human health and ocean observing systems. One of these is the importance of coupling oceanographic research with education to understand and mitigate the country's growing exposure to toxicants in food and water, one of the 21st century's biggest quality of life issues. These toxicants can be natural or man-made and include lead, mercury and toxins from harmful algal blooms, according to Dan Baden, marine toxicologist and CMS director.

"Just as Vice President Al Gore did at the National Ocean Conference in 1998, CORE is urging all the country's marine science institutions to link the oceans and human health as a priority for the future," said Baden. "UNC Wilmington's marine science program grew out of a strong undergraduate marine biology program with intimate ties to K-12 education in the region, then built into research and public service at the middle and high school level. Most other marine science programs in the country started at the graduate level focused on research and are now adding educational components.

"Because of UNCW's intimate coupling of education and research, with the addition of the new Center for Marine Science facility, UNCW can fully realize its potential in coastal ocean sciences.

"Our center and research will lead the pack in integrating across disciplines and training undergraduates and graduate students for the next generation of interdisciplinary researchers. That's where this center will make its mark, because we have all the people to do it," said Baden.

UNCW Wins Two CASE District III Awards

UNCW won two awards at the Council for the Advancement and Support of Education District III conference held in Atlanta, Ga.

In the category "Radio Programs and Announcements," UNCW's documentary, Currents of Hope: Reclaiming the Neuse River, won an award of excellence. Recognition went to Mimi Cunningham, university relations, Elaine Penn, advancement, and Stella Shelton and Scott Pearson for voice-overs and composition respectively.

In the category "Educational Fund-raising Projects," UNCW's "Stick-It-to-Bob" faculty/staff campaign won a special merit award with recognition to Karly Jennings and W. Patton McDowell, advancement, Cathey Blake and Andrea Stein, printing services, Phillip Brown, university relations, and R. O. Walton, Jr., business affairs.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Census Celebration

Bob Chamberland, a census representative, will lecture on the importance of this constitutionally-mandated practice at 2 p.m. March 26 in Randall Library Auditorium. For more information, call Eileen Brown at ext. 3277.

Alumna Celebrates Book Publication with Reading

Nancy Jones, a UNCW alumna who earned her master's degree in creative writing in 1998, will read from her debut novel Molly at 8 p.m. March 28 in King Hall Auditorium.

Released by Crown Publishers, Molly is a coming-of-age story about two young girls in Illinois during the 1940s. Inspired by the literary classic

Lolita, Crown Publishers described Molly as a "radiant first novel."

"Binge Drinking: From Understanding to Action," part of the National Resource Center for the First-Year Experience and Students in Transition 2000 teleconference series, will be held from 1 to 4 p.m. March 23 in the Warwick Center, Ballroom 3. This teleconference, which is co-sponsored by CROSSROADS and the Counseling Center, will address topics such as the definition, history and scope of binge drinking as well as its impact on campus and the community.

Farewell Reception

A farewell reception for Christina Kaberline, assistant director for administrative services, housing and residence life, will be held from 3 to 5 p.m. March 22 in the University Union Living Room. Kaberline accepted a job in Lincoln, Neb.

Panel Rescheduled

The Women in Education Panel, originally set for 3 p.m. today in Cameron Hall Auditorium, has been postponed. It will be held at the same time and location on April 25.

WSO Concert

The Wilmington Symphony Orchestra, featuring violinist Yayoi Toda, will perform at 8 p.m. March 25 and 4 p.m. March 26 in Kenan Auditorium.

Toda, 27, was born in Fukui City, Japan. In 1993, she won the Grand Prize of the Queen Elisabeth of Belgium International Violin Competition.

Peace Corps Representative

Representatives from the Peace Corps will provide information about volunteer opportunities from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. March 23 in the University Union near the Hawk's Nest. A panel discussion featuring Peace Corps volunteers will be held at 6:30 p.m. March 23 in the University Union, Room 201. For more information, contact career services at ext. 3755.

Shell Club Meeting

The North Carolina Shell Club will meet at 8 p.m. March 17 and 18 in Dobo Hall, Room 103. There will be a registration and social hour from 7 to 8 p.m. each night. This statewide club holds quarterly meetings throughout North Carolina. The March 17 program features talks by Dean and Dorothy Weber from Wilmington and David Campbell from UNC Chapel Hill. David Kirsh of Durham and Everett Long from Swansboro will talk March 18.

Library Hosts Art Exhibit

Randall Library is hosting a display of original ceramic works by local artist Hiroshi Sueyoshi through April 14. A "Meet the Artist" reception will be held from 4 to 6 p.m. March 23 at the exhibit. For more information, call ext. 3270.

Women's Volunteer Day

In conjunction with Women's History Month, the Leadership Center is sponsoring a Women's Volunteer Day from 9 a.m. to noon March 18. Participants will volunteer service to local community organizations such as Vintage Values whose proceeds benefit the Domestic Violence Center. To register or for more information, call ext. 3877. Participants will meet at 9 a.m. at the University Union.

Relay for Life

Relay for Life, the 24-hour walk to benefit the American Cancer Society, will start at 6 p.m. April 14 at the Greene Track and Field Complex. To be part of UNCW's team or for more information, call Judy Siko at ext. 4283, Annie Aldrich at ext. 3099 or Dianne Matthews at ext. 3065.

Charity Golf Tournament

UNCW's Xi Theta Chapter of the Delta Zeta sorority is sponsoring a charity golf tournament April 15 at Magnolia Greens Golf Plantation. Registration is $75 per person with a deadline of April 5. A portion of the proceeds will benefit the Domestic Violence Shelter and Hearing Sounds of Success. For more information, contact Beth Brantley at 796-0907.

Weather Channel Hurricane Expert

Steve Lyons, hurricane expert for the Weather Channel, will lecture on "Carolina Hurricanes" at 7 p.m. March 21 in Cameron Hall Auditorium. This free public lecture is sponsored by the UNCW Graduate Student Association.

FOCUS ON FACULTY AND STAFF

Virginia W. Adams, nursing, received a Distinguished Alumni Award from Winston-Salem State University for "exemplary leadership and tireless community involvement" at the National Association for Equal Opportunity in Higher Education (NAFEO) Leadership Banquet in Washington, DC. President Clinton was the banquet's speaker.

Rebecca Beavers, CMS, presented a poster at the Ocean Sciences meeting in San Antonio. Fred Bingham and David Lindquist also attended and presented posters and a talk.

Lindsay Pentolfe Aegeert, English, had the article "Southern Africa, Womanism and Postcoloniality: A Dialectical Approach" published in The Post-Colonial Condition of African Literature, edited by Daniel Gover, John Conte-Morgan and Jane Bryce, Africa World Press, 2000.

Lou Buttino, communication studies, had his screenplay Carmen Basilio! Basilio! selected as a finalist in the Taos Talking Pictures Screenwriting competition. The winner and finalists of this prestigious festival have their screenplays reviewed by Hollywood film studios. Buttino's documentary Honduran Hope, a fund-raiser for victims of Hurricane Mitch, tied for first place in the Broadcast Educators Association's (BEA) national competition. The BEA is an organization for educators, students and professionals involved in teaching and research related to radio, television and electronic media education. Faculty and staff who assisted in the project were William Bolduc, videography; Richard Olsen and Ellen Walters, voice-overs; and Frank Trimble, music. Additional support came through James McNab in terms of a travel grant and Jo Ann Seiple, arts and sciences.

William W. (Woody) Hall, economics and finance, was elected president of the Academy of Economics and Finance at its 27th annual meeting in Nashville. Hall was also coauthor of the paper "Hurricane Intensity: Industry-Specific Direct, Indirect, and Induced Economic Impacts" which was presented at the meeting. The other authors were UNCW faculty Robert T. Burris, Jr., Christopher Dumas and Claude Farrell.

Stephen A. Skrabal, chemistry, along with doctoral student G. Christopher Shank present the poster "Dissolved Copper Speciation in the Cape Fear Estuary, North Carolina" at the American Geophysical Union Ocean Sciences meeting in San Antonio. Also, Skrabal and Christopher M. Terry a former chemistry graduate student, presented "Porewater Distributions of Dissolved Titanium in Estuarine and Coastal Marine Sediments." Skrabal had the paper "Intercomparison of Voltammetric Techniques to Determine the Chemical Speciation of Dissolved Copper in a Coastal Seawater Sample" published in the journal Analytica Chimica Acta, vol. 405. His co-authors were K.W. Bruland and E.L. Rue from the University of California at Santa Cruz, J.R. Donat from Old Dominion University and J.W. Moffett from Woods Hole Oceanographic Institution.

Mimi Cunningham, university relations, was a co-presenter on "From the 50th to the 250th: Celebrating Anniversaries with Style" at the Council for the Advancement and Support of Education (CASE) District III conference in Atlanta. Cunningham chaired UNCW's golden anniversary celebration in 1997-98 and is a member of the CASE District III board of directors.

Janet Ellerby, English, delivered the presentation "Shakespeare's Sisters" as part of the program "The Evolution of Women in the Cultural Arts" at the February Southeast cluster meeting of the American Association of University Women.

UNCW to Host Major Collection of Colonial Latin American Art

The Paul A. Clifford Collection of Colonial Latin American Art will open at 4 p.m. March 29 in Kenan Hall, Claude Howell Gallery. Public viewing will be from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday.

The exhibit, which will be displayed through April 28, will feature Latin American ecclesiastical paintings, sculpture and silver items from the 17th through 19th centuries from Peru, Bolivia, Ecuador, Guatemala and Mexico. Items on display will include paintings of St. Anthony and the Christ child and St. Gertrude and several sculptures depicting Madonna and child. Paul Clifford of Newton, N.C., has collected Precolumbian and colonial Latin American art for more than 30 years. He created the Precolumbian Collection at Duke University Museum of Art, and many of his colonial artworks are in the permanent collection of Charlotte's Mint Museum.

While many colonial period Latin American artists are unknown, Clifford's collection represents works of art of such high caliber that one would expect them to be displayed at the North Carolina Museum of Art, said Dorie Reents-Budet, director of the Museum of World Cultures at UNCW. Reents-Budet is overseeing the design and installation of the exhibit by UNCW student curators.

"The student curators are getting an opportunity to create an exhibit featuring world-class artworks," said Reents-Budet. "In addition to learning how to install and display the pieces, they have had to learn about the religious, historical and social significance of the items.

*Saint Anthony and the Christ child,
Paul Clifford Collection on loan to the UNCW Museum of World

They will include these cultural facets in wall texts which they are writing to accompany the objects which will augment the viewer's experience of these unknown yet fine artworks."

In addition to loaning the university items for the display, Clifford donated his personal research library of Precolumbian, Latin American and African art books to the university's Randall Library in honor of Reents-Budet and Gerald Shinn, UNCW professor emeritus of philosophy and religion and founder of the university's Museum of World Cultures.

"Paul Clifford believes that art enriches our lives and reveals human cultural history in a more lively and full manner than simply studying history from books," said Reents-Budet, who served as associate curator of Precolumbian art at Duke University from 1988-97. "Paul's collecting art and building exhibitions has always been motivated by his deep desire to make art accessible to the public and especially to students."

Prior to joining UNCW this past fall, Reents-Budet was a visiting curator at the Denver Art Museum, the Gardiner Museum of Ceramic Art (Toronto) and the Boston Museum of Fine Arts. She was curator and adjunct faculty in art history at Duke University and is a research associate at the Smithsonian Center for Materials Research and Education Museum Support at the Smithsonian Institution in Washington, D.C. She earned a master's degree in anthropology and a Ph.D. in art history from the University of Texas at Austin. She conducts field research in Precolumbian art and archaeology, specializing in ancient Mayan culture.

Molly Reading

Nancy Jones, a UNCW alumna who earned her master's degree in creative writing in 1998, will read from her debut novel Molly at 8 p.m. March 28 in King Hall Auditorium.

Released by Crown Publishers, Molly is a coming-of-age story about two young girls in Illinois during the 1940s. This free event is sponsored by the Creative Writing Department. There will be a reception and book signing after the reading.

FOCUS ON FACULTY AND STAFF

Alina M. Szmant, biological sciences and CMS, was one of the internationally-invited speakers and session chairs for the Japanese Marine Science and Technology Center (JAMSTEC) International Coral Reef Symposium on Coral Reef Biodiversity and Health as Indicators of Environmental Change, held in Tokyo. She presented the talk “Degradation of Coral Reefs: Are Indirect Effects of Overfishing Contributing to Coral Decline?” co-authored with Margaret W. Miller from NOAA/NMFS and Iliana Baums, a graduate student from the University of Miami. The purpose of the meeting is to initiate collaborative research on coral reefs between JAMSTEC and foreign institutions. Symposium organizer Mineo Okamoto conducted a research mission last summer in the underwater habitat, Aquarius, operated by UNCW/NURC.

Robert Argenbright, earth sciences, had the chapter “Space of Survival: The Soviet Evacuation of Industry and Population in 1941” published in the book Beyond the Limits: the Concept of Space in Russian History and Culture, (Studia Historica 62) Finnish Historical Society, 1999: 207-239, Jeremy Smith, editor.

Mark Galizio, psychology, presented the invited colloquium “The Psychopharmacology of Learning and Memory” to the Department of Pharmacology at the East Carolina School of Medicine.

Lou Buttino, communication studies, was honored by St. John Fisher College in Rochester, N.Y., for his commitment to a student fund-raiser supporting the last wish of terminally ill children. Buttino, who taught at St. John Fisher College, had this year's Dance for Love 24-hour marathon dedicated in his honor. The dance, in its 18th year, has raised more than $800,000 for the Children of Camp Good Days and Special Times.

James Megivern, philosophy and religion, wrote the article “Stop This Killing” for the London Tablet, the oldest Catholic news weekly in England.

Candace Gauthier, philosophy and religion, presented a paper on active voluntary euthanasia and terminal sedation at the annual meeting of the Association for Practical and Professional Ethics in Washington, D.C.

Lawrence B. Cahoon, biological sciences, had the review article “The Role of Benthic Microalgae in Neritic Ecosystems” published in the 1999 volume of Oceanography and Marine Biology: An Annual Review.

Ron Vetter, computer science, presented the talk “Agent-based Network Management Using Active Network Components” at the National Science Foundation workshop on network quality at Arizona State University. He also participated in several panel and small group sessions designed to define future NSF research areas under the general theme networks and quality.

Panel Discussions

A panel discussion featuring politicians Debbie Keck, Betty Medlin, Laura Padgett and Sandra Spalding-Hughes will be held at 7 p.m. March 27 in the Warwick Center, Center Stage Cafe. The four women will discuss their political experiences. Jennifer Horan, student academic support, will moderate the event which is sponsored by the Women in Leadership Mentoring Program.

Binge Drinking Teleconference Correction

The teleconference “Binge Drinking: From Understanding to Action,” was held March 16. CROSSROADS apologizes for any inconvenience caused by the error.

UNCW Hosts Guest Artist Jazz Festival

Vincent Herring and his quartet will perform during UNCW's annual Guest Artist Jazz Festival March 31 and April 1. Herring will be a featured soloist in concert with the UNCW Big Band at 8 p.m. Friday and will perform with his quartet at 8 p.m. Saturday. Both events will be in the Warwick Center Ballroom.

Herring, an alto/soprano saxophonist and composer, has performed worldwide. In 1983, after moving to New York City, Herring played with Lionel Hampton's big band and worked eight years with the Nat Adderley Quintet. A composer and performer for MusicMasters Jazz Recording, Herring has released eight CDs including American Experience, Days of Wine and Roses & Folklore and his latest Jobim for Lovers.

General admission is $5 for the Friday concert and $10 for Saturday and will be available at the door one hour before show time. For more information, call the Music Department at ext. 3390.

Poet Laureate Fred Chappell to Hold Reading

Fred Chappell, North Carolina's poet laureate, will read from his fiction and poetry at 7:30 p.m., Thursday, April 13, in Cameron Hall Auditorium. A reception and book signing will follow in the lobby. This event, sponsored by The King's Road and the UNCW Creative Writing Department, is free and open to the public.

Born in Canton, N.C., and educated at Duke University, Chappell has written 14 books of verse, eight novels, two volumes of stories and one book of criticism. He is a recipient of the Award in Literature from the National Institute of Arts and Letters, the Best Foreign Novel Prize from the French Academy, the Bollingen Prize in Poetry and the Ingersoll Foundation's T.S. Eliot Award for Creative Writing.

Chappell was named the Burlington Industries Professor of English at UNC

UNCW Convenes Border Conference 2000 in Pinehurst

Border 2000, a conference on interstate cooperation between North and South Carolina, has been scheduled for April 9 and 10. Convened by UNCW, this conference will focus on ways to eliminate barriers that prohibit interstate cooperation. Legislators, higher education and economic professionals and business leaders from both states have been invited to discuss common issues in health care, the environment and higher education.

"Political boundaries are in many ways artificial," said Chancellor James R. Leutze, who initiated the first border conference in 1998. "Policy issues in areas such as health care, education or the environment do not respect state or county lines. Instead, they cross political boundaries and can best be addressed by responsible people from different political jurisdictions. This second border conference will provide a forum for positive discussions of these issues."

The conference will open at 2 p.m. April 9 at the Carolina at Pinehurst Resort and Country Club in Pinehurst and conclude at 3:30 p.m. April 10. Betty Ray McCain, secretary of the N.C. Department of Cultural Resources, will deliver the keynote address at 7 p.m. April 9. In addition, Daniel Baden, director of the Center for Marine Science, will serve on the panel dealing with environmental issues.

To register for the conference, call ext. 3195 or visit the World Wide Web address <http://www.Border2000.com>.

UNCW-TV Wins Two Regional Awards

UNCW-TV, part of the Division for Public Service and Extended Education, captured two awards at the 2000 Southern Sunshine Video Festival held at the Alliance for Community Media Southeast Regional Conference.

Under the leadership of director Kate Walsh, UNCW-TV was named best among the programs submitted in the 'Series Program in the Educational Category' for "It's a Wonderful World." The video was produced for the Digital Communities International Forum held in Toyko in November, 1998.

UNCW-TV also was named best in a 'Series Program in the Talk Show Category' for Let's Talk! UNCW & You, hosted by Betty Ann Sanders. The show, which aired for the first time last May on The Learning Network of the Cape Fear, has produced 42 episodes including a special holiday music tribute and an out-of-town segment based in Fayetteville. The Division for Public Service and Extended Education would like to thank Pat Leonard, vice chancellor for the Division for Student Affairs, and the division staff for providing taping facilities for Let's Talk! UNCW & You and the forthcoming book discussion program Let's Read! UNCW & You.

The competition was judged by a panel of experts consisting of cable staff and community producers from across the Southeastern United States. Nearly 100 video programs were submitted from seven different states.

Free baby-sitting for faculty and staff will be offered from 6 to 10 p.m. April 5 in the University Union, Room 100. Games and activities will be provided. Children should bring a snack. To register, contact Kelly Floyd at 793-2361 or e-mail kgf0886 by April 4. The event is sponsored by the Women of the Panhellenic Council.

CROSSROADS Wants Everyone "N the Know"

The fact that college students drink alcohol heavily and regularly is a misconception at UNCW according to research from CROSSROADS, the university's substance abuse and education prevention program. To combat this image, the program has launched "N the Know," a campaign aimed at informing the campus community about the reality of students' alcohol use.

"The primary goal of the campaign is to educate the entire campus, faculty, students, staff and administrators about the norms of drinking by our students, so that everyone begins to realize the actuality of drinking behaviors," said Suzanne "Sam" Shover, CROSSROADS coordinator.

Using a random sample of UNCW students and results of focus groups taken during this past fall semester, CROSSROADS obtained information about UNCW students' alcohol use, their perceptions of other students' use and their preferences and opinions about marketing material and messages. The results confirmed that students have a distorted perception of the drinking habits of their fellow classmates.

Shover said that while 8 percent of the students surveyed stated alcohol affected their academic performance, they believed that 42 percent of other students' performance was affected by alcohol.

The program also used the information that UNCW students have between zero and five drinks when they "party" in crafting its "N the Know" social norms marketing initiative. The information was gathered by the 1998 bi-annual alcohol and drug use survey.

"This initiative is designed to reduce abuses that occur as a result of distorted perceptions," said Shover. "Educating people about healthy behaviors will reduce the distorted perception that most students drink often and a lot and, most importantly, may reduce high risk drinking."

Social norms marketing involves a research-driven approach to develop, test and promote a consistent message. Shover said some schools nationwide have implemented this approach and have documented a 10 to 25 percent reduction in high risk drinking behaviors. She said it could take one to four years for UNCW to see positive changes, but she is encouraged by the data from other institutions.

CTE Round Table Discussions and Workshops

The Center for Teaching Excellence will offer the following round table sessions which address teaching perspectives and issues:

"Feminist Pedagogy - An Exploration of Its Methods and Justifications" will be held at 7:30 p.m. April 4 in the University Union, Room 103B. It is cosponsored by the Feminist Colloquium.

"The Future of Academic Integrity: The Marginalization of Academic Priorities and Standards in the Contemporary University" will be held at 7:30 p.m. April 12 in the University Union, Room 100A.

CTE will also offer the workshops "Creating Multimedia Graphics, Audio and Video" and "Synchronized Multimedia Integration Language" from 9 a.m. to noon and 1 to 4 p.m. respectively April 8 in DeLoach Hall, Room 209.

In addition, CTE will host its spring 2000 course expo "Innovative Teaching and Learning Methods Across the UNCW Campus" at 7:30 p.m. April 19 in Warwick Center Ballroom 1.

Interested faculty and graduate students can reserve a seat by calling ext. 3034 or e-mail cte.

FOCUS ON FACULTY AND STAFF

Submissions for this section are published in order received. Due to the volume of submissions, there can be a two- to three-week delay in publication. Your patience is appreciated.

Tom Barth, political science, published "Artificial Intelligence and Administrative Discretion: Implications for Public Administration" in The American Review of Public Administration and the multi-volume book review "The Handbooks: Why, How, and Who" in Public Administration Review.

Stan H. Harts, safety, delivered the presentation "EPA Stepping Up Enforcement on University Campuses" at the North Carolina Office of State Personnel's Safety and Health Director's Workshop in Greensboro, N.C.

Thom Rakes, career services, presented the session "Six-Sided Career Services: Using Holland's Typology to Organize Your Career Center" at the national Career Centers for the Millennium conference at the University of Missouri-Columbia.

P. J. Lapaire, foreign languages and literatures, will have an excerpt of an article in progress on French new-wave novelist Philippe Dijan included in a critical volume to be published in Paris in April.

Michael Durako, biological sciences and CMS, presented the invited seminar "After the Die-off: Recent Large- and Small-scale Changes in the Seagrass Communities in Florida Bay" at Florida Gulf Coast University in Fort Myers as part of the Florida Sea Grant-sponsored Elise B. Newell Seminar Series.

David Gill, specialty studies, had two chapters included in Writers for Young Adults, Supplement I published by Scribners.

Dorie Reents-Budet, MWC, presented the paper "Words and Images: Classic Maya Art and Writing" at the annual College Art Association meeting in New York City. She also organized the symposium "Artists of the Ancient Americas" at the North Carolina Museum of Art in Raleigh. As one of the presenting scholars, she delivered the paper "Personification and Portraiture in Ancient Mesoamerica."

William Wadman, economics and finance, was invited to present a series of four lectures to the research staff of the Economics Unit at the Max Planck Institute in Jena, Germany. The lectures will be based on portions of his forthcoming book Variable Quality in Consumer Theory. He will also be a participant in a two-day seminar on developments in consumer theory.

Mike Mallin, Matt McIver, Doug Parsons and Chris Shank, CMS and biological sciences, had the article "Alteration of Factors Limiting Phytoplankton Production in the Cape Fear River Estuary" published in Estuaries, vol. 22 (December 1999).

Karen Tobiassen, landscape services, was named the Cape Fear Orchid Society Grower of the Year. She was also quoted in an article in the Jan. 13 issue of Encore about gardening supplies and pesticides.

Tim Necaise, Karen Tobiassen and Robert Warren, landscape services, were featured in the February issue of Carolina Gardener in an article about UNCW's Heritage Garden.

John Taggart, CMS, received $10,000 from the North Carolina Department of Natural Resources/Division of Coastal Management to fund the Coastal Reserve Program.

Michael Bradley, SBTDC, received $111,185 from the U.S. Small Business Administration for federal funding for the 2000 program year.

Stephen Meinhold and Lloyd Jones, political science, received $6,242 from New Hanover County for a follow-up study with selected attendees to the 1999 Project Impact Hurricane Preparedness Expo.

Karen Sandell, social work, received $29,332 from North Carolina State University for the North Carolina Family Group Conferencing Project, a collaborative effort to provide training in family-centered, community-based and integrative models for meeting children's needs for safety and attachment.

Eleanor Wright, curricular studies, received $7,000 from UNC Chapel Hill for the project "North Carolina Distance Education Partnership in Special Education Subcontract."

William Cooper and Thomas Tobien, chemistry, received $10,000 from Malcolm Pierneie for the project "Advanced Oxidation Processes for the Destruction of MTBE in Source Water."

Ann Crawford, specialty studies, Paul Shotsberger, mathematics and statistics, and Karen Shafer, SMEC, received $29,957 from the Eisenhower Program/UNC Math and Science Education Network for the project "Meeting Diverse Needs in High School Algebra and Geometry."

Eleanor Krassen Covan, gerontology, and Barbara Waxman, English, attended the annual meeting of the Association for Gerontology in Higher Education, in Myrtle Beach, S.C. They were accompanied by graduate students, Wendy Exposito and Beth Richards, and undergraduate students, Amy Carroll and Melissa Spear. Covan and Exposito co-authored the presentation "Teaching Women and Aging Through an Analysis of Life Histories." In addition, Covan participated in the discussion group "Defining the Verb 'To Age': Using an Algorithm as Our Roadmap" facilitated by Waxman. The students also presented their perspectives in a service-learning symposium with Covan.

Patricia Lerch, anthropology, gave the invited presentation "Context, Time, and Discourse in Identity Politics: The Indians of North Carolina" in the key symposium at the annual meeting of the Southern Anthropological Society held in Mobile, Ala.

Ned H. Martin, chemistry, gave the talk "Predicting NMR Shielding by Alkenes based on Ab Initio GIAO Calculations" at the 18th Austin Symposium on Molecular Structure, Austin, Tex. The research was performed by former and current students Noah W. Allen III, Justin D. Brown, Sal T. Ingrassia and Everett K. Minga.

OFFICIAL NOTICES

Faculty Meeting

The spring faculty meeting will be at 4 p.m. April 13 in Cameron Hall Auditorium, Room 105. All members of the faculty are encouraged to attend.

Call for Nominations for Honorary Degrees

Honorary degrees, which are granted by the faculty and trustees of UNCW, are the highest accolade the university can bestow on an individual who is not currently employed as a member of its faculty or staff. It is given to honor an individual who possesses outstanding qualities and talents, who has made exceptional contributions to the field of his or her endeavor and who exemplifies the highest standards of personal integrity and civic responsibility.

Nominations may be made at any time by any member of the university community. Forms are available at the Office of the Provost or the office of any academic dean or department. A single page supporting the candidate's qualifications should accompany the nomination form.

Additional information on the evaluation and approval process is available in the Faculty Handbook which is accessible on the World Wide Web at http://www.uncwil.edu/fac_handbook.

ACUC Meeting

The Institutional Animal Care and Use Committee will meet at 3 p.m. May 1 to review proposals involving vertebrate animals. Proposals are reviewed annually or when the protocol changes. Renewal proposals with no, or minor, modifications should be e-mailed to M. J. Carver at carvermj. New protocols should also be e-mailed to Carver along with one signed hard copy to follow. Interactive forms are available on the World Wide Web at <http://www.uncwil.edu/ora/forms> or send 15 copies to the Office of Research Administration by May 8. Direct questions to Dale McCall, committee chair, at ext. 3431 or Carver at ext. 809.

Tenure Panel Discussion

A panel discussion on reappointment, promotion and tenure will be held at 4 p.m. April 3 in Cameron Hall Auditorium. This informal question-and-answer session, which will be moderated by John Cavanaugh, provost and vice chancellor for academic affairs, will feature perspectives from the following panelists: Marcee Steele, curricular studies, a former member and chair of the RPT committee; Donna King, sociology, anthropology and criminal justice, a faculty member who completed RPT; and James Johnson, psychology, a senior faculty member. This discussion is sponsored by academic affairs, the Faculty Senate and the Committee on Reappointment, Promotion and Tenure.

ITSD Move

Effective March 30, the office of the vice chancellor for the Information and Technology Systems Division will relocate to Alderman Hall, Room 207. Direct questions to Bev Jolly at ext. 3888.

Faculty Advisers

Faculty advisers who have students planning to pre-register for MAT 111 should insure that they have an up-to-date mathematics placement recommendation which qualifies them for the course. Students without the appropriate placement recommendation must take the placement test. Students are required to complete a set of algebra review problems prior to scheduling an appointment for the placement test. The Math Lab has the review problems. Mathematics placement test dates are April 4, 7, 12. Direct questions to the Math Lab at ext. 7215 or Sandy Carlson at ext. 3885.

Regalia Rental

Faculty who need to rent regalia for commencement May 13 should contact Jessiebeth Geddie at ext. 3054 by March 31 to insure correct hoods. The cost to rent Ph.D. regalia is $32 plus tax, master's degree, $29.

Shared Leave

Shared leave donations are needed for Sonja Bartlett, accountancy and business law; Lori Preiss, human resources; and Jill Rodzik, public service and extended education. Direct questions to Willina Mitchell, human resources, at ext. 3006.

Staff Training

A Balanced Life Through Meditation and Mindfulness, noon to 1 p.m. Thursdays through April 27.

Compensation Issues, 9 to 11 a.m. April 18.

Fixed Assets, 9 to 10 a.m. April 4. Maintaining and Reading Your Budget, 9 to 11 a.m. April 13.

The Seven Habits of Highly Effective People, 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. April 25-27.

Refer to the Staff Training and Development Booklet for registration information or call ext. 3274.

Welcome

Please welcome the following new employees: Rosa Batts, Martha Formy-Duval, Roosevelt Miller, Jr., Wayne Mitchell and Raylene Stanfield, physical plant; Carol Gignilliat, earth sciences; and Sonja Kelly, psychology.

FACULTY PROFILE: ELEANOR COVAN

Creating An Army for Social Change

By Phillip Brown

The elderly are a burden on a society. That is a misconception Eleanor Covan has fought to change professionally for almost 30 years.

"Society has a uni-dimensional image of aging," said Covan, professor of sociology, director of the university's Gerontology Program and one of three distinguished professorship recipients at fall 1999 convocation.

"From a political perspective, there is a push to pit age groups against each other with regards to entitlement programs such as health care. From infants to expectant mothers to the elderly, these populations are facing health care crises. Yet some people view older adults as using more than their share of available resources."

This view is a disservice to the contributions that older people make within their families and society, said Covan.

"For the most part, economic resources flow down from older to younger generations," said Covan. "While middle-aged people fear the commitment that comes with caring for aging family members, they often benefit financially."

Covan's goal is for people to see older adults as fully developed people who have gifts and needs, which she said describes us all - young or old.

A descendant of Ukrainian immigrants, Covan learned first-hand from her grandparents that older adults have a lot to offer.

"Even as I child, I was a sociologist. My paternal and maternal grandparents grew up in another culture. I spent time listening to their stories - of life in the Ukraine and coming to America. These people were repositories of great history and knowledge, and I was interested in how their experiences influenced me. Older people do teach values and some of what I learned would have been lost had I not pursued my inquiries."

While Covan earned a bachelor's degree in sociology from Temple University in 1970, she said she was "clueless to her career path."

"Going to college from 1966-70, during an age of turmoil when everyone was protesting something, I was just trying to find myself. A situation not dissimilar from current UNCW undergraduates," said Covan.

Following an eight-week stint on a commune, Covan decided to come back to the "real world because looking for gurus was not a good idea."

She landed a job as a research assistant at the Philadelphia Geriatric Center under M. Powell Lawton, director of behavioral research. Lawton became her mentor, encouraging her to pursue graduate work.

"Powell had the capacity to find a person's special gift or talent in everyone whom he encountered, and he nurtured it. While I had been accepted to graduate school, I had decided not to go. Powell encouraged me to take some methods courses. He said they would help hone my strong questionnaire and interview skills. He knew of my relationship with older family members and felt I could put my skills to work in the emerging field of gerontology."

Covan went on to earn a master's degree from Temple and later a doctorate from the University of California, San Francisco.

Even after completing a Ph.D., Covan said she resisted the world of academia.

"I still wanted to be in the real world. I took a job as planning director for the Kern County Economic Opportunity Corporation. Yet, even though I was planning director, I was teaching. I taught low income people how to fill out job applications. I also taught part-time at California State University at Bakersfield and the University of San Francisco," said Covan. "I realized that I could have greater impact on the lives of the elderly and lower income people in the classroom. If I could inspire a class of 30 to feel the outrage that I felt, then I could build an army for social change. Academia gives me the ability to put together my goals - teaching, research and service - in the classroom.

"I want to work in the real world, with real people and conduct real research. I want to build bridges for my students to the real world using projects that have been identified as a need to the community," said Covan.

To illustrate this philosophy, undergraduate students in Covan's Sociology of Aging class are investigating the impact of hurricanes on older adults.

"This was not my idea," said Covan. "The project is a cooperative effort identified by local and state agencies. With help from Marlene Rosenkoetter, students are using a survey to interview adults at community nutrition sites, service agencies and their homes about storm impacts."

Once the information has been compiled, Covan said the results will go to Dan Summers, New Hanover County emergency management director.

"He can use the information to assess the county's preparation and recovery effectiveness," said Covan.

In addition to the survey, students are videotaping some residents and providing them with a copy of the interview.

"Some older adults lost everything of a material nature, including photos and treasured keepsakes. These histories are a tangible representation of their lives. Even though they can't replace what was lost, they can copy the video and give to family members as a record of their existence. It's life reaffirming," said Covan.

This type of project exemplifies that Covan's philosophy of teaching, research and service are intertwined.

"I don't separate teaching from learning or teaching from research," said Covan. She said she hopes that in receiving the Distinguished Professorship Award, her peers and students recognized this ability as well as her efforts in mentoring.

Covan, who had the opportunity to accept a faculty appointment to the University of Chicago, a research-oriented institution, opted in favor of UNCW.

"I wanted the opportunity to reach undergraduates who had similar experiences to my own, first- or second-generation college students who need guidance."

"UNCW is an institution committed to serving its region," said Covan. "I can use my philosophy to make a difference, and our students can be proud of what they learn and accomplish."

Randall Library Receives Significant Medical Collection

The William Madison Randall Library at the University of North Carolina at Wilmington received a donation of 1,200 history of medicine books from the personal collection of Dr. H. William Gillen, a retired Wilmington neurologist. This gift gives the library the state's fourth largest history of medicine collection, according to Sherman Hayes, university librarian.

The H. William Gillen History of Medicine Collection is a major contribution in size, significance and value, said Hayes.

"Dr. Gillen has given us more than a thousand useful titles, but more than that, he has shared with us his more than 40 years of collecting expertise and his own refined judgment on what are important medical history works," said Hayes.

"Many of these titles will help scholars across the state and country," said Hayes, adding that a portion of the works are so rare that they can only be found in select national libraries. The works will be housed in the library's Special Collections wing.

Most of the donated works are original editions with publishing dates from the mid-1600s through the 1990s. There are titles on the history of virtually all areas of medicine including anatomy, neurology, surgery, practice, disease, herbal medicine, non-Western medicine and ancient medicine. Some highlighted titles in the collection include: Schola Salernitana, 1657; The English Malady by Cheyne, 1733; Opera Omnia Physico-Medica by Friedrich Hoffman,

Student Recreation Center to Open April 11

The University of North Carolina at Wilmington will celebrate completion of its new Student Recreation Center from 4 to 6 p.m. April 11. This 64,000-square-foot building, located at the corner of Price Drive and F Street, will house campus recreation and wellness services operations.

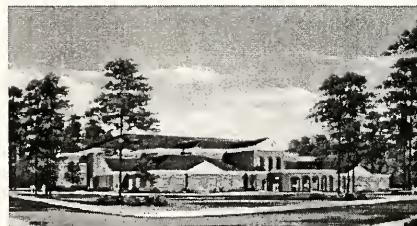

"Educating students about a healthy lifestyle, and to that end providing improved access to indoor and outdoor recreational facilities is part of our 'whole student' mission," said Chancellor James R. Leutze. "This center is the result of a student mandate. In 1994, the UNCW Student Government Association, acting on behalf of the student body, approved a student fee increase to fund construction of this facility. Our students realize the positive rewards of an active lifestyle and agreed to fee increases designed to build and maintain this center."

1740-54; Oeuvres 14 volumes by Tissot, 1790 Observations by Whytt, 1765; Medical and Surgical History of the War of the Rebellion three volumes, 1875, Lectures of Cerebral and Spinal Diseases by Charcot, 1883; The Pituitary Body and Its Disorders by Harvey Cushing, 1912; and Practice of Medicine by Tice, 1962.

Gillen, a neurologist, started his medical practice in Buffalo, N.Y., in 1957. He moved to Wilmington where he worked 25 years prior to retiring in 1993. An adjunct professor in biological sciences at UNCW, Gillen taught at

Construction of this $8 million dollar facility was fully funded through student fees. The State of North Carolina does not permit state dollars to go into building recreation areas or facilities.

Following grand opening ceremonies, which include a student ribbon cutting and performance by the UNCW Pep Band and Dance Squad, the Student Recreation Center will be open for informal tours. A special group exercise class, led by UNCW alumnus Terry Shiver, will illustrate how this facility will be used.

medical schools at the University of Mississippi, University of Buffalo, Indiana University and UNC Chapel Hill. A long-time supporter of the library, Gillen has donated books and other items over the years, said Hayes.

In conjunction with the donation, Randall Library is sponsoring the exhibit "Herbal Medicine Throughout the Ages" featuring titles from the H. William Gillen History of Medicine Collection. The exhibit will be displayed through Aug. 15 in the library's second-floor Special Collections Room which is open noon to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Faculty Advisory Committee Meeting

The Chancellor's Faculty Advisory Committee will meet at 7:30 a.m. April 12 in Alderman Hall, Room 215.

Committee members are: Robert Blundo, social work; Patricia Buerger, HPER; Andrew Clark, history; Gary Faulkner, sociology and anthropology; Dargan Frierson, mathematical sciences; Philip Furia, creative writing; Mark Galizio, psychology; Randy Hanson, accountancy and business law; Louise Hessenflow, School of Nursing; Tammy Hunt, management and marketing; Julian Keith, psychology; Rebecca Lee, English; Robert Nathanson, music; Laura Rogers, specialty studies; Robert Smith, Watson School of Education; and Lynn Snowden, sociology and anthropology.

Faculty are encouraged to share comments and suggestions with committee members.

Astronomy Lectures

Robert T. Rood, professor of astronomy at the University of Virginia, will present "Searching for Unicorns and Extraterrestrial Civilizations" at 8 p.m. April 6 in King Hall Auditorium. In addition, he will present "The Abundance of Lightest Elements: 'Observing' the Universe at an Age of a Few Minutes" at 2 p.m. April 7 in DeLoach Hall, Room 212. These free, public lectures are sponsored by the Harlow Shapley Visiting Lectureship Program of the American Astronomical Society.

Piano Performance

Pianist Valerie Zamora will perform at 8 p.m. April 10 in Kenan Auditorium. Zamora, who is nearly deaf, has studied at music conservatories and performed worldwide. She is a recipient of numerous grants and awards including the North Carolina Emerging Artist Grant. Admission is $10, $5 for senior citizens and students. For more information, call the Music Department at ext. 3390.

Graham Awarded Fulbright Chair

Otis L. Graham, distinguished visiting professor in history, was selected as the Fulbright Bologna Chair in Italy for spring 2001. He will lecture in the Department of Politics, Institutions and History at the University of Bologna.

In appointing Graham, the Fulbright Foreign Scholarship Board recognized his "impressive academic accomplishments." Graham, a modern U.S. historian, is the author of 16 books and anthologies on 20th-century history. While in Italy, he plans to teach about U.S. political institutions, environmentalism and immigration.

Calling All Rosies

Kathleen Berkeley, history, will present "Calling All Rosies: Women Go to War, 1939-46" at 8 p.m. April 12 in Morton Hall, Bryan Auditorium. This free lecture is part of the series "You Must Remember This . . . A Celebration of '40s Popular Culture" sponsored by Randall Library and the USS North Carolina Battleship Memorial.

Perko Wins National Award

Mike Perko, assistant professor of health education, received the inaugural Horizon Award from the American Alliance for Health, Physical Education, Recreation and Dance at the organization's national convention in Orlando, Fla. This award recognizes "individuals in the field of health education, who, in less than five years of earning their terminal degree, have shown outstanding potential to obtain leadership and prominence in the health education profession." Perko serves as the youngest member of the association's board of directors.

At the convention, Perko delivered the keynote address "Investing in Intellectual, Social and Philosophical Capital" to National Health Education Student Majors of the Year winners.

Graduate Thesis Defense

Terri Maness, a graduate student in biological sciences, will defend "Assaying Royal Terns for Evidence of Genotoxic Exposure" at 2 p.m. April 7 in Dobo Hall, Room 103.

Theatre Professor to Judge Student Competition

Terry Theodore, art and theatre, will serve as a film juror for the annual Student Academy Awards April 7-10 at the Film Center in Portland, Ore. Selected by the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences, Theodore will judge entries in four categories: narrative, alternative, animation and documentary.

Atlantis Reception

A reception in honor of the 2000 edition of the Atlantis, UNCW's student art and literary journal, will be held at 7 p.m. April 12 at Barnes and Nobles Booksellers. First editions of the journal will be distributed and selected contributors will read their works.

Glass Menagerie Performance

UNCW Theatre will present Tennessee William's The Glass Menagerie, under the direction of Terry Rogers, at 8 p.m. April 6-8 and 3 p.m. April 9 in Kenan Auditorium. For ticket information, call the auditorium box office at ext. 3500.

Candidate Forums

Two forums featuring individuals running for the New Hanover County Board of Education and the New Hanover County Board of Commissioners will be held at UNCW. The first forum, set for 7 p.m. April 17 in King Hall Auditorium, will be for the 11 school board candidates. The second forum, 7 p.m. April 18, will feature the 11 county commission candidates. Questions will be entertained from the audience. Donn Ansell, WAAV talk show host, will moderate the forums sponsored by the Council of Neighborhood Associations, WAAV Radio and UNCW.

Note of Appreciation

Mary Anne Martin, music, would like to "thank everyone for their heartwarming outpouring of concern, love and support during the loss of my son, Barry. You have all helped so much. God bless you all."

Go Girls Go! Lecture

Christian Baudelot, professor of sociology at the Ecole Normale Supérieure in Paris, will present "Go Girls, Go! Girls and Women in the French Educational System" at 3:30 p.m. April 13 in Morton Hall, Room 212. The lecture is sponsored by the Department of Foreign Languages and Literatures.

Earth Day 2000

An Earth Day celebration will be held from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. April 22 at Hugh MacRae Park.

Induction Ceremony

The UNCW Circle of Omicron Delta Kappa National Leadership Honor Society will hold its spring induction ceremony at 2 p.m. April 9 in Wagoner Hall, Madeline Suite. All faculty and staff, especially ODK alumni, are invited to attend. For more information, contact Julie Owen at ext. 3797 or Karla Carney at ext. 3089.

Holocaust Lecture

Christopher Browning, professor of history at UNC Chapel Hill and author of Ordinary Men: Reserve Police Battalion 101 and the Final Solution in Poland, will lecture on "Nazi Ethnic Cleansing: Prelude to the Holocaust" at 7:30 p.m. April 12 in Cameron Hall, Room 105.

Sigma Xi Meeting

The UNCW chapter of Sigma Xi, the scientific research society, will hold its spring meeting April 13 in Dobo Hall. From 6:30 to 7:30 p.m., there will be a student poster session in the first floor lobby followed by the formal meeting in Room 134. During the meeting, Steve Thorpe, visualization specialist at the North Carolina Supercomputing Center, will present "Scientific Data Visualization: Overview and Demonstrations." In addition, Thorpe will be on campus April 14 for talks with faculty and students on this subject. His visit is sponsored by the Information and Technology Systems Division.

Faculty should encourage students interested in displaying research posters to e-mail the poster title and name of presenter, co-authors and faculty adviser to Steve Kinsey, Sigma Xi secretary, at kinseys by April 10.

FOCUS ON FACULTY AND STAFF

Courtney Hackney, biological sciences, was a source for a series of articles published by the Philadelphia Inquirer regarding a federal subsidy of commercial waterfront property.

Lynne Snowden, sociology, anthropology and criminal justice, co-authored the textbook Collective Violence with Steven Barkan, University of Maine-Orono. Published by Allyn and Bacon, the book will be available for fall classes.

William McCarthy, history, delivered the paper "From Indolence to Indigence: National Identity in the Early Spanish Philippines" at the conference Localities of Nationhood in Manila, Philippines, at the Ateneo de Manila. Support was provided by the Office of International Programs and the College of Arts and Sciences.

Keith Newlin, English, had his book American Plays of the New Woman, published by Ivan R. Dee of Chicago. The volume is an edited collection of "six plays from the early 20th century about the 'proper' role of women."

Steven Miller, Dione Swanson and Mark Chiappone, NURC, presented two papers and two posters on their monitoring and assessment program in the Florida Keys at the 29th annual Marine Benthic Ecology meeting hosted by UNCW.

Steven Miller, NURC, is chair of the Aquatic Nuisance Species Task Force committee that addresses the tropical green seaweed Caulerpa taxifolia which has caused substantial environmental and economic damage in the Mediterranean. The committee will lead a national prevention effort and establish a model for future prevention activities related to invasive species in U.S. waters. In addition, Miller was an invited participant at a National Research Council/NSF meeting to evaluate the need and design of seafloor observatories to support future oceanographic research needs in the U.S.

Philip Gerard, creative writing, had his sixth book Writing a Book That Makes a Difference published by Story Press. The book attempts to discover the process whereby writers through the ages have successfully addressed great ideas, significant themes and public subjects.

David Berman, computer science, presented the talk "Generalized Tournament Designs" at the 31st Southeastern International Conference on Combinatorics, Graph Theory and Computing held at Florida Atlantic University. He reported joint work with Sandra McLaurin and Douglas Smith, mathematics and statistics.

Wade Watanabe, CMS, gave the invited address "Research Update on Marine Finfish Aquaculture in the Southeastern U.S." at the North Carolina Aquaculture Development Conference in New Bern. He co-chaired (with Harry Daniels, NCSU) a session on "Marine Finfish Culture" in which students James Henne, Kimberly Copeland, Patrick Carroll and Christopher Woolridge, biological sciences, presented progress papers in their respective areas of thesis research.

Bob Brown, psychology, had the articles "Fetal Alcohol Syndrome," "Fragile X Syndrome," and "Rett Syndrome" accepted for publication in the Encyclopedia of Psychology and Neuroscience to be released later this year by Wiley. Also, his article "Exercise Demonstrating a Genetic-environment Interaction" originally published in the journal Teaching of Psychology has been reprinted in the second edition of the Handbook of Demonstrations and Activities in the Teaching of Psychology published by Erlbaum.

David Gill, specialty studies, had the article "Split Up the English Curriculum for Better Writing Skills" reprinted by The Education Digest.

Ron Vetter, computer science, presented "An Introduction to the Technologies of the Internet" at Allegheny College, Meadville, Pa., as part of the nationally-recognized ACM Distinguished Lecturer Program.

N.C. Secretary of State to Lecture at UNCW

Elaine F. Marshall, the first woman ever elected to a statewide, executive branch office in North Carolina, will lecture at 2 p.m. April 18 in the Warwick Center, Ballroom 3. A fellow of the Institute of Political Leadership at UNCW and a member of the institute's board of directors, Marshall will lecture on issues concerning women in politics and government.

In addition to being secretary of state, Marshall serves on the board of directors of the N.C. Justice Academy, the N.C. Center for Public Policy Research and the N.C. Economic Development Board. She is also a trustee of Meredith College in Raleigh.

"Secretary Marshall has been very active in reforming and modernizing the secretary of state's office by initiating the concept of 24-hour availability of the state government to its citizens," said Walt DeVries, director of the Institute of Political Leadership, which is sponsoring this free lecture. "She has gained a diverse range of experiences and is the most qualified individual in the state to speak on issues about women in politics and government."

Prior to her election as secretary of state, Marshall worked as a school teacher, business owner and attorney. She also represented the state's 15th district in the N.C. State Senate. She earned a bachelor's degree from the University of Maryland and is a graduate of the Campbell University School of Law.

Students Cut Ribbons to Support Bond Issue

ECO members cut green ribbons to support May 2 bond referendum.

Members of the UNCW Environmental Concerns Organization (ECO) helped cut approximately 80,000 yards of green ribbon into four-foot strips to support the May 2 New Hanover County Open Space and Parks bond referendum.

If approved, the $45 million bond will be used to acquire natural, open space for bike paths and nature trails, as well as to purchase and develop recreational parks and athletic fields.

Bond supporters are asked to tie a green ribbon around a tree in their yards. Ribbons are available at McDonalds and Independence Mall. ECO will hold a Green Ribbon Campaign to raise awareness about the bond from 9 a.m. to noon April 15 at the University Union.

Barth Wins Award for Book Review

Thomas Barth, associate professor of political science, received the Laverne Burchfield Award from the Public Administration Review at the American Society for Public Administration conference held April 1 in San Diego, Calif.

This national award, which honors Laverne Burchfield, managing editor of the Public Administration Review from 1943-58, is given annually for the best book review published by the journal. Barth was leader of a team which reviewed eight of the major handbooks about public administration. The award-winning review "Public Administration Handbooks: Why, How and Who" appeared in the journal's November/December 1999 edition. Barth shared the award with co-author Mark T. Green, assistant professor in the Graduate School of Public Affairs, University of Colorado at Denver.

Chappell Reading

Fred Chappell, North Carolina's poet laureate, will read from his fiction and poetry at 8 p.m. April 13 in Cameron Hall Auditorium. A reception and book signing will follow in the lobby.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Vetter Appointed Computer Science Chair

Ronald J. Vetter was named chair of the Department of Computer Science. He will assume the duties July 1.

Vetter received his Ph.D. in computer science from the University of Minnesota in 1992. He has held full-time faculty positions at Moorhead State University and North Dakota State University. A respected and popular teacher as well as a recognized expert in computer networks and technology-based education, he was the first UNCW faculty member to teach an on-line course. A distinguished lecturer for the Association for Computing Machinery, Vetter is a senior member of the Institute for Electronics and Electrical Engineering (IEEE). In addition to publishing more than 20 research articles since receiving his doctorate, he edits the monthly "Internet Watch" column in the IEEE Computer magazine and gives numerous professional presentations each year.

Vetter replaces Barbara Greim, who has served as interim chair of the new department since its establishment two years ago. Greim is retiring June 30 after 31 years of service to the university.

Physics Colloquium

Otto Zhou, professor of physics and materials science, Department of Physics and Astronomy, University of North Carolina Chapel Hill, will present "Science and Technology of Carbon Nanotube-Based Materials" at 2 p.m. April 14 in DeLoach Hall, Room 212. Refreshments will be served at 1:45 p.m.

Graduate Thesis Defense

Alison Bennett, a graduate student in biological sciences, will defend the thesis "Assessment of the Impact of Raking Pine Straw on Arthropods in Longleaf Pine (Pinus palustris) Forests" at 2 p.m. April 14 in Dobo Hall, Room 103.

High School Start Program

The Division for Public Service and Extended Education is sponsoring a free program for New Hanover County high school students interested in learning coping and problem-solving skills. "Start Now 2001: A Building Path to Adulthood" will be offered from 1 to 5 p.m. June 12-16 and 26-30. Registration is limited. For information, call ext. 3195.

Leadership Month

During the month of April, UNCW will recognize exemplary student leaders and part of its second annual Leadership celebration.

"There are a lot of people doing wonderful things on campus, who don't often get recognized for it," said Julie Owen, assistant director of Leadership and Volunteer Programs. "(Leadership Month) is a way to stop and recognize them and show just how many students are involved and making an impact."

Event highlights include the Student Leader Photograph, a group picture of student leaders which will be taken at 4 p.m. April 13, on the Campus Commons and the Student Leader Reception, at 6 p.m. April 26, in the Warwick Center Ballroom, which will recognize more than 300 student leaders from various organizations and departments.

Free Concert

The UNCW Saxophone Quartet and Chamber Ensemble, under the direction of Frank Bongiorno, will perform a free concert at 8 p.m. April 15 in Kenan Auditorium. The student ensembles will perform works by Villa-Lobos, Ravel, Palestrina, Pachelbel, Mozart and others.

For more information, contact the Department of Music at ext. 3390.

Ryan White Legacy

Jeanne White-Ginder, the mother of Ryan White, will present "Creating a Legacy of Understanding, Acceptance and Love" at 7 p.m. April 13 in King Hall Auditorium.

Easter Brunch

Campus Dining will offer an Easter brunch buffet from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. April 23. The cost is $6.02 for adults and $3 for children under 12. Look for the menu in next week's Campus Communique.

Women's Issues in Higher Education

A panel discussion on women's issues in higher education featuring Virginia Adams, dean of School of Nursing; Peg Bradley-Doppes, director of athletics; Michelle Howard-Vital, vice chancellor for public service and extended education; Pat Leonard, vice chancellor of student affairs; and Jo Ann Seiple, dean of the College of Arts and Sciences; will be held from 3 to 4:30 p.m. April 25 in Cameron Hall Auditorium.

Note of Appreciation

Kathy Dennis, application services and Carol Strickland, systems and procedures, would like to thank faculty, staff and planning committee members who assisted with the UNC FRS Users Conference held at the Hilton Wilmington Riverside March 19-22. The conference, hosted by Dennis and Strickland, had 285 participants representing the 16 campuses of the UNC system, General Administration, Office of State Personnel, Office of State Auditors and Office of State Controllers. Thirteen of the 46 conference sessions were conducted by UNCW faculty or staff members.

Easter Egg Hunt

Faculty and staff are invited to bring their children to an Easter egg hunt at 3 p.m. April 16 at Hugh MacRae Park, Shelter 6. The event is sponsored by the women of Alpha Xi Delta Fraternity.

Secretary's Day

The bookstore has a wide selection of gifts for Secretary's Day, April 26. Receive a free Mylar balloon with selected Secretary's Day purchases.

Steven Miller, NURC, received $290,000 from Emerson Associates for research and monitoring in the Florida Keys National Marine Sanctuary. In addition, he received $1,000,000 from NOAA for "NURC/UNCW Annual Funding Proposal 2000."

Nancy Grindlay and Lewis Abrams, earth sciences, received $58,622 from the U.S. Geological Survey, Office of Acquisition and Federal Assistance for the project "Collaborative Research UNCW and UTIG: Toward an Integrated Understanding of late Holocene Fault Activity in Western Puerto Rico: Offshore Geophysical Survey."

Martin Posey, Troy Alphin and Christopher Powell, biological sciences and CMS, presented the invited talk "Trophic Connections Between Oyster Reefs and Adjacent Sand-Flat Communities" in a special session on functional roles of bivalves in marine environments at the National Shellfisheries Association meetings in Seattle.

Susan Stacy Cox and Leslie Rand-Pickett, career services, and Julie Owen, Leadership Center, gave presentations at the North Carolina College Personnel Association's 2000 Support Staff Workshop at Johnston Community College. Cox presented "Be More than Your Job: Breaking the Nine to Five Barrier;" Rand-Pickett presented "Pushing the Luck of Your Students: Incorporating Career Development with Student Workers;" and Owen presented "Finding Your Creative Self: Yes, Everyone Has One!"

Carolyn E. Farley, University Union, presented the session "Best Practices: Involving Faculty in College Union and Student Activities Programs" at the Association of College Unions International conference in New York City. In addition, the research phase of the renovation/construction project for the Union, Warwick Center and Burney Student Support was featured in an architecture showcase of college union projects.

Faculty Meeting

The spring faculty meeting will be at 4 p.m. April 13 in Cameron Hall Auditorium, Room 105. All members of the faculty are encouraged to attend.

Work-study Job Orders

Departments hiring a work-study student for either summer session should submit job order forms (H.R. 162) as soon as possible to career services.

Be a Part of Graduation

Volunteers are requested to help with commencement May 13. Commencement is held at 10 a.m. and volunteers commit four hours from 8 a.m. through noon to assist with the ceremony. An informational meeting will be held the week prior to commencement. To volunteer, call Mary Crookes, university events coordinator, at ext. 7231 or send e-mail to crookesm. Panel Focuses on Caribbean Opportunities

Jeanette Hyde, former U.S. ambassador to seven Eastern Caribbean nations, will be among the panelists for the discussion "Caribbean Opportunities and Challenges at the Dawn of the 21st Century" at 7:30 p.m. April 24 in Morton Hall, Bryan Auditorium.

In addition to Hyde, who was ambassador to Barbados, Dominica, St. Vincent, St. Lucia, Antigua, Grenada and St. Kitts-Nevis from 1994 to 1998, the panel will include Sir Courtney N. Blackman, current ambassador for Barbados to the United States, and Clifford E. Griffin, associate professor of political science and public administration and director of the Master of International Studies Program at North Carolina State University.

Hyde, a North Carolina native, is a prominent businessperson involved in numerous retail, commercial real estate development and private investments. In 1987, she and business associates founded Triangle Bank and Trust of Raleigh. In addition to serving on Triangle's board of directors, Hyde served on the N.C. International Trade Commission, the N.C. Board of Transportation and the N.C. Global TransPark authority. She has received numerous awards recognizing her civic, charitable, educational and political work including distinguished alumna awards from Wake Forest University and Delta State University and the Triangle World Affairs Council's Distinguished Citizen for Public Service. In 1996, the U.S. Coast Guard presented her its highest civilian award for public service for her treaty work in the area of drug trafficking interdiction. Hyde is a member of the UNCW Board of Visitors and adviser to the university's International Cabinet.

Blackman has served as Barbados' ambassador to the U.S. since January 1995. He graduated with an honors degree in modern history from the University of West Indies and earned his Ph.D. from New York's Columbia University Graduate School of Business. An authority on central banking in developing countries, Blackman served three terms as founding governor of the Central Bank of Barbados from 1972 to 1987. From 1987 to 1994, he worked as an international business consultant to several governments, central banks and international corporations. He is the author of Central Banking in Theory and Practice in a Small State Perspective.

Griffin, who hails from St. Kitts and Nevis, earned a Ph.D. from the University of Rochester and specializes in development programs and politics in Latin America and the Caribbean. He is the author of Democracy and Neoliberalism in the Developing World: Lessons from the Anglophone Caribbean as well as numerous journal articles and book chapters on the social, economic and political issues affecting the Caribbean.

This panel discussion is part of the "Critical International Perspectives" series sponsored by the UNCW Office of International Programs and the Office of the Chancellor.

UNCW-TV Launches New Reading Show

UNCW-TV, which produces the weekly award-winning talk show Let's Talk! UNCW & You, will air the inaugural broadcast of its newest offering, Let's Read! UNCW & You, at 7 p.m. May 11 on The Learning Network of the Cape Fear (TLN, TW Cable Channel 5). Both shows are hosted by Betty Ann Sanders, a 16-year veteran of radio and television.

Let's Read!, co-sponsored by New Hanover County Library, will showcase authors from across North Carolina and the South as well as writers in UNCW's Creative Writing Department. Each 30-minute show will feature an author, an interviewer and a live audience. The audience, many of who are members of area book clubs, will be able to question the author about writing style and their other works.

The show's first guest is Fred Chappell, poet laureate of North Carolina and author of more than 20 books. Chappell, a native of Canton, is the Burlington Industries Professor of

This 18-mile trek will explore some of the region's unique biotic communities such as the carnivorous plant bog behind Alderman Elementary School. The route also circles Greenfield Lake prior to returning to MacRae Park.

Leutze and Johnston Named to State Smart Growth Commission

Chancellor James R. Leutze and Lee Johnston, political science, were appointed to serve on separate working groups of the N.C. Commission on Smart Growth. The working group members were appointed by the commission's co-chairs, Sen. Howard Lee and Rep. Joe Hackney.

The 1999 Budget Bill created the N.C. Commission on Smart Growth (formerly called the Commission to Address Smart Growth, Growth Management and Development Issues), and directed it to study growth, growth management and development issues across North Carolina.

"In order to carry out the work of the commission in the most productive and efficient form, working groups were formed to engage in in-depth evaluation, investigation and discussion," said Sen. Lee. Each working group consists of 12 or 13 commission members and three to four advisers.

Johnston is serving on the Farm and Open Space Preservation group. Its focus is to preserve farming, protect the environment through better air and water quality, protect wildlife habitat and structure taxes to provide incentives for the preservation of farm, forestry and open space.

Chancellor Leutze will work with the group on Regional Partnerships. Wilmington mayor David Jones was also named to the commission, he will work with the Community and Downtown Vitalization group.

High School Start Program

The Division for Public Service and Extended Education is sponsoring a free program for New Hanover County high school students interested in learning coping and problem-solving skills. Social Security Symposium

The Wilmington Social Security Administration and UNCW are sponsoring "Social Security Symposium 2000" from 8:30 a.m. to 1 p.m. May 10 in Dobo Hall. Judy Chesser, deputy commissioner for legislative and congressional affairs, will serve as keynote speaker. She will lead a discussion of issues related to social security. Also speaking will be John Cavanaugh, provost and vice chancellor for academic affairs. Participants can choose to attend four of eight breakout sessions featuring presentations by Eleanor Covan, gerontology, and representatives from Rep. Mike McIntyre's staff and the Social Security Administration. Look for the registration form which is an insert in this week's Campus Communique. For more information, contact Terry Parker at 815-4629.

Book Sale

The New Hanover County Public Library will hold a book sale May 4-6.

Secretary's Day

Famous Amos Promoting Literacy at UNCW

Wally Amos, inventor of "Famous Amos" cookies and a spokesperson for literacy programs nationwide, will promote reading during events April 24 and 25 at UNCW and Barnes and Noble Booksellers.

Amos is the national spokesperson for Literacy Volunteers of America and is a board member of the National Center for Family Literacy and Communities in Schools. His appearance in Wilmington is sponsored by the Watson School of Education.

"Amos is a national leader who is actively involved in the literacy movement," said Andrew Hayes, interim dean of the Watson School of Education. "Wally's visit will support our curriculum, in which we teach about literacy and the importance of reading to children. A component of our Educational Lab involves education students working as reading tutors to area youth. Reading is fundamental to the learning process, and unfortunately low levels of literacy among children and adults continue to be a concern in North Carolina and the United States."

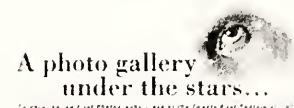

Hayes has written extensively on the subject of literacy and in 1996 served as director of research for the National Center for Family Literacy in Louisville, Ky., where he worked closely with Amos.

During his UNCW visit, Amos will discuss and demonstrate the importance of reading with Ed Lab tutors, children, parents and faculty. He will make a public presentation in which he will talk about the importance of adults modeling reading and reading to children at 10 a.m., April 25 at Barnes and Noble Booksellers, 322 South College Road.

Prior to founding the Famous Amos Cookie Company in 1975, Amos was the first African-American agent for the William Morris Talent Agency, where he represented The Supremes and Marvin Gaye. He is credited with signing the then-unknown duo Simon and Garfunkel.

Photography Students to Show Work on Hoggard Lawn

Students from UNCW's first photography class of the 21st century will display their work on a 400-square-foot screen from 8 to 10 p.m. April 27 on the Hoggard Hall lawn. The class, led by Brownie Harris, adjunct professor and noted international photographer, will display a variety of photographs illustrating use of various photographic processes. This event is sponsored by EUE Screen Gems Studios, Tarheel Photo, Southeastern Camera and Signal Design.

Easter Brunch

Campus dining will offer an Easter brunch buffet from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. April 23 at Wagoner Hall. The cost is $6.02 for adults and $3 for children under 12. The menu will include: carved prime rib, carved ham with apple dijon glaze, marinated grilled chicken breast with pineapple fruit salsa, pesto tri-pepper bow tie pasta, omelets cooked to order, sausage links, assorted vegetables, salads, desserts and beverages.

Panel Discusses Women's Issues in Higher Education

A panel discussion on women's issues in higher education featuring Virginia Adams, dean of the School of Nursing; Peg Bradley-Doppes, director of athletics; Michelle Howard-Vital, vice chancellor for public service and extended education; Pat Leonard, vice chancellor of student affairs; and Jo Ann Seiple, dean of the College of Arts and Sciences, will be held from 3 to 4:30 p.m. April 25 in Cameron Hall Auditorium.

FOCUS ON FACULTY AND STAFF

Submissions for this section are published in order received. Due to the volume of submissions, there can be a two- to three-week delay in publication. Your patience is appreciated.

Martin Posey and Troy Alphin, biological sciences and CMS, along with five students from the UNCW Benthic Ecology Lab attended the Blue Crab Symposium held at UNCW and hosted by Posey and D. Eggleston from NC State University. More than 110 scientists and managers specializing in blue crab biology and fisheries attended. Posey, Alphin and N.D. Allen co-authored three presentations at the meetings.

Elizabeth Hines and Michael Smith, earth sciences, presented the invited talk "The Rush Started Here: Gold Mining in North Carolina, 1799 - 1999" as part of the Gold - Its Geology and Heritage in Celebration of the Bicentennial of America's First Gold Rush symposium at the 2000 Southeastern Geological Society of America meeting in Charleston, S.C. (GSA Abstracts with Programs, vol. 32, no. 2, A26). Hines also presented the invited talk "Kernow Comes to Carolina: Cornish Miners in North Carolina's Gold Rush, 1830-1880" at the Gold in Carolina and America Symposium: A Bicentennial Perspective on Gold, Its Geology and Its History, held at the Reed Gold Mine near Charlotte.

Michael Smith, earth sciences, Jack Hall, earth sciences and environmental studies, and Tim Woodcock, a graduate student in earth sciences, presented "Will the Real Taeniaster Please Stand Up? Ophiuroids from Swatara Gap, Orodivean Martinsburg Formation, Pennsylvania" at the 2000 Southeastern Geological Society of America meeting (GSA Abstracts with Programs, vol. 32, no. 2, A84). In addition, Smith chaired the session "Petrographic and Chemical Methods in the Analysis and Interpretation of Historic Artifacts."

William Cleary, earth sciences and CMS, organized the Symposium on Shorelines and Shorefaces of the Carolinas: Recent Advances held in Charleston, S.C., as part of the Southeastern section meeting of the Geological Society of America. He presented the paper "Variations in Inlet Behavior and Shoreface Geology: Influence on a Perched Barrier System. In addition, he presented the invited paper "Inlet Related Sand Resources: Environmental and Management Issues in Southeastern North Carolina" in a symposium on the role of geology in coastal restoration. He and his co-authors, including graduate students Joni Backstrom, Andy McLeod and Mark Rauscher, presented seven papers at the two-day meeting. Other co-authors included Stanley Riggs from ECU, Rob Thieler, U.S. Geological Survey, Nancy Grindlay, earth sciences; Maryellen Sault, NOS; and Marcus Johnston, University of Nevada at Reno. Cleary was also the opening speaker for a public forum "Our Beaches: Managing for the Forces of Nature" organized by the Brunswick Environmental Action Team. The forum held at the Museum of Coastal Carolina, Ocean Isle Beach, dealt with managing the eroding Brunswick County shorelines. Cleary's presentation focused on the coastal processes shaping the area, the shoreline history and the proposed nourishment projects.

Carolyn E. Farley, University Union and Julie Owen, Leadership Center, had the article "A Grove Honors Campus Leaders" published in the Association of College Unions International The Bulletin as a part of the "What's New in College Unions and Student Activities" feature section. This article highlighted the leadership grove which was founded in cooperation with Tim Nease and the UNCW Campus Arboretum project.

Mark Galizio, Julian Keith and Raymond Pitts, psychology, received $105,437 from the National Institutes of Health for the project "Drugs of Abuse and Complex Behavior."

Ned H. Martin, chemistry, presented the paper "Predicting NMR Shielding by Alkenes Based on Ab Initio GIAO Calculations" at the North Carolina Academy of Science annual meeting at North Carolina State University. The research was performed by students Noah W. Allen III, Justin D. Brown, Sal T. Ingrassia, and Everett K. Minga. Martin also served as a judge of the student papers in the chemistry section.

Marlene M. Rosenkoetter, gerontology, presented the research "The Transition to Later Life: A Comparison Study of Men and Women" at the American Society on Aging annual meeting held in San Diego, Calif.

Mike Mallin, Larry Cahoon, James Merritt, Ron Sizemore and Kathleen Williams, biological sciences and CMS, has the article "Restoration of Shellfishing Waters in a Tidal Creek Following Limited Dredging" published in the Journal of Coastal Research, vol. 16. It was co-authored by Patrick Lowe, New Hanover County Planning Department.

Stephen Skrabal, Robert Kieber and William Cooper, chemistry, received $171,000 from SERDP for the project "Speciation, Fluxes and Cycling of Dissolved Copper and Zinc in Estuaries: The Roles of Sediment-Water Exchange, Photochemical Effects and Interactions with Chromium"

Laela Sayigh, biological sciences, received $33,844 from the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, Wilmington District for monitoring bottlenose dolphins, sea turtles and manatees.

William Cooper, chemistry, received $10,000 in supplemental funding from the National Science Foundation to support undergraduate students assisting with research on the electron beam process in drinking water treatment.

James Merritt, CMS, received $7,500 from the Town of Carolina Beach to support the Lower Cape Fear River Program.

Colonial Art Exhibit

The Paul A. Clifford Collection of Colonial Latin American Art is on display through April 28 in Kenan Hall, Claude Howell Gallery. Public viewing will be from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday.

FOCUS ON FACULTY AND STAFF

Carmelo Tomas, biological sciences, received $12,841 from the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration for "Ocean Color Algorithm valuation for Remote Sensing of Coastal and Estuarine Waters: U.S. South Atlantic Bight and Eastern Gulf of Mexico."

Robert Roer, Thomas Shafer, Richard Dillaman, biological sciences, received $82,435 in supplement funding from the National Science Foundation for their research on the blue crab exoskeleton.

Arthur Spivak, CMS, received $21,434 from Applied Semiconductor Inc. for the project "the Effect of Capacitance to Surface Area Ratio on the Zn Oxidation Rate of a Semiconductor Coating."

Mike Bradley, SBTDC, was featured in the article "A Modern Tradition: Boatbuilding Boom Launches Economic Renaissance in Eastern North Carolina" published in the April 2000 issue of Entrepreneur magazine.

CAS Convocation

The College of Arts and Sciences will hold its annual spring convocation at 3:30 p.m. May 3 in Morton Hall, Room 100. In addition to announcing this year's recipients of the Chancellor's Teaching Excellence Awards, the event will recognize eight faculty entering phased or full retirement, four department chairs who are completing their terms of service, the 1999-2000 recipients of the Faculty Scholarship Awards and the winner of the Board of Governor's Teaching Excellence Award.

Fulbright Chairs

May 1 is the deadline for the Fulbright Distinguished Chairs Program. Candidates must be U.S. citizens who have a prominent record of scholarly accomplishment. For more information, contact Gary Faulkner at ext. 3795 or Karen Adams at 202/686-6245.

Denise DiPuccio, foreign languages and literatures, read the paper "The Culture Shock of Staging a Play in the Foreign Language Classroom" at the Theatre and Academe Conference at Washington and Lee University in Lexington, Va. DiPuccio was also the program chair for the Association of Hispanic Classical Theater annual symposium in El Paso, Texas.

Rick Olsen, communication studies, presented two papers at the Southern States Communication Conference in New Orleans. "Walter and the Technicolor Paradigm" examined how the work of Walter Fisher may offer a response to problems regarding truth claims associated with postmodernity. "Living Above it All: The Liminal Fantasy of Sport Utility Vehicle Advertisements" examined how advertisements offer the SUV as a way of re-establishing a "natural" relationship with the environment. This fantasy helps explain why SUVs are so popular among consumers who don't really need their off-road features.

OFFICIAL NOTICES

Employee Recreational Benefit

With the opening of the Student Recreation Center, employee recreational opportunities have moved from Hanover Hall and Trask Coliseum with the exception of swimming, racquetball and incidental locker room use. The university will provide access to the Student Recreation Center for employees with permanent appointments at half-time or greater and retirees as a university-sponsored benefit (so long as this is practical in the context of the overall budget). UNCW ID cards are required.

Other university community members eligible to receive UNCW ID cards including adjunct and part-time faculty, resident contractors, temporary employees and adult family members may use the Student Recreation Center for $5 per day. ID card is required and the fee must be paid at entrance. Guest passes are also available for the same fee, however, guests must be accompanied by a university member.

Direct questions regarding this benefit to human resources at ext. 3855 or 3698. For questions regarding the recreation center facilities or hours of operation, call ext. 3261.

Swansea Semester Director

The Office of International Programs (OIP) seeks a faculty member to serve as the resident faculty director for the spring 2001 UNCW-University of Wales in Swansea (UWS) study abroad program.

Applicants should be tenured or tenure-track faculty. Responsibilities include the teaching of a UNCW Honors enrichment course and one course for the UWS American Studies Program. For complete description or to apply, contact OIP at ext. 3685. Review of applications begins May 5, and the position will be filled by June 15.

Ad Deadline Changes

Vacancy announcements for the Sunday edition of the Wilmington Star-News must be sent to human resources by noon of the preceding Tuesday. This change reflects an earlier deadline implemented by the Star-News. Send a completed HR 1.10 along with each vacancy announcement. Direct questions to Lori Preiss at ext. 3162.

Be a Part of Graduation

Volunteers are requested to help with commencement May 13. Commencement is held at 10 a.m. and volunteers commit four hours from 8 a.m. through noon to assist with the ceremony. An informational meeting for all volunteers will be held the week prior to commencement. To volunteer, call Mary Crookes, university events coordinator, at ext. 7231 or send e-mail to crookesm@uncw.edu. Tickets are only issued to students and their guests; serving as a commencement volunteer is an opportunity to participate in and enjoy this event.

Randall Library Easter Break Schedule

Randall Library will observe the following Easter Break schedule: 8 a.m. to 9 p.m. April 20, 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. April 21, 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. April 22 and 3 p.m. to 2 a.m. April 23.

Airfare Authorizations

The deadline to call accounting with airfare authorizations is now 3 p.m. If not immediately needed, enter travel requisitions into FRS for processing the next business day. Direct questions to Betty Mills at ext. 3149.

Travel Reminder

In order to prevent reimbursement delays, itemized receipts for lodging require a zero balance. For receipts that show a balance, supporting documentation is required to substantiate that the balance has been paid.

Marquee Information

Requests for information to be posted on the marquee at the front of campus can be submitted through the World Wide Web. For the URL, contact facilities reservations at ext. 7098.

IACUC Meeting

The Institutional Animal Care and Use Committee will meet at 3 p.m. May 11 to review proposals involving vertebrate animals. Proposals are reviewed annually or when the protocol changes. Renewal proposals with no, or minor, modifications should be e-mailed to M. J. Carver at carvermj@uncw.edu. New protocols should also be e-mailed to Carver along with one signed hard copy to follow. Interactive forms are available on the World Wide Web at <http://www.uncwil.edu/ora/forms> or send 15 copies to the Office of Research Administration by May 8. Direct questions to Dale McCall, committee chair, at ext. 3431 or Carver at ext. 3809.

Progress in process causes temporary disruption

Ground was broken Monday for the long-anticipated $8 million classroom building next to Morton Hall.

When completed, this 54,000-square-foot facility will be home to the Communication Studies, Political Science, Foreign Languages and Literatures and Social Work Departments and the Film Studies Program. It will have 16 multimedia-enabled classrooms, three computer labs, office space for faculty, common areas, a television studio and a satellite TV viewing room. It was designed by Rooney Architects with Clancy & DeLoach Construction Company as the general contractor. Construction is expected to be complete by Fall 2001.

While this long-awaited building will eventually relieve crowded classroom and faculty office conditions across campus, it will cause some disruptions as the school year draws to a close.

All of the parking spaces in Lot G (currently reserved for faculty and staff) will be eliminated and a portion of Lot G will be taken up with construction trailers. Temporarily, 130 spaces will be lost. Once the project is completed, 50 of these parking spaces will be put back in Lot G. Work started Monday to remove Parking Lot M.

To replace the lost faculty and staff spots, part of Lot G will be made into a gated lot with access limited to faculty and staff. This will be operational by Summer Session I. In the meantime, temporary cones will be used to reserve spaces for faculty and staff, and a University Police officer will direct traffic there until spaces in Lot G can be painted yellow. A temporary road will also be constructed to permit safe entry into Lot G.

"We understand the problems construction will cause for faculty and students; however, there will be plenty of parking by Summer I," said Dick Scott, assistant vice chancellor for business affairs. "In the short-term, the parking situation will impact students more, but by fall, new student parking will be added to replace the lost spaces. Also, during the summer, we will reconfigure some parking in Randall Library lot and DeLoach lot to add spaces for students."

Another concern in any construction is the necessity to remove trees which sit in the building's footprint. Scott stressed that the site has been carefully reviewed with an eye to preserving trees, and only trees that must be removed for construction will be removed.

Chancellor Jim Leutze assured the university community that trees

While part of Lot G behind Morton Hall will be used during construction of the classroom building, there will still be about 50 parking spaces for faculty and staff.

will be replanted once construction is finished, likely on a ratio of two to three trees for every one taken.

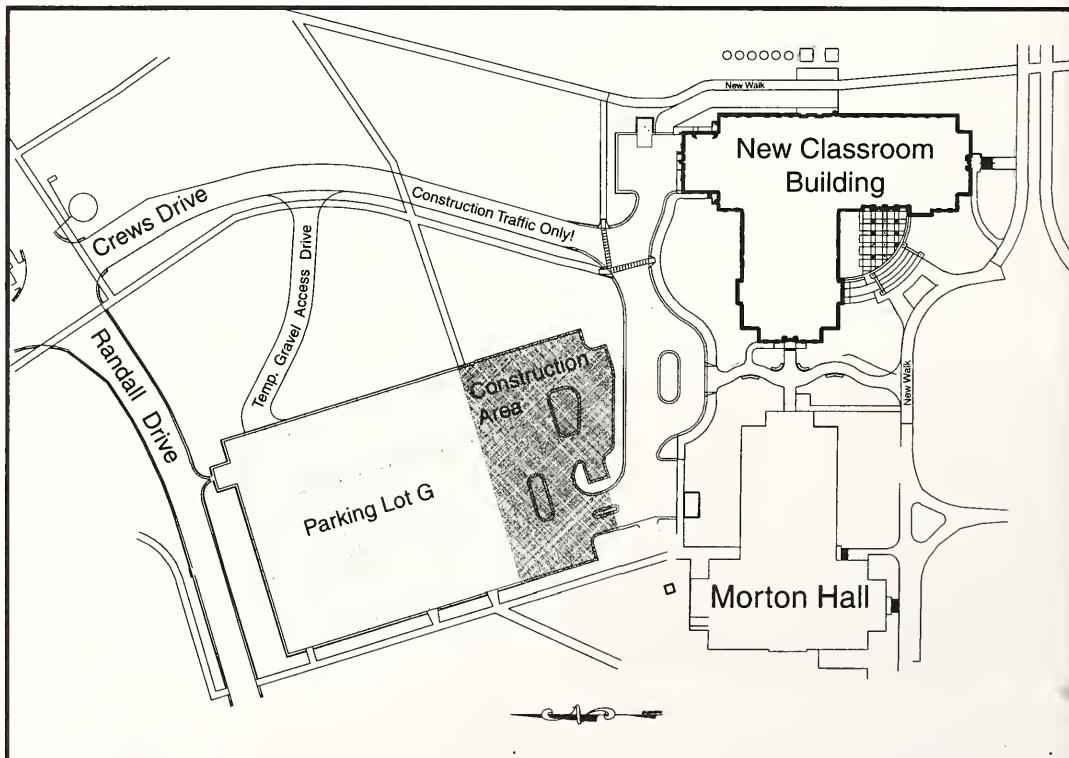

"One of the nicest features of the new building will be the gathering area between it and Morton," he said. "It will be people friendly, with a fountain and large-caliper shade trees.

"Please be assured that we have done everything possible to make sure only the trees directly in the way of construction will come down. We ask faculty, staff and students to be patient with the parking and other disruptions associated with construction and stay focused on the wonderful building and common area that will ultimately result," Chancellor Leutze said.

For additional information, contact Dick Scott at 962-3067 or scottr.

Endowment Fund Hits $21.5 Million

As UNC Wilmington continues to grow, so does its endowment fund, which totaled $21,507,478 million as of March 31.

UNCW's first endowment gift was $25,000, donated in 1949 by Wilmington Mayor E.L. White. Since the arrival of Chancellor James R. Leutze in 1990, the fund has more than tripled. In 1990, the endowment totaled $4.9 million.

"The growth in this endowment reflects the community's involvement and support in UNC Wilmington's potential," said Leutze. "Contributions made to UNC Wilmington pay off in stellar faculty and superior students. We are grateful for the community's expanded investment in this university."

The endowment fund is made up of gifts and bequests from donors who have stipulated that the principal be retained and invested to produce income, which must be expended in accordance with their wishes. The minimum amount needed to start an endowment account is $25,000. Endowment income is used to fund scholarships, professorships, student loans, organized research and institutional support and is managed by a seven-member board appointed by the Board of Trustees.

Shared Leave

Shared leave donations are needed for Ember Roberts, career services, and Mazelle Williams, student academic support. Direct questions to Willina Mitchell, human resources, at ext. 3006.

Social Security Symposium

The Wilmington Social Security Administration and UNCW are sponsoring "Social Security Symposium 2000" from 8:30 a.m. to 1 p.m. May 10 in Doho Hall. For more information, contact Terry Parker at 815-4629.

Howard-Vital to Receive Distinguished Alumnus Award

Howard-Vital

Michelle R. Howard-Vital, vice chancellor of the Division for Public Service and Extended Education, will receive the Distinguished Alumni Award from the University of Illinois at Chicago at its commencement ceremonies on May 7. Howard-Vital is being recognized for her contributions to education in the areas of scholarship, teaching, service and administration.

Howard-Vital, who has been with UNCW since October 1993, oversees a staff of 35 in a division charged with responding to the educational, cultural and economic development needs of the university's service region. Offices and initiatives within the division include the Global Virtual University, UNCW-TV, Community Outreach Services, Small Business and Technology Development Center, N.C. Marine Trades Services, Lifelong Learning, MarineQuest, Conferences, Creative Services and Community Relations.

Howard-Vital, who also holds a teaching position in the Watson School of Education, received a bachelor and master's degrees in English literature and language from the University of Chicago and a doctorate in public policy analysis, specializing in education, from the University of Illinois at Chicago. Prior to coming to UNCW, she was associate vice president for academic programs and dean of University College at Edinboro University.

Maurice Martinez, specialty studies, chaired the panel "Perceptions of Race and Ethnicity in Popular Culture" at the annual conference of the National Association for Ethnic Studies in Boston. In addition, Martinez loaned one of his collection of musical instruments from Brazil, a berimbau used by Mestre Bimba, founder of the first capoeira academy registered with the Brazilian government in 1937, for an exhibit at the California African-American Museum in Los Angeles.

Kathy Ruggoff and Brooks Dodson, English, read the papers "Poets after Whitman and Students in the Future" and "Revisiting Thomas Hardy in the New Millennium" respectively at the annual conference of the College English Association in Charleston, S.C. Each also chaired a conference session.

Kathy Ruggoff, English, had the essay "Three American Requiems Contemplating - When Lilacs Last in the Dooryard Bloom'd" published in Walt Whitman and Modern Music: War, Desire, and the Trials of a Nationhood edited by Lawrence Kramer, New York: Garland, 2000. A CD with vocals performed by Joan Heller is included.

John Cavanaugh, academic affairs, was elected a Fellow of Division 2 (Teaching of Psychology) in the American Psychological Association. He was a Fellow of Division 20 (Adult Development and Aging).

Xin Chen, history, gave the talk "Survival and Resistance in the Aftermath of the Great Leap Forward" at the East Asia Center at Brandeis University. His review article (in Chinese) "Did Birth Control Really Slow Down the Population Growth in Jiangnan History?" was accepted for publication by China Scholarship in Beijing.

Richard Engdahl, management and marketing, will serve as keynote speaker for the New Zealand Organisation for Quality 2000 Conference.

Rick Dixon, Technology College, Patty Turrisi, Center for Teaching Excellence, Jeff Brown, mathematical sciences, and Steve Perry, UNCW web master, presented "Assessment and Testing Over the Internet" at the 11th annual Southeastern Regional Technology and Teaching Conference: Momentum in the Millennium held in Greenville.

Virginia W. Adams, nursing, moderated the 2000 regional summit "Educating Nurses for a Preferred Future in School Health" in Atlanta. Adams chaired the task force on school health for the Southern Regional Education Board Council on Collegiate Education for Nursing. This Helene Fuld-funded project emphasized strong partnerships for school nurses and nurse educators in the 16 SREB states.

Walton Wins National Scouting Award

Robert O. Walton, Jr., vice chancellor for business affairs, received the Distinguished Eagle Scout Award. This national honor recognizes men for their service to the community and achievement in their profession and who have been Eagle Scouts for at least 25 years. Walton was nominated for the award by the (BSA) Cape Fear Council.

strong system of public education. I personally will miss his wise counsel, his mountain wit, and his pointed insights," Leutze said.

Robinson began his professional career as a public school math teacher and coach. He became a principal and then superintendent of Cabarrus County and Charlotte-Mecklenburg County Schools. He was vice president for public affairs and then vice president for special projects for the University of North Carolina General Administration. As chairman of the N.C. State Board of Education, he was instrumental in the development of the state's school accountability program, the ABCs of Public Education. In recognition of his success in convincing legislators and educators to implement the program, he was named one of Teacher magazine's 10 most influential people in American education during the past decade.

Robinson has been credited with encouraging the North Carolina Citizens for Business and Industry to get involved with the state universities and community colleges to advocate for funding the state's higher education facilities needs. At UNCW, he has been an avid supporter of funding for a new $1.75 million building to house the Watson School of Education and educational resource center.

The Watson School of Education recognized Robinson in 1995 with a Razor Walker Award for Educational Administration.

Invited to present remarks at the memorial service are Gov. Jim Hunt, UNC President Emeritus C. D. Spangler, Jr., and UNC President Emeritus Bill Friday. Wrightsville Beach United Methodist Church, of which Robinson was a member, is coordinating the memorial service. No funeral service is planned.

Memorial gifts should be made to the N.C. High School Athletic Association, P.O. Box 3216, Chapel Hill, NC 27515, or the Wrightsville Beach United Methodist Church Building Fund, P.O. Box 748, Wrightsville Beach, NC 28480.

Surgeon General's Adviser to Help School of Nursing Graduates Celebrate

Beverly Malone, senior adviser to the Surgeon General of the United States, will speak as part of the UNCW School of Nursing graduation celebration at 6 p.m. May 12 in Kenan Auditorium.

Malone, deputy assistant secretary for health in the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services, serves as senior adviser to David Satcher, assistant secretary for health. Prior to her appointment in December 1999, Malone was serving a second two-year term as president of the American Nurses Association (ANA), the nation's leading professional organization representing 2.6 million registered nurses. She was also dean, interim vice chancellor of academic affairs and professor at North Carolina A&T State University.

The School of Nursing graduation celebration will include the presentation of student awards and a pinning ceremony for students who will receive their degrees at the university's formal commencement May 13. This is a special ceremony because the pin is designed by each school of nursing to denote its graduates. Customarily, the pin is based upon the philosophy of the nursing school as well as the entire university.

The UNCW School of Nursing celebration coincides with National Nurses Week May 6-12. During the week, the nursing school will host the Nurses Night Celebration Reception and Banquet at 6 p.m. May 10 in the Warwick Center Ballroom. The event will honor registered nurses from the ANA District 22, which includes Brunswick, New Hanover and Pender counties. "Nurses Keeping the Care in Health Care" is this year's theme for National Nurses Week. Both events are open to the public.

UNCW Receives Gift From Casting Agency

Fincannon & Associates Inc., an Emmy award-winning casting agency based in Wilmington, donated industry-related materials from more than 300 film and television projects to the Film Studies Program at the University of North Carolina at Wilmington.

Included in the gift are scripts in various draft forms, personal and business correspondence, production memoranda, casting reports, acting contracts and other materials from feature films such as Firestarter, Blue Velvet, Days of Thunder and the television shows American Gothic and Matlock.

"As UNCW prepares to offer a film studies major, this collection will be immensely useful to faculty and students for research and instruction," said Ellen Walters, director of the Film Studies Program. "This gift will provide opportunities to develop courses in such subjects as North Carolina independent filmmaking and the business of filmmaking. We are very grateful for the

UNC-TV Program Focuses on UNC System Building Crisis

Over the next 10 years, some 50,000 new students are expected to flood the state's universities. Physical plants at many schools are run-down. Others are operating with outdated laboratories or are packed and cannot accommodate increased numbers without additional facilities.

A Building Crisis, a documentary produced by UNC-TV that reviews these conditions on campuses in the UNC system, will air on UNC Public Television at the following times and dates: 10 p.m. May 5, 1 p.m. May 7, 6 p.m. May 21, 9 p.m. June 1 and 10 p.m. June 27. UNC-TV broadcasts locally on Time Warner Cable Channel 6.

This one-hour documentary is the most comprehensive report to date on the university system's facility needs. A UNC-TV crew visited all 16 campuses where they toured buildings and interviewed university officials. At UNC Wilmington, the crew toured an overcrowded King Hall, which houses the Watson School of Education. UNCW Chancellor James R. Leutze and the late Jay Robinson, former chair of the State Board of Education and member of the UNCW Board of Trustees, discussed the necessity of a larger facility for the Watson School of Education.

Social Security Symposium

The Wilmington Social Security Administration and UNCW are sponsoring "Social Security Symposium 2000" from 8:30 a.m. to 1 p.m. May 10 in Dobo Hall. For more information, contact Terry Parker at 815-4629.

FOCUS ON FACULTY AND STAFF

Lavonne Adams, creative writing, read from her poetry and led a writing session for sixth grade students at Topsail Middle School as part of the National Poetry Month celebration.

Thomas N. Janicki, production and decision sciences, won the Distinguished Research Award for his paper "Benchmarking of Web-Based Course Management Tools" presented at the 2000 meeting of the Allied Academies in Myrtle Beach. It was co-authored by Jens Liegle of Georgia State University.

Eleanor Krassen Covan, gerontology, presented a service-learning workshop at the annual meeting of the Southern Gerontology Society along with Holly Henderson, Cape Fear Area Agency on Aging. Melanie Bradshaw, a student in Covan's Sociology of Aging class, assisted in the presentation. Covan and Wendy Exposito presented an address on women and aging at the AKD Initiation of the International Honor Society at Coastal Carolina University in Conway, S.C.

Philip Gerard, creative writing, had his latest work Writing a Book That Makes a Difference featured as the main selection of the Writer's Digest Book Club.

Royce Angel, public service and extended education, was recognized by the Cape Fear Council of the Boy Scouts of America. The 1999 class of Eagle Scouts was named in his honor for his long-term commitment to scouting.

Art Spivack, earth sciences, had the paper "Drilling Induced Contamination of Deep-sea Crust" published in procedures for microbial sampling of the seafloor for the Ocean Drilling Program.

P. J. Lapaire and Susan Crampton, foreign languages and literatures, gave presentations at the annual Blue Ridge International Conference on the Humanities and the Arts, held at Appalachian State University. Lapaire gave presentations on "French Poetry of Expression and Romantic Nuance" and on the problems of cinematographic adaptations (based upon a novel of French New Wave writer, Philippe Djian). Crampton's paper was on the confusion and fusion of poetry and dance in the works of French poet Stephane Mallarme. Crampton chaired a session on the female body in 19th and 20th century French literature.

Bruce Ragon, public service and extended education, gave a presentation on HIV/AIDS and human growth and development to a comprehensive group of teachers, guidance counselors, social workers, nurses and administrators at the School Health and Community Collaboration Conference in Green Bay, Wis. The conference was sponsored by the Green Bay Area Public Schools and Community Health Agencies in surrounding areas to better educate and prepare staff in the areas of HIV/AIDS and human growth and development.

James Merritt, CMS, received $182,810 from N.C. Sea Grant/NOAA for a state and federal marine advisory service program.

Wendy Marshall, specialty studies, received $58,000 from Tarman Educational Services Inc. for the project "A+vanced Learning System Center for Excellence Grant."

Steven Miller, CMS and NURC, was keynote speaker at Purdue University's Engineering Expo 2000. A live Aquarius presentation was conducted, and Miller discussed the Aquarius 2000 program in terms of its engineering systems and use of the underwater laboratory for science. Miller also chaired a session for the Aquatic Nuisance Species Task Force meeting at the University of Miami, related to a harmful algal bloom in the Mediterranean caused by the green seaweed Caulerpa taxifolia.

Stormwater Program

The North Carolina Stormwater Management Stakeholders Initiative will meet May 8 and 9. The May 8 meeting, scheduled for 1 to 5 p.m., will be broadcast via teleconference at locations statewide including UNCW. The May 9 meeting will be from 9:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. at the North Durham water reclamation facility, 1900 East Club Boulevard in Durham.

The Environmental Management Commission charged this stakeholders team with developing a comprehensive stormwater program that protects water quality, allows for consolidation of the Division for Water Quality stormwater programs and provides flexibility throughout the state.

Blizzard Nation's Top Three-Point Shooter

Brett Blizzard, who set school and conference records for his three-point shooting expertise during the 1999-00 season, is the recipient of the Edward S. Steitz Award as the best three-point shooter in the nation by the Basketball Hall of Fame in Springfield, Mass.

The Steitz Award is named after the late Dr. Edward S. Steitz, who was enshrined into the Basketball Hall of Fame in 1983. Steitz, the "father" of the college basketball three-point shot, was a longtime athletic director at Springfield College and was responsible for various rules changes, notably the reinstatement of the dunk in 1976 and the 45-second clock in 1985. The Ed Steitz Award is presented to the male and female players with the highest three-point shooting percentage with no less than an average of 3.0 three-pointers made per game. A 6-3, 190-pound freshman from Florida High School in Tallahassee, Blizzard paced the men's basketball team in several statistical categories during the past season in fueling the Seahawks' Colonial Athletic Association championship and first NCAA Tournament appearance.

Blizzard

"Obviously, I'm very excited that Brett has been presented with the Edward S. Steitz Award," said Jerry Wainwright, head coach of the men's basketball team. "Without question, he had an incredible freshman year, and certainly his ability to shoot the basketball helped make our team competitive at the highest level of NCAA competition. His hard work in the gym and his previous coaching from his father, Al, have made him as good an outside shooter as I've been around in my coaching career."

Blizzard averaged 15.6 points in starting all 31 games for the Seahawks and was the team's leading scorer in 21 appearances. He was named CAA Player-of-the-Week twice during the regular season and collected CAA Rookie-of-the-Year, First-Team All-Conference, All-CAA Tournament and CAA Tournament MVP honors. Blizzard became the first freshman in the history of the CAA to earn first-team All-Conference and CAA Tournament MVP recognition. In addition, he set five records and tied another in his rookie campaign.

Sociologist John Reed to Address Graduates

John Shelton Reed, professor and author, will speak before one of the largest classes of UNC Wilmington graduates at 10 a.m. May 13 in Trask Coliseum. He will address approximately 1,190 bachelor's degree candidates and 170 master's candidates.

Reed, William Rand Kenan, Jr. Professor of Sociology and director of the Institute for Research in Social Science at UNC Chapel Hill, completed his undergraduate work at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and received his Ph.D. from Columbia University. Since 1969, he has worked in the Department of Sociology at UNC Chapel Hill.

Reed has written or edited more than a dozen books including 1001 Things Everyone Should Know About the South and The Enduring Effects of Education, Surveying the South: Studies in Regional Sociology.

Master's degree candidates should report to Hanover Gym at 9 a.m., and bachelor's degree candidates should report to Hanover Gym at 9:15 a.m. to robe and prepare for the processional. Following the main ceremony, academic departments will hold individual commencement ceremonies and host receptions for their graduates and guests.

UNCW-TV will broadcast live coverage of commencement on The Learning Network, Time Warner Cable Channel 5. In addition, to accommodate an expected large number of guests, there will be a simulcast of the ceremony in the Warwick Center Ballroom.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Chancellor's Staff Advisory Committee Meeting

The Chancellor's Staff Advisory Committee will meet at noon May 16 in Alderman Hall, Room 215. Members of the committee are: Annie Aldrich, telecommunications; Lisa Allred, payroll; Margaret Bailey, public service and extended education; Glenda Bowen, Watson School of Education; Phillip Brown, advancement; Judy Connelly, bookstore; Susie Goodrum, institutional research; Faith Joyce, physical plant; Lori Leitch, biological sciences; Mike Lloyd, printing services; Steve Mastro, CMS; Charles Mills, physical plant; Lucille Mills, Randall Library; Annette Richards, nursing; and Karen Thompson, career services. Staff are encouraged to share comments and suggestions with committee members.

Let's Read! Premieres

Let's Read! UNCW & You will debut at 7 p.m. May 11 on the Learning Network of the Cape Fear, Time Warner Cable Channel 5. Hosted by Betty Ann Sanders, the show features North Carolina poet laureate Fred Chappell and members of the Happy Bookers Club discussing I Am One of You Forever. Other panelists include Clyde Edgerton, creative writing, and Ben Steelman from the Wilmington Star-News. Rebroadcasts will air at 7 p.m. May 18 and 25 and June 1.

Girls Soccer Camp

The Women's Soccer Program will hold two soccer camps June 26-30 and July 23-28 for girls ages seven to 14 and 12-18 respectively. Daughters of faculty and staff will receive a $25 discount per week of the camp. For a registration brochure, contact Paul Cairney or Tammy DeCesare at ext. 3932.

Former Seahawk Joins Alumni Relations

Lamont Franklin '97, a former standout on the men's basketball squad, was named interim alumni program coordinator in the Office of Alumni Relations.

In that position, Franklin will work to increase alumni involvement by developing new chapters to meet the diverse needs of an expanding alumni base. He will also help coordinate events for the alumni association's board of directors and assist the executive director in daily administration of the association.

"Lamont is a leader and will be an asset to our staff," said Pat Corcoran Smith '72, executive director.

UNCW Student Named Entrepreneur of the Month

Josh Paul, a senior communication studies major, was named Entrepreneur of the Month for April by Duck Head Apparel.

Paul, an Alexandria, Va., native, won for his World Wide Web site ThinkStudentDiscounts.com. The site provides information about events on- and off-campus and links to local merchants and discounted services.

The nationwide monthly contest is open to students 18 to 24 who run their own business. Winners are chosen for the uniqueness of their business, its fulfillment of a need in the marketplace and likelihood of long-term success.

Tales for Tots Wins Award

Tales for Tots, an outreach program of the New Hanover County Reading Association headed by Mary Kay Dodson, curricular studies, won $500 and second place in the Community Service Award Division of the International Reading Association. In the six years since its inception, the program has given more than 20,000 books to children in New Hanover County.

CAS Appointments

Jeffrey Hill was named associate dean for technology and infrastructure in the College of Arts and Sciences effective July 1. Hill, associate professor of parks and management and assistant chair in the Department of Health, Physical Education and Recreation, served as a faculty associate for technology in the college this year.

"Dr. Hill has considerable expertise in instructional systems technology, as well as facilities design," said Jo Ann Seiple, dean of the College of Arts and Sciences. "We expect him to be extremely helpful to the college in both of these areas."

Charles R. "Dick" Ward was appointed chair of the Department of Chemistry effective June 1. He will succeed William Cooper who will return to teaching and research full time.

Ward's previous administrative experience includes multiple-year directorships of the Science and Math Education Center, the Summer Ventures Program and the Center for Teaching Excellence. He also served a three-year appointment as assistant vice chancellor for information technology and special academic programs in the Division for Academic Affairs. He returned to full-time teaching duties in 1997.

Alumni Giving

One criteria used to rank colleges and universities nationally and in the UNC system is the level of alumni giving. Faculty and staff who are alumni can help raise UNCW's participation rate. Send checks payable to UNCW to advancement services, Alderman Hall, Room 104.

Maritime Festival

The fourth annual Maritime Day Festival will be held from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. May 20 at the State Port of Wilmington.

FOCUS ON FACULTY AND STAFF

Don Bushman, English, delivered the paper "Towards a Pedagogy of Personal Voice in a Violent Age" as part of the panel "Teaching Writing in Violent Times" at the Conference on College Composition and Communication in Minneapolis.

Lynn Leonard and Rebecca Beavers, earth sciences and CMS, and Ansley Wren, joint CSU-UNCW graduate student in marine science, presented "Tidal Hydrodynamics in Marsh Anopies: Examples from Marshes of the East Coast" at the Benthic Ecology meeting held at UNCW. Leonard and co-authors Richard Laws, earth sciences and CMS; Lawrence Ahoon, Martin Posey and Troy Alphin, biological sciences and CMS; and graduate students, Heather Reesey and Gina Panasik, presented "Sediment Recycling: Marsh Nourishment Through Dredged Material Disposal." Beavers chaired a session on pollution and presented "Reworking of Nearshore Sediments by Storms and Benthic Organisms" with co-authors Allen Curran and Lisa McAuliffe, Smith College. At the Southeastern Geological Society of America meeting, Leonard presented the invited talk "Tidal Marsh Restoration: Recent Efforts to Improve Design and Function" in a symposium on the role of geology in coastal restoration and co-authored a poster with Wren. Beavers presented the invited talk "Sedimentation and Inner Shelf Geology Along the Northern Outer Banks Near Duck, North Carolina" with co-authors Rob Thieler, USGS, and Peter Howd, USF, in the symposium "Shorelines and Shorefaces of the Carolinas: Recent Advances."

Larry Usilton, history, was on research assignment during the spring 2000 term. He gave the invited address "Medieval Seminar" at All Souls College, Oxford, on the subject of "The King's Indigent Army: A Study of Royal Corrodries in Medieval England." Usilton read the paper "The King's Use and Abuse of the Corrody System During the Age of Chaucer" at the Mediaeval Colloquium at the University of the South, Sewanee, Tenn. In addition, Usilton had the article "Edward II's Indigent Army: A Study of Royal Corrodries" published in Death, Disease and Health in Medieval Society and Culture: Sewanee Mediaeval Studies.

Candace Gauthier, philosophy and religion, presented the paper "Unfinished Business in Bioethics: Carrying the Philosophical Insights of the Last 25 Years into the New Millennium" at the Future of Bioethics Conference, University of Tennessee at Knoxville.

William Cooper, chemistry, presented the paper "Radiation Chemistry of Alternative Oxygenates: Substituted Ethers" at the 219th American Chemical Society national meeting in San Francisco with co-author Steve Mezyk, chemistry. Cooper was also a co-author on the paper "Similarities in the Treatment of Gasoline Oxygenates by Advanced Oxidation Processes: Product Studies, Kinetic Evaluations and Mechanistic Conclusions." At the same meeting, graduate student Jason Williams presented the paper "Pulse Radiolysis of Chlorinated Acetones" co-authored by Cooper and Mezyk, and Richard Schibetta, a graduate student, presented "Use of Semipermeable Membrane Devices (SPMDs) for the Calibration of Tributyltin Uptake Rates in Water" co-authored by Jack Manock, chemistry.

OFFICIAL NOTICES

Financial Aid Reminder

Federal regulations require that all scholarships and monetary prizes and awards to students be coordinated through the Financial Aid and Veterans Services Office. To report scholarship awards information, e-mail Emily Tohtze at tohtze.

Department Name Change

Effective fall 2000, the Department of Production and Decision Sciences in the Cameron School of Business will become the Department of Information Systems and Operations. All faculty and staff telephone numbers will remain the same.

Deferred Compensation

Jeff Harless, a Great-West Life and Annuity Insurance Company representative, will give presentations on the N.C. Deferred Compensation Plan at 10 a.m. and 1:30 p.m. May 16 in the human resources training room. One-on-one consultations may be scheduled. For more information, contact Elizabeth Greene at ext. 3713.

Activities Calendar

The Activities and Leadership Center is planning its fall 2000 campus activities calendar. Interested departments and organizations should submit event information, including date, time and location by June 5. Photographs, logos or artwork submitted may be used if space is available. Send information to Marian Bennett by e-mail to bennetm or the Activities and Leadership Center, University Union, Room 214. Direct questions to Shannon Hooker at ext. 3827.

Summer Ads

Starting with the May 18 edition, the Campus Communiqué will print personal ads while the university observes summer hours. Ads must be submitted in writing by e-mail to communiqué, fax to ext. 3847 or campus mail to Alderman Hall, Room 108. Include contact name and telephone number. Due to space restrictions, ads will be published on a space-available basis.

University Members Access to Student Recreation Center Available on Monthly or Annual Fee Basis

Starting May 15, university community members eligible to receive UNCW ID cards, which includes adjunct and part-time faculty, resident contractors, temporary employees and spouses or partners of permanent employees or retirees, may use the Student Recreation Center on a monthly or annual fee basis at rates equivalent to the student recreation fee. EPA, faculty and SPA employees with continuing appointments at half-time or greater and retirees already have access under the university's employee recreational benefit program.

To enroll in the monthly or annual access program, community members with UNCW ID cards must complete an application form in the Student Recreation Center. All fees for May and June must be paid at the time of application. The fee for May 15 through June 30 is $30. Thereafter, community members may pay annual fees of $240 for July through June or $20 per month in advance at the Student Recreation Center. Monthly fees may be processed through payroll deduction at $20 per month for employees paid on the end-of-month payroll. Payroll deduction is not available for employees paid on the mid-month payroll.

Day passes for ID card holders and guest passes will remain available for $5 per day, but guests must be accompanied by a university community member. UNCW ID cards are required, and the fee must be paid at time of entrance to the Student Recreation Center. Eligible community members who do not have a UNCW ID can purchase one for $10 at auxiliary services in the Burney Student Support Center.

Medical Insurance

The State Medical Plan has advised that there will be no HMO options in this area available during the annual enrollment period. Faculty and staff currently enrolled in either United Health Care or Doctor's Health Plan will have to sign up for the state major medical plan. Information and forms to make changes will be mailed to employees' home addresses in August. Payroll deductions will change in September, and the new coverage will begin Oct. 1.

Employees who have dependents graduating from high school or college or dependents who are age 19 and older and not full-time students should remove them from their health coverage. If the form is completed within 30 days of graduation, dependents will have the option of continuing coverage for up to 18 months by paying the cost of coverage. Direct questions to Elizabeth Greene at ext. 3713 or Willina Mitchell at ext. 3006.

Summer Hours

The university will begin summer hours May 15 and continue through Aug. 7. Official university hours for this period will be 7:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. Mondays-Thursdays and 7:30 to 11:30 a.m. Fridays. This schedule allows for an half-hour lunch break. With supervisory approval, employees may take an hour lunch and lengthen the workday by 30 minutes.

Alternate schedules must be submitted to human resources. During summer hours, casual dress is appropriate.

Shared Leave

Shared leave donations are needed for Ember Roberts, career services, and Mazelle Williams, student academic support. Direct questions to Willina Mitchell, human resources, at ext. 3006.

Welcome

Please welcome the following new employees: Daniel Armstrong, physical plant; Julie Brumm, NURC; Annie Joyner, accountancy and business law and Ventzeslav Penev, accounting.

BOG Approves Barlow, Clark to Lead Education, Business Schools

The Board of Governors of the University of North Carolina approved the appointment of Cathy L. Barlow as dean of the Watson School of Education and Lawrence S. Clark as dean of the Cameron School of Business, effective July 1, during meetings held Friday.

Barlow joins UNCW from Morehead State University, Morehead, Ky., where she was interim dean of the College of Education and Behavioral Sciences since 1999. Prior to being named interim dean, she chaired the Department of Elementary Reading and Special Education from 1994 to 1999. Clark joins UNCW following six years as dean of the School of Business and Economics at Sonoma State University in Rohnert Park, Calif. While at Sonoma State, Clark developed a wine industry program providing specialized business training for winery managers. The program, which began in 1996, includes classes in wine industry accounting, wine marketing and introduction to wine business strategies.

"I'm delighted to have Drs. Barlow and Clark at UNCW," said Dr. John Cavanaugh, provost and vice chancellor for academic affairs. "Dr. Barlow has shown the importance of strong, collaborative ties with the K-12 education system from her prior experience, and Dr. Clark brings to UNCW a long record of success and innovation in working with business and industry."

The strong academic reputation of UNCW and the Watson School of

Barlow

Clark

Education, as well as the opportunity to concentrate on teacher quality and preparation, were factors in seeking the dean's position, said Barlow. The proposed facility which will house the Watson School of Education was another exciting factor in the decision, Barlow added.

"To be able to incorporate best practices in a state-of-the-art facility and work diligently to maintain and increase partnerships with public schools are challenges that I look forward to undertaking," said Barlow. "I hope to increase the level of collaboration in the community and among colleagues within the university's other colleges and divisions and will support increased faculty research and grant writing."

Prior to Morehead State University, Barlow was dean of the College of Education and Health Sciences at the University of Evansville, Ind., from 1992 to 1994. She earned a bachelor's degree in education/psychology from Milligan College, Milligan, Tenn., a master's degree in education from Ball State University and a doctoral degree in education from the University of Tulsa.

Clark also cited the high quality of the university as well as the faculty and programs of UNCW's business school as factors in the decision to seek the job as dean of the Cameron School of Business. He added that Wilmington's coastal location helped.

"I look forward to active involvement in the community," said Clark. "Wilmington is similar to Sonoma County. Both were listed among the country's quirkiest places to live which attracts a diverse population affecting economic growth. My more recent work is in sustainable growth, which requires communities to balance economic, environmental and social equity concerns to maintain progress. This will be beneficial in working with the university and greater Wilmington communities."

Prior to Sonoma State University, Clark was dean of the Louisiana State University-Shreveport College of Business Administration. He holds law degrees from the John Marshall Law School and DePaul University, Chicago Ill., and a bachelor's degree in economics/business administration from Knox College, Galesburg, Ill.

Women's Ultimate Frisbee Team Qualifies for National Championships

The UNCW women's ultimate Frisbee team qualified for the Ultimate Players Association College National Championships scheduled for May 26-28 in Boise, Idaho.

The 14-member team called Seaweed is currently ranked first in the country and has a 37-3 record. Season highlights include reaching the finals of all seven tournaments entered and winning four of them, including the Southeast Regional Championship in April where the team defeated the University of Georgia. UNCW's women's ultimate Frisbee team won national titles in 1992 and 1996.

"We have worked hard all year," said Nikki Miani, team captain. "Having played in the most competitive tournaments available, we feel we have what it takes to bring another national championship to UNCW."

The club is raising $8,000 to fund travel to the college national championships in Idaho. To date, the team has raised approximately $4,000.

Anyone interested in making a donation to the team should contact Jean Ostrander, sports club adviser, at ext. 7393.

Hurricane Workshop Offers Teachers Credit

Teachers of grades K-12 in New Hanover, Pender and Brunswick counties can earn 2.4 units of teacher renewal credit at a four-day workshop on hurricane destruction sponsored by the Soil and Water Districts of the three counties and the Division for Public Service and Extended Education. The workshop "Five in Four Years: The Devastation of Hurricanes" will be offered from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. June 12-15 at Brunswick Community College in Shallotte.

The cost is $45 with a registration deadline of June 8. For more information or to register, call ext. 3195.

Note of Appreciation

Mary Crookes, university events coordinator, and Patsy Lerrick, special events director, would like to thank staff who served as commencement assistants May 13. Special thanks go to Frances Carr, Gloria Crowell, Gennie Beatty and Becky Chilcote whose years of experience as volunteer coordinators insured another successful event. Commencement assistants played a vital role in making graduation a memorable event.

Girls Soccer Camp

The Women's Soccer Program will hold two soccer camps June 26-30 and July 23-28 for girls ages seven to 14 and 12-18 respectively. Daughters of faculty and staff will receive a $25 discount per week of the camp. For a registration brochure, contact Paul Cairney or Tammy DeCesare at ext. 3932.

Inaugural Graduate Mentor Award Recipients Named

Philip Gerard, creative writing, and Robert Roer, biological sciences, were named the inaugural recipients of the Graduate Mentor Award. They will be formally recognized at fall convocation.

"I fully concur with the committee's recommendation," said Neil Hadley, dean of the Graduate School and Research. "Having worked closely with both individuals, I am fully aware of the outstanding contributions to graduate education the two have made through mentoring of students and to their respective departments. As first recipients of this award, they have set very high standards for future nominees."

The award, presented by the graduate school, recognizes graduate faculty who have excelled at teaching at the graduate level and who have an established record of mentoring students who have received master's degrees. This includes not only guiding students' research activities, but helping them become established as independent scholars and professionals. Award recipients were recommended by an ad hoc committee of faculty peers following a selection process which included a review of nomination letters, supporting letters from faculty and former students, an essay by the nominee and an interview with the committee. The graduate school will publish both awardees' essays.

Watson School of Education Presents Razor Walker Awards

UNCW's Watson School of Education recognized 10 North Carolina honorees for their contributions to America's youth at the eighth annual Razor Walker Awards ceremony held May 22 in the Warwick Center Ballroom. This program was sponsored in part by BellSouth.

This year's event was held in memory of Jay Robinson, who dedicated 45 years of his life to improving public education. Named one of Teacher Magazine's most influential people in America during the past decade, Robinson served as chair of the State Board of Education and was a member of the UNCW Board of Trustees.

The Razor Walker Awards were established to recognize individuals across the state who have made extraordinary contributions to the lives of children and youth of North Carolina. Selected from nominations received nationwide, honorees are individuals who have brought vision, tenacity, courage and sacrifice to better the lives of the young people of this state. The awards are so named to honor individuals either from North Carolina or currently living in the state who have "walked the razor's edge" by taking risks to benefit children and youth of the Tar Heel state.

Gov. James B. Hunt, Raleigh; Sharon Darling, president, National Center for Family Literacy, Louisville, Ky.; William Friday, UNC president emeritus, Chapel Hill; James J. Gallagher, Kenan professor of education at UNC Chapel Hill and director of the Frank Porter Graham Child Development Center; William L. Joyner, interim executive director, New Hanover Community Health Center; Hugh MacRae II, president, The Oleander Company; Peggy Manring, head of distance learning technologies, North Carolina School of Science and Mathematics, Durham; Thomas W. Lambeth, chair of the board of directors, National Center for Family Philanthropy and director of the Z. Smith Reynolds Foundation, Winston-Salem; Robert E. Tyndall, vice chancellor, information technology systems.

Dowd Named Assistant VC for Development

Jay Dowd was named assistant vice chancellor for development in the university's Division for University Advancement, effective June 5. Dowd will work with all university fund-raisers as well as the operations that support them, including research, annual giving and advancement services.

Dowd

Prior to joining UNCW, Dowd served as vice president for institutional advancement at Methodist College in Fayetteville since 1995. In that role, he supervised the offices of development, alumni affairs, parents programs, public relations and publications, student media and Web site management. During his tenure, he led Methodist through a three-year capital campaign which raised more than $8 million, surpassing a $6.5 million goal.

"We are looking forward to having someone of Jay's experience and familiarity with our region join the university's senior fund-raising management team," said Patton McDowell, vice chancellor for university advancement. "He brings a wide range of professional skills to UNCW and will be a great asset as we implement a more comprehensive fund-raising plan to take our university to the next level."

Dowd, a native of Bennettsville, S.C., received his bachelor's degree in history from Winthrop University and a master's degree in education from the University of South Carolina in Columbia with a concentration in higher education administration. He is president of the Fayetteville chapter of the University of South Carolina Alumni Association and is active in the Cumberland County United Way, Kiwanis Club of Cape Fear and the Fayetteville Area Chamber of Commerce.

Vol. XXIX, No. 45 June 1, 2000

Financial Aid and Veterans Services Office Wins National Award

Picture a college admissions process where a team from admissions, academic advising and financial aid comes to a high school or community college. An applicant meets with the team and after a few minutes, walks away admitted to the university with a schedule of classes for the next semester in hand and a financial aid award in place.

Such innovation in service and quality is one reason the University of North Carolina at Wilmington's Financial Aid and Veterans Services Office was selected to receive the US Department of Education (USED) Quality Assurance Program's Model of Quality Award for the 1999-2000 Award Year. One of only two such awards given in the United States this year, the award was presented on May 6, at the Quality Assurance 2000 National Conference in Denver, Colo.

Mark Williams, director of financial aid and veterans services, stated, "I am happy to see the efforts of our team recognized in this way. They have worked hard to re-engineer and improve service to students." UNCW was recognized for its excellence in addressing certain quality assistance performance measures as well as financial aid innovations.

UNCW's "On-the-Spot" initiative described above is one of these. "It is a program where an admissions counselor, academic advisor, and financial aid counselor travel together to high schools and community colleges for the purpose of admitting, advising, and completing the financial aid process on site.

"We are the only school in North Carolina and perhaps the Southeast that has implemented such a program," said Williams. "The level of service is unparalleled. Students and their parents are amazed that the student walks away with an admissions decision, a planned schedule and financial aid awards."

Of the 3,000 colleges and universities nationwide, less than 150 have been selected to participate in the Quality Assurance Program. Representing UNCW to receive the award were Emily Bliss, senior associate director, Office of Financial Aid and Veterans Services, and Perry Campbell, financial aid counselor. UNCW was recognized for its use of Total Quality University (TQU) management, an initiative Chancellor James R. Leutze began in 1992.

Other UNC Wilmington innovations that have received national attention include UNCW's partnership with the National Association of Student Financial Aid Administrators (NASFAA) and the Texas Guaranteed Student Loan Corporation (TG) to create the first nationwide financial aid Web-based training program for financial aid administrators and high school counselors. UNCW, NASFAA and TG were awarded $930,870 in a grant last year to implement this project. The site is expected to be functioning by early fall 2000.

The Financial Aid Office was also recognized for these innovations:

- its partnership with the North Carolina State Education Assistance Authority to employ a high school counselor intern each summer.
- its implementation of focus groups to address student and parent financial aid concerns.
- its extensive contact with area high schools.
- the establishment of a web listserv as an information source for high school counselors. The listserv system brings interested high school counselors together to discuss financial aid and other issues. UNCW responds quickly when questions arise.

Stompin' at the Savoy

The Office of Campus Diversity, formerly minority affairs, will hold "Stomping at the Savoy" at 8 p.m. June 10 in the Warwick Center Center Stage Cafe. Track Assistant Named Head Coach at Robert Morris College

Michael Smith, assistant track and field coach, was named head men's and women's coach at Robert Morris College in Pittsburgh, Pa. Smith, 29, served as an assistant for eight years working primarily with sprinters, hurdlers and jumpers. He earned a bachelor's degree in marketing from Southern Connecticut State and completed his master's in education administration at UNCW in 1995.

Blackbeard Documentary

In Search of Blackbeard's Treasure, a Discovery Channel documentary co-produced by the BBC, will air at 9 p.m. June 5 and 6 p.m. and midnight June 10 on the cable network. The RV Seahawk served as the primary dive vehicle during the two weeks last fall when the BBC filmed the dive team and others associated with the shipwreck near Beaufort. The Seahawk is also the primary dive vessel for the current mission which began May 22.

"The most exciting thing about this expedition has been pulling up the various artifacts," said Gerry Compeau, captain of the RV Seahawk. "At the start, there was some uncertainty, but now as we find more artifacts, all the evidence points to the shipwreck's being Blackbeard's ship." Whether or not this vessel is documented to be the Queen Anne's Revenge, this is the oldest shipwreck ever found in North Carolina's waters.

Garrity Named Women's Tennis Coach

University of Kansas head coach Jenny Garrity was named UNCW's head women's tennis coach effective June 30.

Garrity

Garrity, a native of Moorestown, N.J., completed her second year at KU where she directed the Jayhawk's nationally ranked program. A 1992 graduate of NC State University and former Wolfpack player and head coach, Garrity is looking forward to returning to the southeastern U.S.

"I'm looking forward to learning more about the players and bringing pride and enthusiasm to the program. I hope I can help our players improve, reach their goals, break a lot of records and get them excited again about their tennis. Coach Farfour has laid a very good foundation, and I plan on building on that," said Garrity.

Peg Bradley-Dopps, athletic director said she was excited to have Garrity join the university.

"She will bring a great deal of energy to the program and should be a good fit. We have a large tennis community here, and this promises to give our program a real boost."

As a player, Garrity was a two-time all-ACC player and finished with the most victories in the Wolfpack women's tennis history. Prior to KU, Garrity was assistant coach at NC State for three years and head coach for three years.

Magazine Reader's Poll Ranks UNCW Third Most Scenic Campus

UNCW was ranked North Carolina's third most scenic campus in a reader's poll conducted by MetroMagazine. Finishing ahead of UNCW in the MetroBravo Awards were UNC Chapel Hill and Duke University.

R/V Seahawk in Blackbeard Documentary Airing on Discovery Channel

The exploration and recovery efforts of the shipwreck believed to be Blackbeard's flagship, the Queen Anne's Revenge (QAR), is the subject of a Discovery Channel documentary. Co-produced with the BBC, In Search of Blackbeard's Treasure will air midnight and 6 p.m. June 10 on the cable channel which airs on Time-Warner Channel 35.

A BBC film crew spent the two weeks of last fall's expedition recording and interviewing the dive team and others associated with the dive at the shipwreck near Beaufort. The ship sank in 1718.

The UNC Wilmington Research vessel Seahawk played a vital role in the expedition last fall during prime hurricane season when the documentary was filmed.

The expedition was conducted by the N.C. Division of Archives and History's Underwater Archaeology Unit, in cooperation with the N.C. Maritime Museum and the Maritime Research Institute.

According to Capt. Gerry Compeau, the Seahawk has served as the primary dive vessel for the expedition and was out on the ocean every day of the latest mission which was conducted May 22 through June 2.

"The most exciting thing about this expedition has been pulling up the various artifacts," said Compeau. "At the start of the mission there was some uncertainty, but now as we find more artifacts, all the evidence points to the shipwreck's being Blackbeard's ship."

So far five cannon, five pewter platters and two plates, a bronze bell and a pewter syringe are among the hundreds of artifacts raised during this four-year effort. Whether or not it is actually documented to be the QAR, this is the oldest shipwreck ever found in North Carolina waters. Records indicate there was gold dust aboard the QAR, and some has been found at this site.

Many scientists and researchers from several institutions assisted with this project. Boats, captains or researchers from Cape Fear Community College, East Carolina University, UNC Asheville, UNC Chapel Hill, UNCW, Virginia Polytechnic Institute and Appalachian State University all participated at some time during this first-ever spring expedition.

"The most surprising thing has been the cooperation that we've received from all sorts of people," says field director Mark Wilde-Ramsing. "It's surprising how complex this is, how much there is to study for biologists, geologists, geographers, as well as historians and archaeologists."

The documentary aired on the BBC in March, and about a quarter of the United Kingdom audience (about five million people) watched.

Furia on Let's Read

Philip Furia, creative writing, is a guest on the second show in the Let's Read! UNCW & You series airing at 7 p.m. June 8, 15 and 22 on TLN, Time Warner Cable Channel 5. He discusses his book Irving Berlin: A Life in Song with host Betty Ann Sanders and Ben Steelman, critic for the Wilmington Star-News.

Paralegal Course

UNCW will offer a six-session Paralegal Certificate Course on weekends in the fall and spring in association with the Center for Legal Studies. Upon completion, qualifying students will receive a certificate awarded by UNCW. This intensive, nationally acclaimed program is designed for beginning as well as advanced legal workers. Students will receive training to assist trial attorneys, interview witnesses, research law and assist in case preparation for courtroom litigation. For more information, call ext. 3195. Direct question regarding curriculum to the Center for Legal Studies at 800-522-7737.

Aquarius Sending Greetings

Aquarius, the underwater laboratory managed by NURC/UNCW, will participate in the ninth Millennium Evening at the White House June 12. A 90-second "Hello from Aquarius" will be delivered. The event, which will focus on what is being learned through ocean and space exploration, will be broadcast via satellite nationwide. Communities and schools have been invited to downlink the broadcast.

Student-Athletes Post 2.9 GPA for Spring Semester

Women's Ultimate Frisbee Team Finishes Second

The Seaweed, UNCW's Women's Ultimate Frisbee Club, finished second at the Ultimate Players Association College National Championships in Boise, Idaho. The 14-member team, which entered the tournament as the top-ranked club, lost to Carleton College 15-10.

Seahawks Join Big South Conference in Women's Golf

UNCW joined the Big South Conference as an associate member in women's golf.

"We're very pleased to become an associate member of the Big South," said Jan Mann, women's golf coach. "It gives us an opportunity to compete for an automatic bid to the NCAAs. We have competed against the Big South schools in the past, and we look forward to our continued competition."

Since the Colonial Athletic Association does not conduct a women's golf championship, the Lady Seahawks have competed as an independent squad.

"The Big South is excited to add a women's golf program the caliber of UNC Wilmington," said Kyle B. Kallander, Big South commissioner. "We believe this will be a mutually beneficial partnership with a quality institution in the heart of our geographic region."

Farewell Reception

The University Union will host a farewell reception for Justin Lawhead and Julie Owen from 3:30 to 5 p.m. June 14 in the Warwick Center Center Stage Cafe. Lawhead is joining the staff at Kent State University. Owen is leaving to pursue her doctoral degree at the University of Maryland.

Stompin' at the Savoy

Oliver Stone Films Explored in New Book Edited by Robert Toplin

Film director Oliver Stone, known for movies such as Platoon, JFK and Nixon, is often questioned about the historical accuracy of his cinematic interpretations. Stone faces his critics and responds to them in the latest book by Robert Toplin, professor of history at the University of North Carolina at Wilmington. Oliver Stone's USA: Film History and Controversy, edited by Toplin, is a series of 15 essays which explore nine Stone films. The book also includes an introduction by Toplin.

of numerous books including Nixon and Rise to Globalism: American Foreign Policy Since 1938; Walter Lafeber, professor of history at Cornell University; David Halberstam, author of The Best and the Brightest and The Fifties; Le Ly Hayslip, author of When Heaven and Earth Changed Places: A Vietnamese Woman's Journey from War to Peace; George S. McGovern, former senator from South Dakota and 1972 Democratic Party presidential candidate; and Arthur M. Schlesinger, Jr., author of 'This is more than an anthology of new essays. It is a unique project involving a dialogue between a noted filmmaker and his critics and supporters.'

--Robert Toplin

"Here, at last, is an opportunity to meet the man behind the movies and hear him defend his motion pictures," said Toplin, a well-known film historian and frequent commentator for the History Channel and C-SPAN. "We must move beyond the simple-minded reactions to cinematic history. We need to examine the man and his films with more dimension, more open-mindedness and more probing."

Contributing writers explored nine Stone films: Salvador, Platoon, Wall Street, Born on the Fourth of July, The Doors, JFK, Heaven and Earth, Natural Born Killers and Nixon. Essayists include Stephen E. Ambrose, an author

A Thousand Days: John F. Kennedy in the White House.

"Through this book, I bring together many of the best historians and journalists who write about recent American history to comment on Stone's films," said Toplin. In addition, a section of the book is devoted to Stone who responds to the essayists.

"Once I assembled the essays, Stone agreed to read and provide commentary. I thought he would offer a few minutes or hours of commentary. Instead, he talked with me for more than 20 hours, and he followed up with more time as we revised the material," said Toplin. "This is more than an anthology of new essays. It is a unique project involving a

Oliver Stone's USA: Film History and Controversy was published by the University Press of Kansas in Lawrence, Kan. Toplin, in addition to serving as professor of history, is the author of nine books including History by Hollywood: The Use and Abuse of the American Past and Ken Burns' The Civil War: Historians Respond. He is also editor of film reviews for the Journal of American History and editor for media with Perspectives, the publication of the American Historical Association.

THE OFFICIAL BULLETIN OF UNCW

University Advancement

Vol. XXIX, No. 48 June 22, 2000

Phillip Brown, editor

UNCW Partners with French University for N.C.'s First Dual Degree

Utilizing an interactive video conference, officials at the University of North Carolina at Wilmington and the Centre d'Etudes Supérieures Européennes Management Méditerranée (CESEM) at Marseille, France, jointly announced June 15 the formation of an innovative dual degree program. The dual degree agreement will enable students in America and France to earn both a bachelor of science degree in business administration from UNCW and the diploma of the CESEM Méditerranée.

"This is the first dual degree program in North Carolina and one of the few in the country," said Howard Rockness, dean of the Cameron School of Business. "It is also the first in France with an American business school."

Participants will study two years at UNCW and two years in Marseille. The program begins in September 2000.

Several years in the making, the initiative is an outgrowth of a transatlantic alliance formed in 1998 by UNCW's Cameron School of Business with four European Union business schools and two other United States business schools to develop and implement a model international business education program. The first agreement is anticipated to pave the way for similar arrangements with the other participating schools in the transatlantic alliance.

"This program represents a significant new phase for our international programs and is a reflection of the globalization of business," said John C. Cavanaugh, UNCW provost and vice chancellor for academic affairs, who was in Marseille for the formal document signing. "This is the first time we've had a situation where students can earn a degree here and at an international institution. These American students will be fluent in French and studying in an international environment. Imagine the job offers they will have."

In addition to CESEM, the European members of the alliance are the Hochschule Bremen in Bremen, Germany; the University of Westminster's Harrow Business School in London, England; and the Universidad de Valencia in Valencia, Spain. Along with UNCW, the U.S. members are East Tennessee State University and the University of Missouri-Kansas City.

The alliance is funded in part by a $206,000, three-year grant from the U.S. Department of Education. Funding for the European Union schools is from a Euro 100,000 grant (approximately $80,000) from the European Union, supplemented by education grants from each country. The program is supported by UNCW's Office of International Programs.

The program will work like this: students from both countries, who have completed their secondary education, will have the opportunity to pursue a business administration program with majors in human resources, finance or marketing. Students will do an intensive full-time, 40-hour-a-week, four- to six-month internship in their home country before going abroad and one in the host country before returning home.

The first cohort of students will start their studies in September 2000 at their home institution and begin study abroad in fall semester 2002. The initial objective is for five students per year to start in each school. There should be 10 students from each school in the other school at any time after the second cohort goes abroad in 2003. The objectives may be increased over the years by mutual agreement.

In addition to the dual degree program described above, UNCW students may choose a CESEM summer program that awards 12 credits for eight weeks' work in French language, European business and culture, including an internship in a local company. These students will not earn the CESEM diploma but will help balance the exchange, as it is expected that there may be more French students prepared to study in the U.S. than vice versa.

Students will take classes and exams in the language of the school they are attending (UNCW classes will be taught in English, CESEM classes in French except for the summer program). Thus, language preparation is crucial to student success.

As is customary in most university international exchange programs, students who participate in this program will pay tuition and fees to their home institutions and take care of living expenses on the local economy. Because of strong language abilities required for this program, UNCW will seek to identify students at the high school level who might be interested and recruit them into the program.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

The concert is in conjunction with the week-long UNCW Summer Jazz Workshop held June 25 through July 2 and hosted by the Music Department. For more information, call ext. 3390.

Seahawk Club to Benefit from Fishing Tournament

The Seahawk Club, the primary fund-raising organization of the Athletic Department, was named the main beneficiary of the 19th annual Wrightsville Beach King Mackerel Tournament scheduled for Sept. 21-23. The club will receive the majority of proceeds from fish sales from the three-day event.

"We're very excited and honored to be associated with one of the most established and longest-running tournaments in the Carolinas," said Chris Delisio, executive director of the Seahawk Club. "This partnership will assist in raising funds for our student-athletes in pursuit of academic and athletic excellence. It will also provide us with a tremendous amount of public awareness leading up to and during the tournament."

Jim Herren, tournament chair, said the organization welcomed the additional manpower that the Seahawk Club could provide tournament operations, and he looked forward to the long-term benefits to both organizations.

For more information on the tournament, call 452-REEL or write to Wrightsville Beach King Mackerel Tournament, PO Box 864, Wrightsville Beach, N.C. 28480.

Play Festival

Susan Stacy Cox, career services, will direct Mushrooms as part of the Festival of New Plays presented by Big Dawg Productions at Thalian Hall. According to Cox, the play "is an incredible piece about the relationship between mother and daughter." The festival includes two other productions, In the Church of the Pen and Heathens. For tickets, call 343-3664.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

UNCW Receives $114,000 in Crime Commission Grants

Seventh District Congressman Mike McIntyre announced June 16 grant awards totaling $2.4 million to fight crime in Southeastern North Carolina. Singled out were six New Hanover County grantees, including two awards to UNCW.

The funds were allocated by the Governor's Crime Commission (GCC), which last week announced awards of $21.7 million in federal grant money to 228 local and 66 state agencies in 87 North Carolina counties. Two colleges and eight universities were awarded GCC grants. UNCW was the only university to receive two of these grants. The UNCW CROSSROADS CO-OP Program received $60,000 for a one-year project to provide alcohol, drug and tobacco awareness programs for high school students in New Hanover County. This continues and expands a pilot program successfully established at New Hanover High School in the 1999-2000 school year. The $60,000 in federal grant money is in addition to $20,000 from the Cape Fear Memorial Foundation.

The Department of Sociology, Anthropology and Criminal Justice received $53,911 for a one-year study of a new comprehensive anti-gun violence strategy to be implemented in Wilmington. With $4,492 from the New Hanover County Board of Commissioners and $13,477 from the Pritzker Cousins Foundation, Chicago, Ill., the amount received for the study totals $71,882.

FOCUS ON FACULTY AND STAFF

Submissions for this section are published in order received. Due to the volume of submissions, there can be a two- to three-week delay in publication. Your patience is appreciated.

Film Studies Program/EUE Screen Gems Sponsoring Workshops

The UNCW Film Studies Program and EUE Screen Gems Studios, in association with the Southeastern Media Institute (SEMI) of Columbia, S.C. (a program of the South Carolina Arts Commission and the Media Arts Center), will sponsor five days of forums, workshops, screenings and demonstrations celebrating Wilmington's film community July 7 through July 11. Though the event is open to the public, it is specifically designed for film enthusiasts and professionals who are interested in developing further knowledge and skills in various aspects of media arts. The event will include numerous free activities as well as a number of specialized workshops that require registration fees.

"The Southeastern Media Institute event provides a forum for independent filmmakers, commercial producers, educators, writers, actors, students and others involved with film, video and audio to meet with their peers and share information," said Frank Capra, Jr., president of EUE Screen Gems Studios. "Not only is this event a great opportunity for creative and intellectual exchange, it also provides Wilmington with an opportunity to showcase the talents of our local industry professionals and bring attention to our growing heritage of local filmmaking. We hope to attract regional production companies and businesses to this event who could benefit from hiring Wilmington's experienced and talented local film crew and cast."

UNCW's Film Studies Program will kick off the SEMI event with the panel "Calling All Colors" at 10 a.m. July 7 at UNCW's Warwick Center. This panel discussion, comprised of local film professionals, will address the opportunities and challenges facing individuals of color interested in breaking into the film and television industry. The Academy of Motion Pictures in Los Angeles, Calif., is sending a "visiting artist" in support of the event's emphasis on cultural diversity. The afternoon will conclude with seminar "Pioneers of Cinema" presented by Terry Theodore, art and theatre, at 2 p.m. in Kenan Hall, Room 121.

From 6 to 8 p.m., July 7, the Film Studies Program and Randall Library will host "Making Movie History," a reception to honor special guests and unveil the Fincannon Film Archive Collection. Following the reception, Frank Capra, Jr., will introduce Robert Toplin, history professor, film historian for the History Channel and editor of the newly published Oliver Stone's USA: Film History and Controversy, who will chair the seminar "History by Hollywood."

Screen Gems will host a free "Studio Open House" from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m., July 8 and 9, which will feature demonstrations on the latest technologies including non-linear editing systems, digital cameras, sound and computer

Hancock Named Women's Basketball Coach

Ann Hancock, an assistant coach at UNC Chapel Hill for the past eight years, was named UNCW's head women's basketball coach.

"Ann is an excellent fit for our program and the Wilmington community," said Peg Bradley-Doppes, athletic director. "She has been associated with one of the finest programs in the country and will bring a high energy level to our department. Ann's ability to recruit and teach the game made her an outstanding candidate. She comes very highly recommended in the women's basketball ranks."

Hancock becomes the eighth coach in the 27-year history of the program. She succeeds Bernie Flax, whose contract was not renewed earlier this month.

"I'm very excited about the opportunity," said Hancock. "There's a lot of potential here at UNCW, and I'm very thankful to have this chance. There are a lot of talented young players in this state, and we will certainly be recruiting them. I look forward to rolling up my sleeves and working hard to make this a program that Wilmington and this part of the state will be proud of."

The 29-year-old Hancock is the daughter of Tim and Lou Marlowe and grew up in nearby Elizabethtown. She attended summer basketball camps at UNCW for several years. Following high school graduation, Hancock enjoyed an outstanding academic and athletic career at Wingate University.

Common Reading Program

The UNCW Leadership Center and the English Department have formed a common reading program for the fall 2000 semester. Faculty and staff are encouraged to use the works of Jonathan Kozol in classes, seminars and activities. Kozol will present "Ordinary Resurrections" at 7 p.m. Sept. 19 in Kenan Auditorium. His works include Death at an Early Age, Savage Inequalities, Rachel and Her Children: Homeless Families in America and Amazing Grace: The Lives of Children and the Conscience of a Nation.

Seahawks Name New Track and Field Coach

Kevin Ankrom, a former standout high jumper at NC State University and current head coach at Valparaiso University, was named UNCW's head men's and women's track and field/cross-country coach effective Aug. 1.

"We are pleased to have Kevin join our program," said Peg Bradley-Doppes, UNCW's athletic director. "Kevin is one of the outstanding young track and field coaches in the country. He was an excellent student-athlete during his time in Raleigh, so he knows what it takes to be successful on the Division I level. We are looking forward to continued success with the track and field program under his guidance."

The 32-year-old Ankrom, who has led Valparaiso's program for five years, said he was excited about the position. "This is the next step for me professionally. Obviously, I'd like to continue the success on the men's side as far as winning the conference championship and even try to move up to the next level, either in the ECAC or nationally. On the women's side, we've got some work to do, and I'd like to get going. Overall, I'm looking forward to continuing the prosperity of the track program at UNCW."

Prior to joining Valparaiso University, Ankrom served as program coordinator and national coach of Bahrain, developing athletes for the 1996 Asian and Olympic Games.

CPA Review Course

The Becker Conviser CPA Review course will be conducted from 6 to 10 p.m. Mondays, Wednesdays and Thursdays Aug. 14 through Oct. 25 in Cameron Hall, Room 212. The course, offered through the Division for Public Service and Extended Education and the Department of Accountancy and Business Law, is designed for candidates preparing to take the November 2000 Uniform CPA Examination. Long-time University Operator Kay Jackson Taking Last Call

When Kay Jackson completes her last call June 30, she'll hang up a 30-year career as university operator. While she transfers to retirement, she doesn't plan a future on hold.

"I'm going to do some traveling and visit family and friends," said Jackson. She also plans to keep busy in her garden. Most of all, she's looking forward to the peace and quiet.

"It's going to be a change, and I'm going to miss the university. I've enjoyed the contact with people, answering questions and providing information," said Jackson.

Adapting to change won't be difficult for Jackson, who, since July 1971, has been responsible for connecting UNCW to the outside world.

The university's first full-time operator, Jackson worked in Alderman Hall where she routed incoming calls on a manual switchboard by connecting cords to various sockets. As the university expanded, she adapted to new exchanges, procedures and equipment.

"The biggest change was direct dial, where callers who knew the number could reach their party without the switchboard," said Jackson. This system was installed in the mid-1980s and helped reduce the frustration and irritation associated with the previous equipment, said Jackson.

"Before direct dial, I manned 23 lines. If more than one person called, he or she was placed on hold. Instead of a busy signal, the caller would still hear ringing," said Jackson, adding that the unanswered rings left the impression that the university was closed. Even though the university's current system allows callers to reach campus extensions without assistance, operators still average 12,000 switchboard calls per month across 62 telephone lines.

Not only has Jackson weathered new equipment, she's also dealt with the stream of new university dial-in prefixes - 791 to 395 to 962.

Kay Jackson, university operator, makes her last call June 30. The Information Technology Systems Division will host a breakfast in her honor from 8 to 9:30 a.m. tomorrow in Wagoner Hall, Madeline Suite.

Promoted to telephone operator supervisor in 1988, Jackson shares switchboard duties with two other full-time operators. She arranges for service calls and updates the university's computerized telephone records for the university directory.

"We (operators) also provide information, especially about campus events. Sometimes we have to do research, but we do our best to answer the questions that callers ask," said Jackson.

"Kay has reason to be proud of her UNCW career," said Bill Vereen, director of telecommunications. "For 30 years, she's been the first point of verbal contact for the university. She's dealt with more faculty, staff and students than virtually anyone. While her level of contact might seem insignificant, it wasn't for all those she helped."

Vereen said he will have a difficult time adjusting to Jackson's retirement. "She's been a perfect employee. I want to thank her for all she's done for the department and the university and wish her the best."

Farewell Reception

The Information Technology Systems Division will host a breakfast in honor of Kay Jackson's retirement from 8 to 9:30 a.m. June 30 in Wagoner Hall, Madeline Suite.
